Today

A Bandit Face Lifted. ...nce Grieved, Twice. ... by Inactivity.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

ORDINARY CRIME, and super-crime, which is war, adopt swiftly modern ideas and inventions. War seized on the airplane and poison gases. We might not yet be flying, in earnest, had planes not been needed for killing.

Dillinger, the bandit now at large, his band broken up, two sentenced to death, a third to life imprisonment, is said by police to have had his face "lifted," changed in various ways, by plastic surgery, a mole and a deep scar taken from his chin. Police show receipted beauty parlor bills, found in Dillinger's abandoned lodgings.

ENERGETIC SURGERY could change any face, beyond recognition, breaking down the bridge of the nose, creating scars that would completely change expression.

But no surgery could keep the criminal from betraying himself, by talking. And talking is the criminal's great danger.

YOU WILL be surprised, mildly, to learn that France has two fresh complaints against this country. Holland, lending sixty million dollars to France, invited American bankers to share the loan. The U. S. Treasury put an embargo on such lending, in view of other American loans made to France in war, loans now covered with cobwebs of oblivion.

Senator Hiram Johnson's bill forbidding an American loan to any nation, in default to this country, seems to France particularly outrageous. Hope is expressed that the temptation to lend at high interest to France "on the gold basis" will bring out American money, in spite of embargoes.

FRANCE WORRIES also about the trade rivalry of Japan, outselling France in her own colonies, in spite of tariff protection. And Japan's competition in the silk trade causes deep concern in France, Japan now holding second place in the world's silk-finishing trade.

This is all the fault of the United States, according to French economists. If Uncle Sam had not allowed Japan to flood this country with her goods, thus building up her industries, Japan would not menace French prosperity, as she does now.

It is interesting to know that "Japan buys more wool from Australia now than England buys." Perhaps the British will prove that we are responsible for that also.

Meanwhile, congratulations to our Japanese brothers. They know how to swim in troubled waters

STATESMEN THAT still howl for Free Trade, or something like it, saying "We can't sell them cotton, if we do not buy their goods," should consider facts:

On Saturday Chancellor Hitler's government fulfilled the recent prophecy of the Reichsbank president by announcing a seven weeks' embargo on all importations of cotton, wool and other raw textile materials.

This is done to oblige German bankers, who, next month, will talk to foolish American financiers about private American loans in Germany. "See, if you do not behave, we shall stop buying from you entirely. We have cut off your cotton, wool, etc., for seven weeks, as a friendly warning." That is the idea.

BRITAIN USED to buy twenty-three per cent of all imported lard from American farmers. Now she buys from us eight per cent.

All foreign countries plan to cease or diminish their buying here and make themselves independent of the United States. We could be really independent of them. Why not prove it—produce all we can, in place of cutting down, and dump cheap goods in remaining foreign markets, South America, China, etc., at such low prices as will make our dear friends in Europe sit up straight?

BETTER USE government money, subsidizing a good fight against treacherous European competition and conspiracy, rather than use the money to stop American production, keep tens of millions of acres and millions of men idle. What are farmers to do, if you forbid them to plow and plant their land? Twiddle their thumbs, or have a 36-hour week, and whistle, whittle and sleep the remaining 132 hours? The farmer likes, or tolerates his life because it means independence. Take that away and you'll have few "contented farmers."

SENATOR FESS, Ohio Republican, just worries himself to death about the Bankhead bill that would limit the cotton crop to ten million bales, with a fine of fifty per cent for over-production.

Senator Fess says, "the strongest passion in the human breast is the right to ownership," and is afraid crop limitation, by law, may produce revolution.

There is another passion in the human breast a little stronger, namely, the passion for running other people's business. They had it in Ancient Egypt and Mesopotamia, with their regulations about water and land. But somehow men have muddled through. They will muddle through here, without revolution, but it is rather bold to plan improvement through inactivity.

An ancient king, capturing an enemy king, might say wisely, "I cut off his hands and feet and chained him at my gate." But it was not good for the captured king.

POLICE PROBE DEMANDED BY KANE

10 or More Captains To Lose Rank in System Change

His proposal followed news that a police shakeup, aimed principally at captains, is in the making.

Kane described the bureau as "functioning unsatisfactorily." He reported charges that the police have "countenanced" the rackets.

He commended the majority of the police bureau, but added that they are:

"...hampered by an inherited police system and by the acts of a minority who have brought the entire police system into disrepute."

WOULD BAN POLITICS

He asked that the police be divorced from politics.

Kane's move hardly will increase whatever admiration is held for him by Mayor McNair.

He asked that this investigation be directed by a Police Research Commission. And he planned to introduce in Council an ordinance setting up the commission.

PRACTICES FLAYED

COUNCIL BALKS SHIFT OF SMITH

City Council today tabled Mayor McNair's appointment of Public Safety Director Ralph E. Smith to the post of chairman on the Traction Conference Board.

The action was taken after opposition was voiced to the manner in which the appointment came to Council. The Mayor's communication said Smith was appointed to succeed Charles A. Finley, "removed." Councilman P. J. McArdle said Council's approval of Finley's removal was necessary.

The councilmen, by a vote of 7 to 1, also refused to confirm the appointment of Charles E. JJackson, Negro, as a police magistrate. Councilman William A. Magee voted alone for confirmation.

Schofield Named Budget Controller

Edward A. Schofield today was named budget controller by City Council. He succeeds Rboret J. Alderdice, resigned.

Council voted 5 to 3 for Schofield. Against the appointment were Councilmen Anderson, McArdle and Magee.

When Magee asked why the appointment was being "rushed" and wanted to know Schofield's qualifications Councilman Demmler replied he had common sense.

Communists Revealed As Plotting to Seize All Property in U. S.

This is the first of a series of news features showing the startling progress of industrial communism in the United States.

All of the facts to be presented in these articles were obtained from documents, publications of the Communist party and specific reports from secret agents.

By RALPH M. EASLEY
Chairman Executive Committee, The National Civic Federation
AS TOLD TO EARL REEVES

The Federal government has received information that the biggest Communist drive ever attempted in this country will begin early in May.

Communists boast of having instigated, participated in, or "encouraged" strikes involving "several hundreds of thousands of workers" last year. Their press predicts even a GREATER strike wave for 1934.

The Communist strike, demonstration and agitation program is on direct order from Moscow. Third International direction of Bolshevist propaganda and action in the United States is in full operation, despite the specific pledge by Litvinoff not to spread such propaganda which was a condition of recognition of Soviet Russia.

During the period of negotiation for recognition, and SINCE, the Moscow-led revolutionary activity in this country has been speeded rather than abandoned. Moscow demanded more "action"—and there has been more "action."

The "thesis of the XIII plenum of the Third International" issued in Moscow and printed in New York on January 13, 1934, lays down objectives for the Communist party

'Brain Truster' Probe Demanded By Congressman

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—A congressional investigation into charges by Dr. William A. Wirt, Gary, Ind., that presidential advisers were attempting to overthrow the government, was demanded in a resolution introduced in the House today by Representative Bulwinkle (Dem.), of North Carolina.

Bulwinkle is a member of the House Interstate Commerce Committee which has heard Wirt's charges voiced by James H. Rand, Jr., during a hearing on the stock market bill.

The resolution creates a committee of five representatives to to inquire into the truth or falsity of Wirt's allegations. The committee is ordered to report its findings to the House during the present session together with any recommendations it deems advisable.

MAY CALL TUGWELL

Democratic members were aroused over the statement that Dr. Wirt said was given by a "brain truster" to the effect that "President Roosevelt is only the Karensky of this revolution."

Critics of Dr. Rexford Tugwell, assistant secretary of agriculture, are expected to demand that he be called before the investigating committee.

Declaring that Dr. Wirt's charges "in effect allege treason," Speaker Rainey said that the Department of Justice should investigate them.

FAVORS INQUIRY

The Speaker expressed a willingness to permit an investigation if it could be limited to requiring Dr. Wirt to name the "brain trusters" with whom he talked.

Reds Excel in Zeal, Says Dr. Fosdick

NEW YORK, March 26.—(AP.)—Communists are more willing to sacrifice for their cause than Christians are for their religion, the Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick said yesterday in his sermon at Riverside Church.

Dr. Fosdick condemned Christians whose only thought is to make their religion as easy as possible. He said the most incredible of religious creeds is more credible than atheism.

1,500 N. Y. Teachers Held Mentally Unsound

International News Service.

NEW YORK, March 26.—Dr. Emil Altman, Chief Medical Examiner of the public schools, disclosed today that at least 1,500 teachers in the city's far-flung educational system are mentally unsound, some being so insane as to imperil the children they instruct.

Dr. Altman's astounding revelation was confirmed by Louis Marks, Chairman of the Board.

Dr. Harold E. Campbell, Superintendent of Schools, will act swiftly to wipe out the methods by which the Board of Retirement reinstates teachers who have suffered mental breakdowns, Dr. Altman predicted.

Already, he pointed out, the superintendent is planning measures which, with the approval of the Legislature, will prevent any teacher whose case history shows an unbalanced turn of mind from holding a position in the city schools. Dr. Altman explained:

"There are 36,000 public school teachers. Of these there are at least 1,500 whose record shows mental lapses. More crop up every week. When a principal reports the absence of a teacher, we conduct an investigation and in the case of a mental breakdown we recommend that teacher for retirement.

"The Board of Retirement acts, but as soon as a cure has been effected—no matter how temporary—the teacher is placed back on the Board of Education lists.

ROOSEVELT SON IN AUTO MISHAP

International News Service.

BOSTON, March 26.—While Mrs. Marion M. O'Leary, 60, of East Boston, was reported out of danger at Faulkner Hospital, police today conducted a routine questioning of Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., son of the President, and alleged operator of the automobile which struck the pedestrian in Jamaica Plains Saturday night.

Police and motor vehicle inspectors will report their findings to Registrar of Motor Vehicles Morgan T. Ryan.

Inmate Kills Guard, Slashes Two Others

DANNEMORA, N. Y., March 26.—(AP.)—A guard was killed and two others were wounded today by Vincent Amerigo, 29, of New York, inmate of Clinton prison, who drew a knife he had concealed in his clothing and slashed at the guards as he was being taken to the prison hospital for examination.

Daniel J. Nickerson, 45, of Montour Falls, N. Y., was killed, and Fred Beckett and Louis C. Hamilton were wounded. The convict had complained of feeling ill. The wounded guards are expected to recover.

Sleepy Clark Hears Life Pen Sentence

LIMA, O., March 26.—(AP.)—Russel Clark, looking a trifle sleepy, as usual, was brought before Common Pleas Judge E. E. Everett today and sentenced to serve a life term in Ohio Penitentiary for the murder of Sheriff Jess L. Sarber last October.

Clark is the third Dillinger gangster to appear before Judge Everett for the murder and delivery of John Dillinger from the jail here. Harry Pierpont and Charles Mackley were sentenced Saturday to die in the electric chair July 13.

LAWYER GETS JAIL, FINE FOR ATTACK

Witness Accusation Of Bribe Attempt Angers Zieger

Attorney Arthur I. Zeiger was fined $250 and sentenced to jail for 15 days by Judge Ralph H. Smith today for socking a witness on the nose.

The attack occurred in the lobby adjoining Judge Smith's chambers in Common Pleas Court.

Zeiger had become incensed when the witness, Koleman Kovacs, about 50, of Duquesne, had charged on the stand that the attorney had attempted to bribe him.

Zeiger, excited, was advised by Judge Smith to calm down. The attorney then asked for a five minute recess and the request was granted.

CUTS WITNESS' NOSE

Zeiger then walked back into the courtroom and announced he was ready to resume the hearing.

Kovacs followed him back into the courtroom carrying his glasses in his hand. The laceration on his nose was visible.

Judge Smith immediately cited Zeiger for contempt of court and went into a hearing.

Dr. Samuel Steffler was sworn and testified that Kovacs was suffering from a laceration and from shock.

"RESENTED INSULT"

In his own defense, Zeiger declared that he became incensed when his integrity was attacked.

When Judge Smith had pronounced sentence, Zeiger asked for bond but was turned down. He was taken to the Sheriff's office until jail commitment papers were prepared.

Kovacs was a witness for the Duquesne Trust Company in a suit naming Sigmund Benovitz and William and Pearl Katz, all of Duquesne, as defendants.

The suit was an equity proceeding involving alleged fraudulent conversion of real estate and was a continuation of a hearing of some months ago.

RELATES 'PHONE CALL

Kovacs, on the stand, was being cross-examined by Zeiger. During his testimony he charged that Zeiger had called him up and said:

"There's $500 for you left by Mr. Katz."

Kovacs testified:

"I regarded that as a bribe."

He then went on to say that he felt that he had kept Zeiger from being disbarred.

At that Zeiger flew into a rage, was told by Judge Smith to calm down and then asked for the recess which led to the socking of Kovacs.

Late this afternoon Zeiger had not yet been taken to jail. His counsel explained to Judge Smith that Zeiger's health was poor, so Judge Smith requested Dr. Charles Ellis, jail physician, to examine Zeiger in the Sheriff's office.

Ex-State Official Jailed for Contempt

NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 26.—(AP.)—Former Insurance Commissioner J. I. Reece today was sentenced to jail for 10 days and fined $50 for contempt of court, and Miss Hilda McCray, a defense witness at his grand larceny trial, also was committed to jail upon failure to make bond on a perjury charge.

Lem L. Reece, brother of J. I., also accused of perjury, was released on his own recognizance.

Board to Liquidate Banks Ended by RFC

WASHINGTON, March 26.—(INS.)—Abandonment of the deposit liquidation board set up by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to speed up loans for the purpose of paying depositors in closed banks was announced by Chairman Jesse H. Jones of the RFC today.

The Position of the Hearst Newspapers

FOR THE benefit of uninformed Congressmen, it may be stated that the Hearst papers have increased wages and shortened hours in full accordance with every request and requirement of the NRA.

But the Hearst papers have gone further and made increases in wages and decreases in hours in departments which the rules and regulations of the NRA do not affect.

This seemed an equitable thing to do, and although the Hearst papers were not required to do it, nor even requested to do it, they have made that voluntary and unsolicited contribution towards the plan and purpose of the NRA recovery program.

Second, the Hearst papers truly enough are not altogether democratic, but neither is the Democratic party.

Indeed, so far has the Democratic party of today departed from the principles of its great founder, that Thomas Jefferson has been sympathetically referred to as "The Forgotten Man."

THE SO-CALLED Democratic party of the present day is a conglomerate party, a composite party, a mixed and mongrel party.

It contains some Democrats and more demagogues, some state socialists, some Communists, and a sprinkling of Bolsheviks.

The party is mainly a party of malcontents, and if there are any 'ists, 'iks, or 'ogues in existence not included in the above list of fanatic and fantastic theorists, they doubtless nevertheless enjoy adequate representation in the hybrid Democratic party, and find sufficient bond of unity in envious opposition to anybody who possesses anything or who has accomplished anything.

NO, THE Hearst papers are not Democratic in the narrow party sense, nor again are they Republican.

In fact, they are not party organs of any kind.

They believe in the independence which Jefferson expressed in the great declaration of human rights and liberties which he conceived, and which the valor of our fathers wrought into a living force to inspire our people and regenerate the world.

They believe in Government by the Constitution of the United States and under the guaranties of liberty and opportunity and impartial justice which that instrument contains.

They do not believe in any radical departure from the spirit of the Constitution.

They do not believe in limitations upon liberty, restrictions upon opportunity, modifications of qualifications of essential justice and equality before the law.

They do not believe in any invasion of the inherent or inherited rights of the free citizens of this Republic.

They believe in American institutions and in the American system of government, which have been tried and proven by the power and by the progress and by the peacefulness and happiness and by the splendid success of this greatest of all nations upon the face of God's globe.

They do not believe in appropriating fragments of impractical policy picked up from the political scrap heaps of alien nations, less free, less fortunate, less progressive and less successful than our own.

They do not believe in so-called innovations which are actually as old as the history of human failure.

THE HEARST papers believe in the elemental principles of Thomas Jefferson, founder of the Democratic party, and in the almost identical principles of Abraham Lincoln, disciple of Jefferson and founder of the Republican party; and the Hearst papers hold as their guiding policy in the honorable practice of the profession of independent journalism, Lincoln's injunction to support any man when he is right and oppose him when he is wrong.

If that be party treason, make the most of it.

STRIKE PERIL LIFTED BY PRESIDENT

Workers Clinch Right To Free Choice of Union Spokesmen

WASHINGTON, March 26.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt looks for a new order in the relations between the working man and his employer as a result of his eleventh-hour settlement of the controversy that threatened a general strike in the automobile industry.

He and Gen. Hugh S. Johnson obtained an agreement from executives and labor leaders last night after weeks of exhausting negotiations. It established representation for all employes of dealing with management, while extending fresh safeguards to all unions against intimidation or interference.

The President said:

"It is my hope that this system may develop into a kind of works council in industry in which all groups of employes, whatever may be their choice of organization or form of representation, may participate in joint conference with their employers."

He hailed this as basis for a more comprehensive, adequate and equitable system of relations than ever has existed in a large industry.

M'CLURE FREED IN RUM PLOT

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, March 26.—The United States District Court of Appeals today issued an order freeing State Senator John J. McClure and 58 other defendants convicted of engaging in the huge Delaware County liquor conspiracy.

McClure, powerful Republican leader of Delaware County, had been sentenced to serve 18 months in prison and to pay a fine of $10,000.

The State Senator's appeal, as well as the appeals of the other defendants, was based primarily on the contention that District Judge George A. Welsh, who presided at the lengthy trial, failed to give the defendants a fair hearing.

The defense later presented a petition for outright dismissal of the case based on recent rulings of the United States Supreme Court voiding all pending liquor prosecutions because of the repeal of prohibition.

KANE DEMANDS POLICE PROBE AS SHAKEUP LOOMS

HIGHERUPS DUE TO LOSE RANK BY CHANGES

Commission Sought To Divorce Bureau From Politics

every phase of police activity . . .

"The phrase 'for the good of the service' (used in discharging men) shall no longer be used. The superintendent of police should be required to furnish to this commission a 'bill of particulars' setting forth his reasons for each dismissal, promotion, demotion or transfer . . .

"A weekly report should be issued by the superintendent showing whether crime is increasing or decreasing . . .

"It has been charged that certain officials have suppressed lawful assemblages and interfered with civil right of the people . . ."

STUDY SUGGESTED

Kane suggested the commission be instructed:

"To determine whether the friendly relations and association of some police with other persons again the public interest exists.

"To investigate the unlawful use of police during political campaigns and the coercion and intimidation of voters, workers and watchers on election days.

"To investigate the activities of police with professional bondsmen and unethical lawyers.

NOMINATES LEADERS

Kane suggested a commission of five persons, to serve without salary—one social worker, one former police officer, one educator and two others.

He nominated such types as Dr. Elmer D. Graper, of Pitt; Dr. Thomas S. Baker, president of Carnegie Tech; Dr. James J. Callahan, president of Duquesne University; Mrs. Anna Heidman, of Irene Kaufmann Settlement; Mrs. Mary Burnett, of Carnegie Tech; Joseph Racciappi, of Soho Settlement House; Gen. Adelbert Cronkhite, and Harry Bastow, of the Allied Boards of Trade.

It was probably just a coincidence that Kane revealed his plans shortly after news of a police shakeup by Supt. Ben R. Marshall became known—a shakeup, incidentally, being arranged without Public Safety Director Ralph E. Smith's advice.

Ten or more captains will lose their rank. Some will be sent back to beats.

A dozen or more lieutenants and patrolmen will be transferred.

BUDGET BLAMED

Some of these changes are called for in the new city budget, which probably will be signed by Mayor McNair this week.

The budget calls for a return to the old inspector system, with the elimination of all captaincies.

Nine inspectors will be named and 14 captains' jobs eliminated. But it was learned that probably not more than two of the present captains will be given inspectorships. These two may be John Schnurr and Anthony Block. The new budget calls for salary increases for the inspectors.

There will be no wholesale firing in the shakeup, which will be announced Friday and effective Sunday.

SCANS POLICE LIST

Supt. Marshall spent four hours in his office yesterday going over the police personnel lists with critical eye. Absent was Safety Director Smith, whose own shakeup list, formulated two weeks ago, is being ignored.

In the new deal Smith is still slated to be replaced by Col. W. R. Dunlap, Director of Supplies.

A friend of the Mayor's said these transfers are being delayed until McNair finds a worthy successor to Dunlap as Supplies Director.

Another City Hall rumor today was that City Assessor O. B. Hannon would be discharged. This the Mayor would not confirm or deny.

FRANCE TENSE AFTER RIOTS

International News Service.

PARIS, March 26.—With serious political riots breaking out in two widely-separated parts of provincial France within just a few hours after Premier Gaston Doumergue's nation-wide warning regarding the grave danger of a "civil war," the country was tense today as radicals planned further demonstrations likely to lead to disorder.

In Tours, where more than a score were hurt last night in rioting and street fighting between Rightists and Leftists and police, utmost precautions were taken to prevent further trouble at a scheduled meeting tonight. Several score more were hurt at Toulon when Royalists and Socialists clashed following political meetings.

The government, meanwhile, was giving serious consideration to a united demand for constitutional reform submitted by a committee representing 3,500,000 war veterans.

The war veterans asked immediate dissolution of the Chamber of Deputies to be followed by a new election on the basis of proportional representation, with women being allowed to vote for the first time.

NAB 2 FOR CALL ON PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON, March 26.—(AP.)—Two uninvited White House visitors today were held at Gallinger Hospital here for mental observation.

Harry A. Yoder, 27, was stopped by White House policemen Saturday night when he attempted to slip in, saying he wanted to see the President.

Subdued only after a violent fight, Yoder was allowed to talk to Mrs. Roosevelt a few minutes before being taken to the hospital. The Chief Executive was attending a National Press Club dinner.

Dagobert E. Bransome, 21, of Bradley Beach, N. J., was placed under observation yesterday when he called at the executive mansion and requested that the President have the "brain trust" interview him. He said he could give answers to all the questions its members might ask.

ITALY INDORSES RULE OF DUCE

ROME, March 26.—(AP.)—More than 10,000,000 voters registered their approval of Premier Mussolini and his Fascist regime in Sunday's elections.

With all returns in, only 15,265 contrary votes were recorded in the balloting on the 400 government-selected candidates—headed by Il Duce—for the Twenty-ninth Chamber of Deputies. Of 10,433,536 electors registered, 10,041,997 voted, a percentage of 96.25.

There was no opposition list of candidates, but electors had the right to accept or reject the official selections. Many provinces showed no contrary vote. The province of Forli, Mussolini's old bailiwick, cast only three contrary votes in 105,585.

Official spokesmen described the balloting as a plebiscite to show the nation's faith in Mussolini and to ratify his policy in foreign as well as domestic affairs.

The election passed without incident. Not a fight was recorded anywhere in the kingdom.

STATE LINKED IN RUM RACKET

Charges that state liquor enforcement agents have a "racket" in collecting fees were made today in Central Police Court by City Detective George Brubach.

Objecting before Magistrate J. W. McGowan to turning over of two liquor cases to the Commonwealth agencies for prosecution, Brubach said:

"The state men have a racket and we are after rackets. They get the credit and the witness fees and we never hear of the cases. In arrests we made we were never notified when the cases were on trial."

Denouncing these charges as "lies," W. H. Beachy, head of the Beverage Tax Division, declared:

"Not a single man working out of this office draws a witness fee before aldermen, justices of the peace or the court. I'm quite convinced the man making the charges fully knows the meaning of the word 'racket' himself."

Brubach made his charges at the arraignment on moonshine charges of Charles Sansbury, 33, and Mrs Anna Impilliccieri. Both were held for court.

U. S. Starts Probe Of Fire Killing 17

LYNCHBURG, Va., March 26.—(AP.)—A sweeping investigation of the transient bureau fire was launched by federal officials today as the death list grew overnight to 17. Meanwhile 22 of the approximately 70 injured men were released from the hospitals.

Among other things, officials are said to be investigating the possibility that too many men were crowded in the dormitories.

BAN BOX 'FIXER' SPIRITED AWAY

The identity of the woman who attempted to fix the jury in the Ban Box bombing case is known, but she has been spirited away, County Detective Frank Ritz said today at a hearing for the woman's alleged co-conspirator.

At the hearing before Alderman Andrew M. Maloney, Charles J. Chancel, of 114 Second street, Trafford City, was held for court on two charges of embracery and one of conspiracy. He was remanded to jail in default of $4,000 bond.

The woman and Chancel are alleged to have approached two women jurors in the trial of Joseph Rosa, accused of the Ban Box bombing, and promised to pay the jurors if they held out for Rosa's acquittal.

Ritz testified the woman left her home in McKeesport the night the jurors were approached and has not returned. A mistrial was declared in Rosa's trial after the "fix" attempt was exposed.

PAY RISE VOTED MILLION U. S. EMPLOYES

10 Per Cent Reduction Will Be Restored; Vet Issue Up

BULLETIN.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—(AP.)—The Senate today concurred in the less liberal veterans' benefits voted by the House but added a clarifying amendment which requires House approval before the controverted independent offices bill may be sent to the White House.

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—A million government employes were assured of regaining two-thirds of Uncle Sam's pay cut today when the Senate approved the House program on pay restoration. The vote was 59 to 19.

The House proposal eliminated one-third of the 15 per cent pay cut as of February 1 and another third as of July 1. The President was authoried to eliminate the final third whenever he felt conditions justified restoration of full pay.

The agreement was reached when the Senate voted to concur in the House pay amendment to the independent offices appropriation bill. Senator McCarran (Dem.), of Nevada, who led the fight for full pay restoration, made the motion to concur. He said:

"I am not yielding my view that the best way to increase employment and encourage industry is for the greatest employer in America to put its labor back on a reasonable wage scale. But I believe two-thirds of a loaf is better than no bread at all."

With the pay issue settled, Senator Brynes (Dem.), of South Carolina, administration leader, moved to concur in the House's program for liberalizing benefits to veterans of all wars. He appealed to the Senate to abandon its own more liberal program, and in private conversations intimated President Roosevelt would veto the House program because it restored presumptively disabled World War veterans to the compensation rolls. His motion rather surprised senators.

Senator Cutting (Rep.), of New Mexica, and Senator Steiwer (Rep.), of Oregon, opposed it. As leaders of the veterans' bloc, they said the veterans' program could be compromised if again sent to conference.

SNELL ATTACKS TARIFF BILL

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—In the most savage criticism he has delivered since the Roosevelt administration assumed power, Representative B. H. Snell of New York, Republican House leader, flayed the tariff bargaining bill today in a House speech in which he characterized Congress as "supine, spineless and sycophantic."

He branded the measure as "an affront to the Congress" and said it would "demoralize the operation of government."

Snell predicted the passage of the tariff bill will be followed by a request from the President for power to settle international debts to make the tariff policy effective.

AIR MAIL BILL GIVEN HOUSE APPROVAL

Roosevelt Signature On Measure Assured

WASHINGTON, March 26.—(AP.)—The House today approved the administration's temporary air mail bill, completing congressional action on the measure. It now goes to the White House.

There was no doubt on Capitol Hill that President Roosevelt would sign it.

Without a dissenting vote, the House adopted a conference report compromising its differences with the Senate.

In final form, the bill authorizes the Postmaste. General to use Army airplanes and equipment for mail carrying; requires that the planes be equipped for "safe" day and night flying and the pilots trained in the use of the equipment; allows payment of expenses incurred by men used in the mail service; permits the replacement and repair of planes lost or damaged in mail service and directs the Postmaster General to tell Congress on the first day of its next session how much it cost to have the Army carry the mails.

Meanwhile, Senator McCarran (Dem.), of Nevada, said he would introduce a new bill providing for return of air mail to private carriers, without competitive bidding, under the regulation of an interstate Air Commerce Commission.

No ban would be placed on companies which have been charged with combining to prevent competitive bidding, but they would be forced to free themselves from directorships interlocking with other aviation concerns. They would be permitted to hold stock in other companies as an investment, however.

TWA HEAD HITS AIR MAIL BILL

The air mail bill of Senators Kenneth McKellar and Hugo L. Black is the worst display of partisan envy and jealousy since the Civil War, Richard W. Robbins, president of Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., said here yesterday. He accused the Senators of attempting to wreck the air transportation industry, declaring:

"The latest McKellar-Black bill, designed to revise the air mail laws, completely disregards the mass of evidence presented in the last 10 days by a score of experts, including Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, against the former bill introduced by the same Senators.

"It clearly indicates, by the revengeful spirit in which it is drawn, that these sponsors will go to any length to complete the wrecking of an industry which they have so well started on its way to complete disintegration and collapse.

"Not since the days of the Civil War, when, after four years of bitter strife, hatreds still flamed to white heat on slightest provocation, has the nation seen such a display of partisan envy and jealousy in the desire to pass vindictive legislation."

Army Air Mail In Forced Landing

SANDUSKY, O., March 26.—(AP.)—An army air mail plane piloted by Lieut. L. P. Kleinoeder was brought down in a forced landing at the Vickery field, 12 miles west of here today when ice, forming on the wings during a rain and sleet storm, threatened danger. The plane was en route to Cleveland.

Hayes Asserts Foes Falsify Relief Cost

LOCK HAVEN, Pa., March 26.—(INS.)—Accusing opponents of the American Legion's four-point program for veterans' relief of issuing false figures on the cost, Edward A. Hayes, National Commander, asserted at a luncheon here today that a true estimate of the program would result in its quick enactment by Congress.

METAXA HURT, BRIDE KILLED

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., March 26.—(AP.)—Georges Metaxa, 34, New York stage star, was critically injured and his wife, Margaret Peggy, 19, was killed yesterday when their automobile overturned on a lonely ocean highway between here and Hollywood, Fla.

The Metaxas were returning to their hotel here from a Hollywood night club, at which the husband had been employed.

Mrs. Metaxa was apparently killed outright. While her body was on a train en route to New York, Metaxa remained ignorant of her death.

The crash was the second in which they had figured since their marriage last September. On September 21, 15 days after they were married at Greenwich, Conn., Mrs. Metaxa was hurt and her husband and two friends were bruised in a crash. The bride, who was the former Margaret M. Stafford, daughter of a socially prominent New York family, spent two days in a hospital.

Their marriage climaxed a romance that began a year ago, when Miss Stafford heard Metaxa sing at the Embassy Club.

The students went on strike last Wednesday after the School Board had terminated all teaching contracts.

Pinchot Again Demands U. S. Cash for Relief

International News Service.

HARRISBURG, March 26.—Gov. Gifford Pinchot today renewed his demand for greater federal relief for the unemployed.

In a lengthy statement issued at Long Key, Fla., where he is recuperating from an attack of shingles, the Governor declared that Pennsylvania cannot produce "out of a hat" the $65,000,000 or $75,000,000 which it would be called upon to provide between April 1, 1934, and February 1, 1935, under the new federal emergency relief works program.

The Governor charged that while in the past year Pennsylvania taxpayers were providing 45 and 50 cents out of every dollar spent in the state for relief, the Federal Emergency Relief Administration at Washington paid directly about 95 cents out of every dollar spent for similar purposes in Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Texas and West Virginia.

Under the new national program which is scheduled to replace the CWA on April 1, expenditures of between $150,000,000 and $170,000,000 are planned for Pennsylvania, according to the Governor. Of this amount, Pennsylvania would be required to pay half and it was to this provision that the Governor objected. He asserted:

"The new program must be financed by federal funds and not half by the state and half by the federal government as at present proposed.

"Clearly it is impossible for Pennsylvania to put up the half of any such sum between now and February 1. Neither is it conceivable that a special session of the Legislature would or could do so.

"If Pennsylvania could borrow as New York can, the situation would be different. But, our constitution prevents."

Dr. Wirt to Uphold 'Brain Trust' Charges

GARY, Ind., March 26.—(INS.)—Dr. William A. Wirt today renewed his charges of radicalism hurled at the administration 'brain trust" and said he would gladly appear before a congressional committee to amplify the statement that certain of President Roosevelt's advisers are plotting revolution.

Informed that congressional leaders were planning to call him before a special committee to substantiate the charges, the superintendent of schools said:

"That's fine. That is exactly the sort of inquiry the country is entitled to, and not one by a standing committee, where the possibilities of political pressure are greater. I stand ready to leave on the first train when the summons comes."

Dr. Wirt has promised to name the "plotters" if summoned.

WELCOMES PROBE

Passage of certain "new deal" legislation now pending will mean that the next Congress will be, in effect, "little more than a figurehead," Dr. Wirt charged. He declared:

"Only by taking the lid completely off and digging into all the evidence at hand regarding the activities of the 'brain trust' all along the line can the whole truth be gained.

"There is not much time in which to act if the wreckers are to be forestalled in their unpatriotic designs. They are planning to complete the job of putting over their program within the next two months. Their dangerous, revolutionary bills are now in Congress, waiting to be pushed across and written into the federal statutes.

WITHHOLDS NAMES

"That fact was made plain at the recent code hearing, when it was brought out that the temporary legislation under which the nation's business and industrial enterprises have been staggering was to be made permanent.

"If that is done within the next two months it will not matter very much whom the people elect to Congress next fall. There won't be much left for a congressman to do but draw his pay.

"Therefore, I and my associates do not dare to take a chance of distracting public attention from Congress and the general deplorable situation deliberately created by the 'brain trusters,' misadvisers and betrayers of the President by mentioning the names of those who boasted to me of their intentions.

"We are telling everybody that we are not going to give out the names until we are convinced that the welfare of the country demands it."

Newsreel 'Gag' Program Laid to Administration

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—The administration is planning shortly to sponsor legislation for a federal newsreel censorship, Senator Schall (Rep.), of Minnesota, declared yesterday.

If successful in this move, he predicted, certain advisers of the administration will endeavor to impose censorship of the press as well. Said Senator Schall:

"Propaganda has been flooding my office in favor of a federal newsreel censorship. The source of this propoganda indicates certain forces in the administration are behind it.

"It is easy to understand why this administration is bent on such censorship. Those who saw or heard the newsreel of Col. Lindbergh's testimony on the air mail contract cancellations will never forget his final statement.

"Col. Lindbergh said: 'All I know is that to condemn people without a trial is not American.'

Senator Schall alluded to the current imposition of a newsreel censorship by Chicago's Mayor, Edward J. Kelly. The Chicago Herald and Examiner deserves acclaim for fighting that censorship, he said, adding:

"It is but one step from censorship of newsreels to censorship of the press. The newspapers should block every attempt to suppress free speech."

M'DONALD HONOR STUDENT AT COLUMBIA VANISHES

DISAPPEARANCE OF BOY BARES ELOPEMENT

Bride Here Unable To Help Solve Mystery

The missing youth is James A. Rumbaugh, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Rumbaugh, of McDonald. He entered Columbia last fall on a scholarship provided by the Columbia Alumni Association of Pittsburgh.

The girl with whom he eloped before he went to New York was Hazel McBeth, 23-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. McBeth, of McDonald.

According to university officials, Rumbaugh did not return to the campus following January examinations.

ABSENCE DISCOVERED

His absence was discovered in February when he failed to claim his scholarship, Nicholas McKnight, acting dean of Columbia, said, and communication with the youth's parents revealed he had not returned home.

In the meantime no report of his disappearance has been made to either New York or Pittsburgh authorities.

His young wife, who works in a Pittsburgh bank, hasn't heard from him since early February.

Members of the Rumbaugh family refuse to discuss the case but the former Miss McBeth said:

"I last heard from him around February 8. No, not a word since then."

She said she knew of no reason for his disappearance.

ATTORNEY'S VISIT

Following discovery of the youth's absence, his wife was visited by Attorney George W. Phillips, Jr., of New York, it was revealed. The nature of the conference was not disclosed.

According to McKnight, Rumbaugh told one of his classmates, who withdrew from school at the same time, that he was going to go away. McKnight said Rumbaugh had completed his examinations, was a good student and that there was no apparent reason for him to leave school.

Casting an air of mystery on the matter is the reported receipt of a postcard from Venezuela by one of Rumbaugh's friends.

Unsigned, it bore only a brief salutatory message, and is attributed to the missing youth. His wife said she had heard rumors of such a postcard, but was inclined to doubt the authenticity of the report.

'BOY SEEMED CHANGED'

Uninformed of her daughter's marriage to Rumbaugh, the girl's mother told of daily correspondence between the two prior to Christmas vacation and added:

"When he was home he didn't seem like the same boy, and after he went back he wrote to Hazel only about once a week."

Rumbaugh and Miss McBeth were married at Newell, W. Va., September 1, 1933, by the Rev. A. D. Eberhart.

Rumbaugh's disappearance date is set at about February 10 and reports of the amount of money he had at the time range from $175 to $1,000.

BABY UNHURT IN 3-STORY FALL

Donald LeDonne, 14 months, of 262 South Winebiddle avenue, is being held in the West Penn Hospital today for observation as a result of a fall from a third-floor window. He apparently was uninjured.

John Collinger, of 231 Taylor street, a relative, passing in an automobile, saw what he thought a bundle of clothes fall from the window to the ground. When he investigated he found the baby on his face in the mud.

Dr. S. M. Black examined the baby but could find no cuts or bruises.

GANDHI NABOB, SAYS NILA

International News Service.

NEW YORK, March 26.—(INS.)—Contrary to popular belief, Mahatma Gandhi eats the best of food, sleeps on a large bed and is attended by several servants, his former disciple, Nila Cram Cook, declared today.

The former Davenport (Ia.) girl, who attracted international attention by renouncing western ways and entering Gandhi's seminary only to be asked to leave because of her unusual behavior, said:

"This stuff about Gandhi drinking nothing but goat's milk and orange juice is ridiculous.

"He eats the best food in India. He doesn't eat any meat, but he eats specially grown fruits and vegetables. And he doesn't sleep on any hard bed, either. He sleeps on a wide soft bed with plenty of attendants bringing him everything he wants."

SEEKING REST, SAYS HEPBURN

International News Service.

PARIS, March 26.—Night clubs — shopping — neither of these brought Katharine Hepburn, American star of the films, to Paris, she told International News Service today. She came only for a rest. She said:

"I am telling you straight, I am trying to get a rest. I am not even shopping or going to night clubs.

"I might go to the Riviera in the next few days or to London. I have not decided.

"Paris is always beautiful to me and that is the only reason I am here. Any other rumors regarding my plans are false. Yep, absolutely!"

Miss Hepburn arrived Saturday aboard the liner Paris and avoided all who sought to inquire concerning her presence in Paris or her plans. She created somewhat of a stir during the trans-Atlantic voyage by wearing white flannel trousers and a sweater during her deck promenades.

INSULL DEALS WITH 5 NATIONS

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service.

ATHENS, March 26. —Five countries are ready to receive Samuel Insull, fugitive Chicago financier, his attorney, George Xiros, told International News Service today. Xiros said:

"We are negotiating with five countries which are ready to accept Insull. We have not decided which country to send him to. That depends upon which country gives the best guarantees.

"Obviously we cannot reveal the names of these countries now."

Xiros sharply criticized the United States government for alleged interference with efforts of Mrs. Insull to obtain a British passport visa. He said:

"We cannot understand a powerful nation like America adopting such a policy against an innocent woman in order to force her husband to surrender.

"If we fail to get a visa we plan to take the issue before Department 2, of the League of Nations at Geneva, which deals with passport questions."

Xiros confirmed that the dingy Greek freighter, Maiotis, which Insull chartered for his flight from Athens on the eve of his deportation by Greek authorities, is in the vicinity of the Island of Rhodes, about 250 miles southwest of Athens.

Warrant for Insull Arrives in Canada

TORONTO, March 26.—(AP.)—A warrant for the extradition of Martin J. Insull, former Chicago utilities operator, arrived here today from the United States, shortly after a warrant of surrender was signed.

DOCTOR FINDS HEX SLAYER INSANE

Report Makes Youth Laugh, Considers Self Sane

International News Service.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., March 26.—Doctors, steeped in the science of psychiatry, may find Albert Shinsky the possessor of a deranged mentality, but in his own mind the youthful "hex" slayer today was firmly convinced of his sanity.

Ironically enough, he joked at the findings of Dr. Walter G. Bowers, alienist and superintendent of the Schuylkill County Hospital for the Insane, whose report may save Shinsky from the electric chair for the slaying of Susan Mummey, 64-year-old widow he was convinced had "hexed" or bewitched him.

Dr. Bowers declared Shinsky was suffering from dementia praecox, a form of insanity characterized by hallucinations and delusions.

MAY HOLD HEARING

He recommended appointment of a lunacy commission in order to commit him to the state hospital for the insane at Fairview. Asked about the physician's two-hour examination of him last night, Shinsky this morning replied:

"Oh, he asked a lot of funny questions."

The 24-year-old jitney driver was asked what his reaction would be if he were found insane. He laughed:

"That's a good one. I'm okay. Everything is swell now. I feel swell.

"I don't have any more dreams now that old 'Sus' Mummey is dead."

GIRL OFFERS WAGES

Selina Bernstel, his 20-year-old sweetheart, has offered the $9 a week she earns in a shirt factory to help pay for lawyers. She was to have married Shinsky on Easter Monday, and has announced she will "stand by" her sweetheart.

Selina was inclined to be philosophical and resigned to the fate that probably will separate her forever from Albert's arms. She sighed:

"Of course, he's a brain doctor and if he says Albert is crazy, he ought to know. But whether he's crazy or not, I'll stick by him."

CITES BIBLE STORY

Warden William Watson revealed that Shinsky sought to find justification for his act in the Bible. The warden said Shinsky pointed out to him several sections in the Bible where the sacrifice of human life as deemed necessary.

The warden said:

"He told me the old Bible story about how Abraham was called upon to sacrifice his son, Isaac, as showing that it was necessary to take a human life to break curses and spells."

75 HOMES FALL IN STORM

NEW ORLEANS, March 26.—(AP.)—A thunder squall of great intensity blew down at least 75 houses in a five-block area in the Edgewood section of New Orleans today.

At least a dozen injured persons had been brought out of the wreckage. A baby was reported imprisoned, dead or alive, under a house.

The wind struck suddenly with terrific force, residents said. Suddenly it turned dark as midnight, lights went out and roaring, whistling, crashing noises followed. The blow had come and gone in two minutes but left destruction, turmoil and terror in its wake

As the wind struck, the screams of horrified men, women and children were heard and when the policemen and firemen arrived, families dazed from fright, were wandering about the debris in a heavy downpour of rain.

Utter confusion prevailed over the area and accurate information was difficult to obtain.

Believed Drowned On Eve of Taking Job

McKeesport police today were searching the Monongahela River for the body of a man who disappeared on the eve of taking his first full-time job in several months. The coat, hat and empty wallet of William John, 30, of 1700 Abraham street, McKeesport, were found early this morning at the Duquesne-Riverton bridge.

Neighbors Rescue Six Overcome by Gas Fumes

Baby's Cries Awaken Mother as Family Faces Death

Five members of the family of William Feldman and a maid were overcome by gas fumes in the Feldman home at 756 Cherokee street, Hill district, this morning, and were saved from death by prompt first aid treatment of neighbors.

The maid, Mrs. Mary Rope, 61, is in Passavant Hospital in a critical condition.

The cries of Mrs. Annette Feldman's 17-months-old baby Irene awakened her at 6:30 a. m. Feeling ill, Mrs. Feldman staggered to the front porch of the dwelling, where she collapsed.

OTHERS IN BED

Passersby, noticing Mrs. Feldman fall, summonded neighbors, Alfred and George Golden, of 758 Cherokee street. They carried Mrs. Feldman into the house and there found the other members of the family unconscious in their beds. They were the father, William Feldman; a son, Daniel, 14; a daughter, Shirley, 10, and the baby, Irene.

The maid was found unconscious in the basement, where she had been doing the family washing.

Alfred Golden, psychologist at the county workhouse and former life guard at Irene Kaufmann Settlement, directed the work of artificial respiration while calls were sent for police and physicians.

MAID IN HOSPITAL

All the victims were revived in the home with the exception of the maid and she was ordered rushed to Passavant Hospital by Dr. J. C. Fleming, who had answered a call for aid.

An investigation showed that the gas fumes had escaped from a gas heater in the basement. It was determined that water had boiled over from a clothes basin and had extinguished the flames of the heater, permitting the gas to escape and seep through the house.

The maid, who was doing the washing, was believed to have been overcome almost immediately.

BEAUTY HUNTED IN SLAYING

International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, March 26.—Search for a beautiful woman was in progress today following the finding of the bullet-riddled body of Eric D. Madison, 40, motion picture employe, in his exclusive Toluca Lake district apartment.

The woman sought for questioning was his 33-year-old brunet widow, who was seen to leave the apartment eight hours after shots were heard.

Police said Mrs. Madison apparently had kept a lone vigil near the body of her husband during the night.

GORDON WIDOW DIES IN EUROPE

Word was received here today of the death of Mrs. Mary Edwards Boorum Gordon, of 5250 Wilkins avenue, at Lausanne, Switzerland, yesterday.

Mrs. Gordon had spent the last three years visiting Italy and Switzerland, and had intended to return to Pittsburgh next month. She was the widow of George B. Gordon, prominent Pittsburgh attorney, who died in 1927.

The body will be brought to Pittsburgh for funeral services and burial.

PARROT FEVER DANGER PAST IN TRIANGLE

City Health Director Gives Clean Bill to Downtown Stores

Dr. Ray P. Moyer, health director, today gave Pittsburgh's downtown district a clean bill of health in eradication of the recent epidemic of psittacosis, popularly known as parrot fever.

In a statement issued for the Health Department, Dr. Moyer said:

"I would say it is safe for anyone to go anywhere in the downtown district without danger of being infected with psittacosis. The risk that remains would be in private homes which might have picked up birds from the suspected shipments. All commercial birds, so far as this department can ascertain, have been destroyed."

There are still six birds, it was explained, from one store, which were sold to individuals and have not been definitely traced. These birds came from one of the suspected shipments and were exposed to infection, although they may not have been infected.

Doctors believe the safest precaution would be for the owners to destroy these birds.

At the stores themselves, the use of antiseptics and other measures has, in Dr. Moyer's opinion, killed any germs of infection there.

While Dr. Moyer has ordered an autopsy on the body of a woman who died yesterday, possibly from psittacosis, the health director explained this case had been under observation since March 10 and is not a newly discovered one.

JEAN NASH SON GOES ON TRIAL

NEW YORK, March 26.—(AP.)—The first trial for murder on the high seas in the southern district of New York since 1928 got under way today in the court of Federal Judge Robert A. Inch, where Andrew Donaldson Kirwan, 23-year-old son of the former Jean Nash, is accused.

Kirwan's mother, now Mme. Paul Dubonnet, of Paris, known as the best dressed woman in Europe, took a seat at the counsel table. She wore a black beret, trimmed in white, and a sable coat.

Mme. Dubonnet, who arrived from Paris last week to attend the trial, said today that she would testify her son could not possibly have stabbed a fellow passenger to death aboard the liner President Garfield, as he is charged.

Kirwan, his mother said, has suffered a nervous malady since birth that makes him so weak he cannot write, let alone drive a knife into a man's body.

Kirwan is accused of stabbing Gilliam Sessoms, a Panama Canal official, when they became involved in a religious controversy while drinking gin.

ENGINE TRAPS GIRL ON SPAN

CONCORD, Mass., March 26.—(AP.)—Lilian Hansen, 13, found herself half-way across a trestle yesterday with a train bearing down on her. She started to run for it, but stumbled and fell across the ties.

Frantically she rolled to the edge of trestle, gripped a projecting tie and hung over the swirling waters of the Concord River, swelled by spring freshets.

A few seconds later the racing tons of steel roared over her head. A fear-gripped engineer leaned from the cab of the locomotive, applying the brakes with all the pressure possible.

Byron Fish, 18, a high school football player, ran across the trestle and hoisted the girl to safety.

West View Man Dies At Wheel of Auto

Yesterday Holt complained of not feeling well, and was treated by a physician for indigestion, police learned. Later he felt better and members of his family decided to take a ride. The Coroner's office ordered a carbon monoxide test taken, although a doctor had reported death due to heart ailment.

Julian, Suicide, Leaves Adventure Biography

International News Service.

SHANGHAI, March 26.—An unfinished manuscript describing his life's adventures was found today among the effects of C. C. Julian, ex-millionaire oil magnate of Oklahoma and California, who ended his life by taking poison in a Shanghai hotel.

The manuscript detailed Julian's financial rise in the United States and his flight to Shanghai last year after defaulting $25,000 bail in Oklahoma and thereby evading indictments charging fraud in his oil companies.

The law passed by the American Congress last week to facilitate the extradition of Samuel Insull from Europe, was blamed by Julian's friends as indirectly responsible for his suicide yesterday.

An official cause of Julian's death was to be sought in an inquest today by British authorities of the International Settlement.

Julian, it was revealed, had been penniless for several months, and had run up large bills at several hotels.

Miss Leonora Levy, Julian's confidential secretary, who was found in Julian's hotel suffering from a dose of similar poison a short time after he was taken to the hospital, will recover, doctors said.

Start Giant Telescope To Bare Sky's Secrets

International News Service.

CORNING, N. Y., March 26.—Twenty tons of molten glass sizzled at a temperature of 2,400 degrees Fahrenheit in an annealing oven here today.

A few years from now it will be the largest telescope mirrow in the world, a massive instrument expected to increase man's knowledge of the physical heavens to an amazing extent.

In about 10 months, the molten glass will be removed from the annealing oven to be polished and ground into a telescope mirror 17 feet in diameter. Twice the diameter of the Mount Wilson Observatory telescope, now the world's largest, the new instrument is expected to have about 10 times the light-gathering power and should open up for study vast recesses of the sky—perhaps entire universes — upon which the eyes of men have never rested.

While a group of distinguished scientists looked on, the job of pouring the mirrow was carried out here yesterday. The glass was removed in successive ladles from white-heated furnaces to the mold from which the mirror will derive its shape in approximately 13 hours.

PEACE IN AUTO WAR WON BY ROOSEVELT

either side. It will sit in Detroit and there settle all questions of employe representation, including discharges and claims of discrimination.

The name of Richard E. Byrd, of Pontiac, Mich., was handed to the President by spokesmen of the automobile workers as their nominee to represent labor on the three-man mediation board.

The motor car executives had several men in mind as their representative, but put off a definite choice until later today. Johnson also had several in mind to serve as the third or neutral member.

Decisions of this board shall be final, and it shall have access to all payrolls and union lists. On the basis of these it shall apportion the number of employe representatives in each plant—American Federation of Labor local, company union or other union—in ratio to the number of men belonging to each.

The union lists need not be disclosed to the management except on order of the President himself, but unless they are, union men cannot bring claims of discrimination.

LAY-OFF AGREEMENT

In laying off men, when the high production period ends, the companies are pledged to consider "human relationships" first—to protect the jobs of married men with families above all and then take seniority, individual skill and efficient service as guides. Past that point, they may not lay off a greater proportion of men belonging to outside unions than of other employes.

"Outside union employes" are defined as paid-up members in good standing "or anyone legally obligated to pay up."

This agreement was accepted by both sides with expressions of satisfaction. Said Alvan Macauley, president of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce:

"We are very grateful to the President and to Gen. Johnson that they have been able to find a settlement in accord with the principles in which we believe."

"This means that while the workers gained the principal point for which they were contending—strict observance of Section 7 A of the recovery act—the automobile manufacturers have simply given assurance of their willingness to obey the law. There is no basis for a claim*that either has gained a victory over the other."

The solution of the automobile deadlock lifted from the administration one of its greatest industrial worries. Had the strike occurred, officials feared, there would have been no stopping industrial discord from spreading to other fields in enough volume to nullify much of what has been done toward recovery.

RETURN TO PLANTS

The contesting groups of the automobile industry started back for the Michigan production points last night and this morning to get the agreement under way.

The labor men had to straighten out some last-minute difficulties in the field. At Flint one plant had voted to strike this morning before hearing of the final outcome, and Green had to get their leaders to countermand the order.

Although giving every appearance of being well pleased, labor leaders in the agreement receded considerably from their original demands.

Originally they wanted majority rule in collective bargaining and immediate elections to determine the will of the workers. A list of other demands was appended.

The manufacturers had insisted that the union lists had to be shown to them before they would receive the leaders. They receded on this point but the qualification on discrimination cases was believed to make it virtually essential to labor to turn over the lists.

During the negotiations, labor men had expressed fear such lists would be used to discriminate against union men. Asked last night if he thought there might still be danger of that, Green said:

"This is an absolute guarantee that no discrimination because of membership in unions will be used."

N. Y. CAB STRIKE SIFTED BY JURY

NEW YORK, March 26.—(AP.)—Violence attending New York's strike of taxicab drivers was under investigation by a New York County grand jury today.

The probe was disclosed when the jury at the request of District Attorney William C. Dodge, was taken before Judge John J. Freschi and the court read to the jurors the law as to rioting and the duty of public officials to suppress riots. Dodge was the only Tammany candidate to win a major office in last year's election.

Meanwhile leaders of the strike went to City Hall in response to a summons from Mayor LaGuardia to explain last night's renewal of violencee.

The disorders broke out after striking drivers voted to reject a peace program worked out at City Hall with the Mayor Saturday. A dozen cabs were damaged by stones and lead pipes.

'War' Over, Roosevelt Will Now Go Fishing

WASHINGTON, March 26.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt, now that a load is off his mind, heeded the call of southern seas today.

Cheered by the settlement of the automobile trouble, he packed up to leave for Jacksonville, Fla., from where he expects to sail tomorrow night on a fishing cruise aboard the yacht Nourmahal, owned by Vincent Astor.

TEXT OF ROOSEVELT STATEMENT ON AUTO LABOR WAR SETTLEMENT

WASHINGTON, March 26.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt last night issued this statement detailing settlement of the automobile dispute:

After many days of conferring in regard to the principles of employment in the automobile industry the following statement covers the fundamentals:

1—Reduced to plain language Section 7A of NIRA means—

(a) Employes have the right to organize into group or groups.

(b) When such group or groups are organized they can choose representatives by free choice and such representatives must be received collectively and thereby seek to straighten out disputes and improve conditions of employment.

(c) Discrimination against employes because of their labor affiliations, or for any other unfair or unjust reason is barred.

ROOSEVELT OFFER

A settlement and statement of procedure and principles is appended hereto.

It has been offered by me to, and has been accepted by, the representatives of the employes and the employers. It lives up to the principles of collective bargaining. I hope and believe that it opens up a chance for a square deal and fair treatment. It gives promise of sound industrial relations. It provides further for a board of three of which the chairman will be a neutral represent the government.

In actual practice details and machinery will of course have to be worked out on the basis of common sense and justice, but the big point is that this broad purpose can develop with a tribunal which can handle practically every problem in an equitable way.

PRINCIPLES OF SETTLEMENT

Settlement of the threatened automobile strike is based on the following principles:

1—The employers agree to bargain collectively with the freely chosen representatives of groups and not to discriminate in any way against any employe on the ground of his union labor affiliations.

2—If there be more than one group each bargaining committee shall have total membership pro rata to the number of men each member represents.

3—NRA to set up within 24 hours a board, responsible to the President of the United States, to sit in Detroit to pass on all questions of representation, discharge and discrimination. Decision of the board shall be final and binding on employer and employes. Such a board to have access to all payrolls and to all lists of claimed employe representation and such board will be composed of:

(A) A labor representative,
(B) An industry representative,
(C) A neutral.

In cases where no lists of employes claiming to be represented have been disclosed to the employer, there shall be no basis for a claim of discrimination. No such disclosure in a particular case shall be made without specific direction of the President.

NO 'FAVORITE' UNION

4—The government makes it clear that it favors no particular union or particular form of employe organization or representation. The government's only duty is to secure absolute choice without coercion, restraint or intimidation from any source.

5—The industry understands that in reduction or increases of force, such human relationships as married men with families shall come first and then seniority, individual skill and efficient service. After these factors have been considered, no greater proportion of outside union employes similarly situated shall be laid off than of other employes. By outside union employes is understood a paid-up member in good standing, or anyone legally obligated to pay up. An appeal shall lie in case of dispute on principles of Paragraph 5 to the board of three.

PRAISES BOTH SIDES

In all the hectic experience of NRA I have not seen more earnest and patriotic devotion than has been shown by both employers and employes in the automotive industry. They sat night and day for nearly two weeks without a single faltering or impatience. The result is one of the most encouraging incidents of the recovery program. It is a complete answer to those critics who have asserted that managers and employes cannot co-operate for the public good without domination by selfish interest.

In the settlement there is a framework for a new structure of industrial relations—a new basis of understanding between employers and employes. I would like you to know that in the settlement just reached in the automobile industry we have charted a new course in social engineering in the United States. It is my hope that out of this will come a new realization of the opportunities of capital and labor not only to compose their differences at the conference table and to recognize their respective rights and responsibilities, but also to establish a foundation on which they can co-operate in bettering the human relationships involved in any large industrial enterprise.

GREAT STEP FORWARD

It is peculiarly fitting that this great step forward should be taken in an industry whose employers and employes have contributed so consistently and so substantially to the industrial and economic development of this country in the last quarter century. Having pioneered in mechaical invention to a point where the whole world marvels at the perfection and economy of American motor cars and their widespread ownership by our citizens in every walk of life, this industry has indicated now its willingness to undertake a pioneer effort in human engineering on a basis never before attempted.

In the settlement just accomplished, two outstanding advances have been achieved. In the first place we have set forth a basis on which, for the first time in any large industry, a more comprehensive, a more adequate and a more equitable system of industrial relations may be built than ever before. It is my hope that this system may develop into a kind of works council in industry in which all groups of employes, whatever may be their choice of organization or form of representation, may participate in joint conferences with their employers, and I am assured by the industry that such is also their goal and wish.

RULE OF REDUCTIONS

In the second place, we have for the first time written into an industrial settlement a definite rule for the equitable handling of reductions and increases of forces. It would be ideal if employment in all occupations could be more generally stabilized, but in the absence of that much-desired situation, if we can establish a formula which gives weight to the human factors as well as

WAGNER BILL HELD SPUR TO DISORDERS

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—Asserting that labor had been accorded fair treatment, James A. Emery, general counsel of the National Association of Manufacturers, today declared that enactment of the Wagner permanent labor board bill would "excite irritation, resentment and bitterness in employment relations."

Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator, who was to have given his views on the bill to the Senate Labor Committee, did not appear. Tired out as result of his work in helping to settle the auto industry strike threat, he was resting at home.

Emery said:

"This bill will stimulate complaint, promote the interruption of employment, and deliberately undertakes by its definitions and operation to force employes into one form of labor organization—the union.

"It will secure to the union monopolistic control; assure it the unrestricted use of the strike, and thus confer the power to assess the public with the cost of sustaining a labor monopoly, maintained with federal aid, relieved of appropriate legal control and without corresponding responsibility for the acts of its agents."

Emery said that labor has been treated fairly and added:

"Within nine months more than 20,000,000 employes have received shorter hours, higher pay, better working conditions and with increased expense to every industry."

When Senator Wagner (Dem.), of New York, the bill's author, saw that Emery's testimony was being broadcast from the Senate Labor and Education Committee, he said:

"We regret that the broadcasting companies were not equally interested in the case of the bill's advocates."

Emery diverted from his prepared speech to assail taxicab drivers now on strike in New York. He said:

"If this bill becomes a law the employes would have to deal with these lawless men."

HOTEL STRIKERS PLAN MARCH

Determined to force a showdown, striking workers from the William Penn Hotel were preparing to march en masse on the Regional Labor Board this afternoon when it meets to consider the strike.

If this fails, the strikers will storm the hotel and take their jobs back, declared Harry Reich, strike organizer.

With Reich ruled out of today's conferences, the hotel management and the workers were continuing their efforts to reach an agreement. Reports from both sides indicated there was little hope they would get together before the Labor Board meeting late today.

The strikers also wired Senator Robert F. Wagner, of the National Labor Board, asking for a showdown.

A. C. Jewett, executive secretary, said the matter was being brought back to the board on application of the hotel management.

the economic, social and organizational factors in relieving the hardship of seasonal layoff, we shall have accomplished a great deal. My view, and that of both employes and employers, is that we have measurably done so in this settlement.

This is not a one-sided statute and organizations of employes seeking to exercise their representative rights cannot at the same time be unmindful of their responsibilities.

Industry's obligations are clearly set forth and its responsibilities are established. It is not too much to expect organizations of employes to observe the same ethical and moral responsibilities even though they are not specifically prescribed by the statute. Only in this way can industry and its workers go forward with a united front in their assault on depression and gain for both the desired benefits of continually better times.

Gas and Clubs Used On Textile Pickets

CLEVELAND, March 26.—(AP.)—Two men and a woman were arrested by police who loosed tear gas bombs at the plant of the Cleveland Worsted Mills Company today to quell disorders which broke out along a picket line of striking workers.

First fighting broke out as pickets attempted to halt workers who were entering the plant. Four private police swung clubs in a second attempt to aid about 50 workers to pass the pickets, but the line held.

Police Arrest 13 In Braddock Raid

A hearing was to be held today before Burgess Fred Seim for 13 Negroes arrested yesterday when Braddock police, led by Capt. Thomas Meehan, raided two alleged disorderly houses.

Police discovered moonshine in a house at 1232 Washington avenue and a gambling outfit at 1131 Washington avenue, Braddock, they said. William Weir, Negro, was arrested, charged with being proprietor of both houses.

GREATEST COMMUNIST DRIVE IN U. S. PROMISED IN MAY

REDS FORECAST STRIKES WITH VIOLENCE

of the United States as follows:

"There is no way out of the revolutionary crisis of capitalism other than the one shown by the October revolution, via the overthrow of the exploiting classes by the proletariat, the confiscation of the banks, of the factories, the mines, transport, houses, the stocks of goods of the capitalists, the lands of the landlords, the church and the crown."

'Marching Orders' For Communism

Today this "thesis"—which constitutes the revolutionary program for the ensuing year for all Communist parties everywhere — has become "marching orders" forthe Communist party of America. The "Thirteenth Plenum" was the thirteenth formal meeting of the Third International.

Neither the American government nor the American public is aware of the extent of the Bolshevist organization, plan and activity within this country. We give the protection of the Constitution to a growing group whose then titular leaders told a congressional committee in 1930 that THE COMMUNIST'S SOLE ALLEGIANCE IS TO THE RED FLAG.

Communists deny their allegiance to the American flag—and therefore their citizenship under the Constitution which they attempt to destroy. We make NO INQUIRY WHATEVERD into their revolutionary activities.

This despite the fact that the OPENLY ANNOUNCED Communist objective is revolution—patterned after Russia's "Red October"—and the establishment of a Soviet government.

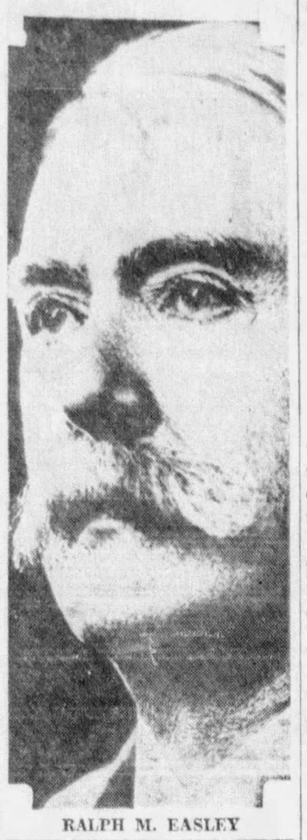
If a Communist comes into conflict with the law, instantly there spring to his defense a lawyer provided bythe International Labor Defense.

Secret Agents Withdrawn

The Civil Liberties Union convinced the federal government that it had NO right, under existing law, to keep revolutionists under surveillance. Eighty secret agents who had been keeping watch on seditious activities were withdrawn by the Department of Justice. Not a dollar is being spent by the government to obtain information necessary to our own protection.

Hence the machinery of revolt has been built without hindrance. It is of three types, as follows:

Writer



RALPH M. EASLEY

1—A vast network of Communist organizations, unions, newspapers, magazines—all duly "legalized."

2—A secret, under-cover network built alongside the above, the leaders of which, by Moscow instruction, avoid visible contact with the openly recognized Communist party.

3—A group of organizations of various types, not definitely Communist — but radical, or sympathetic with Communism. The activities of these is being directed by Communist cliques within each.

From this latter group, as a result of manipulated disaffection, there is constant recruitment to outright Communism—to revolution.

Behind "united fronts" of protest and agitation on various issues, alert and effective communistic minorities—TRAINED BY BOLSHEVIST HANDBOOKS ON THE TECHNIQUE OF REVOLT—work to spread disaffection, to set one non-Communist group against another, and to create disunion and chaotic conditions FAVORABLE TO BOLSHEVIST SEIZURE OF POWER.

Communist Groups Parallel Moscow

The writer has in his possesion many such handbooks.

The Communist and radical organizations sympathetic to Communism here are in direct parallel with those of the Third International of Moscow. Some of these, as identified before the Fish Committee of the House, while investigating Communism, follow:

MOSCOW INTERNATIONAL "TOOLS" IN U. S. A.

Communist Party.
Young Communist International.
Red Pioneers (youth).
Sovkino.
Profintern—Red International of Labor Unions.
International Red Aid.
Educational Workers' League.
Labor Sports Union.
League Against Imperialism.
Farmers and Peasants International.
International Union of Revolutionary Writers.
Communist Party, U. S. A.
Young Communist League.
Young Pioneers of America.
Amkino (movie propaganda).
Trade Union Unity League — 21 revolutionary unions.
International Labor Defense—at least 10 sections, 200 branches.
Educational Workers' League.
Labor Sports Union (144 clubs).
All-American Anti-Imperialist League.
United Farmers' League.
Workers' Cultural Federation—at least 200 clubs, 600 branches.

Among leading "mass organizations" through which the Communist party works are: Friends of the Soviet Union, International Workers Order—these two now being the most important, with current drives on to vastly expand their membership.

Moscow Instructions Hailed As 'Orders'

For the Communist organizations in the above list, and for the Communist party members who dominate the remainder of the organizations mentioned, the instructions of the Third International of Moscow are ORDERS.

There have been three notable examples of such "orders" during recent weeks, as follows:

1—The "Thesis of the 13th Plenum of the Communist International," published in full in the Daily Worker, official organ of the Communist party, U. S. A., on January 13, contains many references to the situation in the United States. Section V is headed:

"For a revolutionary way out of the crisis—FOR A SOVIET GOVERNMENT."

It will be observed that this was issued AFTER United States recognition of Russia, and contrary to the pledge given by Litvinoff.

The Communist party of America approved and adopted this "thesis." The "thesis" stressed need for Communist concentration on youth, and greater activity along this line occurred promptly in America. In many details, American action followed Moscow orders—as will be shown later in this series.

2—On January 6, tenth anniversary of the Daily Worker, that newspaper published cabled greetings from the "Presidium, E. C. C. I." (Executive Committee, Communist International, of Moscow) urging it to become MORE ENERGETIC AS AN ORGANIZATION OF THE WORKERS' STRUGGLE.

'Daily Worker' Now Directs U. S. Reds

It HAS become more energetic, and a DIRECTOR of Communist activity.

3—On January 29, the Daily Worker published in full the Moscow speech of Joseph Stalin, chief executive officer of the All-Soviet Communist party, and head of THE COMMUNIST INTERNATIONAL, headlining this Stalin quotation:

"Let us work better to be shock-brigade of the world proletariat for the victory of socialism in our country AND IN ALL LANDS."

That speech constituted "orders" to Satlin's followers and his "shock-brigade" in the United States is far more extensive than is realized.

The Western Worker, of San Francisco, on February 12, published the picture of Stalin, under the caption, "Our Leader." Stalin's position is that of a dictator, rather than "leader"—and his dictatorship over Communism in U. S. A. has not been altered by recognition.

Stalin's dictatorship was so absolute in 1929 that he arbitrarily removed Jay Lovestone, the head of the American Communist party; though Stalin himself admitted Lovestone controlled a majority in that party.

Stalin placed William Z. Foster in control of the party and summoned Lovestone to Moscow where he was held by the G. P. U. Stalin lectured the American party leaders—then present in Moscow for a Third International meeting — at length and sharply, on their "misdeeds" and on what their future course MUST be.

The organization of world communism is such that Stalin has full power today to reorganize and discipline the Communist party, U. S. A., at any time.

(This is the first of a series of articles on the startling progress of industrial communism in the United States. The second will appear in an early issue, probably tomorrow.)

PALM SERVICE ENDS IN ROW

WASHINGTON, March 26.—(AP.)—Police made further investigation today of a Palm Sunday service in the East Calvary Church here that was turned into a battle royal.

William Foster, 35, a Negro, was charged with rising during the service, pulling a gun from his pocket, and sending a bullet through the pulpit. A second shot, police said, was a dud.

Halting his sermon, Rev. Paul N. Moore, Negro, was reported to have countered by throwing a vase of flowers that struck Foster on the head. The latter was said to have been angry because of some alleged activity involving his wife.

By the time police arrived, the congregation had split into rival factions and the fighting had spread to the street.

MINOR COURTS UNDER FIRE IN TAX DRIVE

(Constitutional changes are necessary before the Justice of the Peace and Constable system can be eliminated, constitutional authorities point out in today's article, one of a series being published by the Sun-Telegraph. The articles are part of the campaign to reduce taxes through elimination of duplicating agencies in governmental service.)

Elimination of the Pennsylvania system of squires and constables, or the minor judiciary, as it is often termed, will require changes in the 60-year-old constitution, according to Attorney William S. Doty, member of the Allegheny County Bar and an authority on laws governing the operation of the smaller courts.

Attorney Albert B. Maris, prominent member of the Philadelphia County Bar, also points out that there must be a change in the constitution, either by an amendment or by complete revision at a convention, before the minor judiciary can be abolished.

LEGISLATURE POWERLESS

Attorney Maris says:

"Article V of the Constitution makes justices of the peace, aldermen and magistrates constitutional officers and prevents the Legislature from attempting to reorganize the minor judiciary so as to mold it into a proper part of modern judicial procedure. For many years there has been agitation for reform, but the Legislature has been powerless to accomplish anything in this direction in view of the limitations of the Constitution."

The need of constitutional revision is being expressed today in all parts of the state, by civic leaders, by taxpayers' organizations and by candidates seeking state offices. The Democratic party, through its state organization, has included in its platform a constitutional convention.

FEWER SQUIRES NEEDED

While many persons are demanding abolition of the entire system, there are others who believe that the number of squires should be reduced and their powers increased.

In Allegheny County there are 238 justices of the peace. Then there are 66 burgesses, whose power is approximately the same as the "squire." In Pittsburgh there are 32 aldermen. McKeesport, Duquesne and Clairton also have an alderman for every ward, which brings the total to more than 350 small court judges.

Assisting the minor court judges there are constables, totaling about 1,000 for the entire county.

Judge Henry C. Niles, of York, Pa., in a recent address on the minor courts, declared that he did not think it would be wise to abolish the entire minor judiciary system. To remedy the present condition he recommends:

Establishment of a system of local courts, presided over by a justice of the peace, who should be trained in the law and paid a salary instead of fees. The civil jurisdiction could be extended up to $500, the jurist declared, with provisions for appeal to Common Pleas Court upon bond for the costs, including sufficient to cover the costs of a jury trial, unless waived. Judge Niles suggests one justice of the peace for every 50,000 people.

If such a plan were put into effect, Allegheny County would have about 30 small court judges instead of the 350 now operating.

URGES DEBTOR'S COURT

Attorney Edward O. Tabor, local civic leader, recently declared the minor judiciary to be a waste of money and an unnecessary evil in the state. He urged its abolition and in its place the establishment of a small debtor's court.

Many times in the last few years the Allegheny County Bar Association, through various committees, has condemned the system of "squires and constables."

The bar's special committee on unauthorized practice of the law only last November adopted resolutions urging abolition of the office of justice of the peace and aldermen by amending the Constitution. It was further agreed that the bar should present such a bill before the Legislature at its next session, work for its passage, and then make the general public acquainted with the need of the change so that the amendment might be approved by the voters.

KIN OF SOLDIERS IN 3 WARS FOE OF LEAGUE

A woman whose great grandfathers, her grandfather and father bore arms to defend the United States against its foes today joined the list of thousands of persons in the tri-state territory opposing efforts to entangle this country in European affairs.

Sending in a list of names—all members of her family—signed to the petition being prepared by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and associated Hearst newspapers protesting efforts to force the United States to participate in the League of Nations and the World Court, Mrs. Alice Everling, of Springdale, wrote:

"My great grandfathers fought in the War of 1776 to free our land from foreign nations, my grandfather in the War of 1812 and my father in the Civil War, 1861-1865. We all are opposed to the League of Nations and foreign entanglements, the five names on the list being all members of our family."

A resident of Duquesne wrote:

"The question of the League of Nations should be decided by a vote of the American people and not by the United States Senate. All true Americans are opposed to the League of Nations."

VET OPPOSES LEAGUE

Adam Konig, of East street, wrote:

"If the world felt as I do, it would be 100 per cent opposed to the League of Nations. I believe that 100 per cent of the newspaper readers are in favor of remaining aloof from the League of Nations. I wish you luck with your undertaking."

H. R. Egle, a Pittsburgher, wrote:

"This would be a funny world if we—all of us—were of one mind! But how any right thinking American, native born or naturalized—can be anything else but for our own ideals and against foreign entanglements, is beyond me. George Washington left us his advice against foreign entanglements as a heritage for all. It still holds good. George Washington was one of the most far-seeing men who ever lived. All honor and glory to him and his memory. Yours for success and against all foreign entanglements from a naturalized American citizen—who served under our flag in two wars."

PETITIONS AVAILABLE

How about you? Have you gone on record as opposing the League and the World Court? Are you content to stand by idly while propagandists rope this country into European affairs?

You can take an active part against these propagandists by simply sending to the League Court Editor, for a petition, signing it and returning it immediately. You can do even more by having members of your family, associates and friends sign the petition. Or, if you prefer, use the petition printed elsewhere in this newspaper.

CITY EXTENDS MINE SEALING

The city plans to extend its Civil Works Administration mine-sealing program, according to Chief City Engineer Charles M. Reppert.

Co-operation with the state mine inspectors to regulate more closely the operation of small mines is planned. Reppert was in conference last week with W. L. McCoy, inspector in the Seventeenth Bituminous District, which includes the South Hills territory.

Under a new act of the Legislature, state inspectors have the right to inspect mines where as few as two persons are employed, and close the pits where dangerous working conditions are involved.

At present about 400 men are employed in closing old mine openings in the city. According to Reppert, an effort will be made to increase the force to 500 men.

GEN. MEHARD TO TALK

Gen. Churchill Mehard, assistant county solicitor, will be the speaker at a Chamber of Commerce luncheon meeting at noon Thursday.

Gen. Mehard, who is an officer of the Pennsylvania National Guard and a World War veteran, will discuss "The Vital Problem of National Defense."

The chamber's annual election of a nominating committee will be held at this meeting. The committee will name the official ticket of 18 candidates for the May elections, to fill 12 places on the board of directors.

Many military men of the city are expected to attend. They include Col. W. R. Dunlap, Col. Eric Fisher Wood, Col. H. C. Fry, Col. L. W. Depuy, Col. F. A. Prince, Col. John H. Shenkel, Lieut. Com. J. H. Cox, Maj. S. J. Sepp, George Grimm, county commander of the American Legion; Frank Gangwish, president Allegheny County council, V. F. W., and W. J. Best, county commander, United Spanish War Veterans.

PETITION AGAINST PARTICIPATION In the LEAGUE of NATIONS and World Court

If you want to save America from European entanglements and keep your country out of foreign wars, and foreign wars out of your country, sign this petition:

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE UNITED STATES SENATE AND HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES:

We protest AGAINST the United States participating in the League of Nations or in the World Court of the League of Nations, with or without "reservations."

We petition our Federal Government to keep our United States "free from foreign entanglements," as the Father of Our Country wisely enjoined.

We urge our Congress at Washington to keep our government from meddling in foreign affairs, and to keep foreign nations from meddling in our American affairs.

As loyal American citizens, we ask our loyal representatives to keep our country out of foreign conflicts and complications and to keep foreign conflicts and complications out of our country.

NOTICE to PUBLIC

CITY 'CLEARS' GRANT STORE

A letter of certification from the City Health Department to the W. T. Grant Company, giving the Market street establishment a "clean bill of health," was received yesterday by the management.

The Grant Company received in January a shipment of parrots from California among which, it was reported to the Health Department, evidence of psittacosis (parrot fever) was subsequently found. The birds were destroyed and the premises where the birds had been kept thoroughly disinfected, the Health Department declared.

Dr. H. J. Benz, superintendent of the Bureau of Child Welfare, issued the letter which was received at the store yesterday. He said:

"I am sending a letter to the W. T. Grant Company certifying that they have complied with all the sanitary rules and regulations laid down by the City Health Department."

The letter followed an inspection of the store Friday by health officers from the office of Director Ray P. Moyer at the suggestion of Carl E. Davies, store manager.

Mr. Davies also declared he had ordered all employes of the store to obtain certification of their health from their family physicians, and that certificates to this effect are on file.

Race for Arms Means War Unless Checked—Knickerbocker

Views of World's Leaders Summed By Expert

(Editor's Note—"The cards are stacked against permanent peace if no limitation of armaments can be secured," writes H. R. Knickerbocker, famous foreign correspondent for International News Service in the concluding article of his series, "Will War Come." The odds in London, he adds, against a real disarmament convention, are 40 to 1.)

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

LONDON, March 26.—The armaments race is on. They are off. Germany, France, Britain, Russia, Japan, Italy are off on the race that ends in the Olympic games of death.

Today the race is a preliminary. Tomorrow it will be the semi-finals. If the contest is not stopped there will be no more sense in the question, "Will War Come in Europe?" The question then will only be "When Will the War Come?" Already the graver question has displaced the first in the minds of many observers.

What are the final results of this investigation that has covered on this continent every potential battle-field that could be foreseen? What is the summary from a visit to a score of Europe's chief cities and from the opinions gathered in conversation with the men who seek to control the continent's destiny?

Views of Leaders On War Threat

President Masaryk, of Czecho-Slovakia, said:

"There will be no war because there is no money."

Foreign Minister Benesch, of Czecho-Slovakia, said:

His Serene Highness, Regent of Hungary, Admiral Horthy said:

"There will be no war. It is too great a risk."

Gen. Camille Walch, military governor of Strasbourg, said:

King Alexander, of Jugoslavia, said:

"No war will start in the Balkans."

King Boris, of Bulgaria, said:

"War is incredible so long as the generation that experienced the last war is in power."

Dollfuss Insists On Independence

Chancellor Dollfuss, of Austria, said the peace of Europe depended on the independence of Austria.

His Majesty, Otto of Habsburg, said the peace of Europe pended on the independence of Austria.

Gen. Joseph Denain, French minister of air, said:

"The French air fleet is only there for defense. We will reply in kind to any attack. We welcome every new airplane the British build."

Bogoljub Jeftitch, foreign minister of Jugoslavia, asked, Is peace certain for 12 months? replied, hesitatingly,

"I think so."

Louis Barthou, foreign minister of France, said:

"A year ago I wrote that war could not possibly come in 1934. Today I could no longer express the same opinion."

Julius Goemboes, premier of Hungary, asked "Peace for 10 Years?" replied:

"I did not say that, but I fervently hope so."

Mussolini said:

"Peace for 10 years."

Winston Churchill, in the House, said:

"I dread the day. It is not far distant. It is perhaps only a year, or perhaps 18 months distant."

Next War Certain To End Europe

These are a few of the most succinct opinions. They range from a prediction of no war at all to uncertainty but that war will come even in 1934. They prove a thesis that needs no proof; that prophecy is in vain.

Among all these men and many more unquoted, but two feelings are common: The dread expressed by Winston Churchill, and the fervent hope by Premier Goemooes. But one opinion was common to all, that the next war will end Europe as we know it. In the last few months another conviction has become almost unanimous. That is the conviction that disarmament is impossible, that limitation of armaments is improbable and that armament is imperative for all.

In retrospect, from London, the picture of the continent of Europe is too complex to simplify in paragraphs. In Broadest outline it shows two aspects.

The one aspect is peaceful. England agrees to support France. France in return agrees to equality of armaments with Germany. Germany agrees not to arm beyond that point. Germany concentrates on her internal problems. France stabilizes her politics and sticks to democracy.

Japan Holds Key To Eastern Peace

Further afield, but with a direct bearing on this continent, Japan gives up her plans to war on the Soviet Union. Japan pays the Soviet Union a fair sum for the Chinese Eastern Railway and in return the Soviet Union recognizes Manchukuo.

The world settles down to a period of economic recovery, armed, suspicious, but relatively stabilized, and able to pass another generation perhaps without war.

The other aspect means certain war. Not now, not in this year or in three necessarily, maybe not in ten, but eventually inevitably. This face shows Britain delaying too long her pact with France. Not only disarmament fails but every attempt to limit armament. The armaments race, already begun half-heartedly, whirls forward in furious tempo.

Germany concentrates on armament. Her enemies try to lay down airplanes two to one. Germany meets the multiplication. France goes Fascist. Extreme nationalism sweeps her, envelops Europe.

And Japan? If Japan goes to war with the Soviet Union the concensus of European opinion is that the war will reach this continent within a year.

Leave that out of account. Consider the naval conference, due in 1935. If it takes place Japan will demand equality with America. America will not grant it. The British admiral of the fleet, for this country, has demanded that Britain denounce the London naval treaty. Out of the naval conference in 1935, as far as one can see today, can only come a naval armaments race.

Arms Race Reaches Peak By 1944

The race on land, on the sea and in the air approaches the home stretch around 1944, if before that time fate has not made Europe the victim of accident. Why did Mussolini say "ten years?" Why did the hopeful ones say "ten years?"

Most important thought behind that prophecy was perhaps that Hitler's pact with Poland runs for ten years. But it is also true that in Europe in 1944 three-fourths of all males above 15 years old will be too young to have participated in the last war. That great present argument against war, the recollection of its horrors by the men who took part in it, will no longer be valid. In Germany alone by 1944 there will be around 13,000,000 males from 15 to 40 years old, all too young to have been in the last war, against 4,000,000 veterans of 40 to 50 years of age.

It is also true that from 1934 to 1940 the number of German men of 20 to 25 years of age will steadily decrease, because they are the generation born during the war. The men of this age are the shock troops; the ace fliers; they supply the energy and courage of youth. They animate the army. They win wars.

Birth Rate Factor In New War

But so few Germans were born during the last war that whereas Germany had 3,211,000 of these potential best warriors from 20 to 25 years of age in 1930, by 1940 she will have but 1,898,000. After that the number will rise to 2,546,000 in 1950. This is one consideration for an answer to "when will the war come?"

The cards are stacked against permanent peace if no limitation of armaments can be secured. The odds against a real disarmament convention are given here in London at 40 to 1. The odds against a permanent limitation of all armaments are given at 10 to 1. The odds for or against a temporary limitation of air armaments in Europe are incalculable.

In the lineup of the nations of the world the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union are the nations which have everything they want and are interested in preserving the outlines of the map as it is. The nations which have not what they want are Japan and Germany.

Adolf Hitler, to whom the final question of war or peace on this continent will ultimately be referred, has declared a score of times that he wants peace now and for always. His enemies call Hitler's peace "the preventive peace." It is the peace to make the world safe for armaments. Armaments have never left the world safe from war.

Memos of a Columnist's Friday.

Dear Walter: In the first place there has never, at any time, been any telephone, telegraph, cable, radio, wireless or any sort of communication between Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks since their split . . . Any communication between them would be done via Miss Pickford's counsel, Capt. O'Brien, of O'Brien, Driscoll & Raftery—but the couple have not had any talk . . . I see that Att'y Gen'l Cummings at Washington is going to check on all machine-gun sales . . . And that Will Hays has stopped any films on Dillinger's escapes, etc.

Buddy DeSylva's new movie at the Music Hall, "Bottoms Up," is swell, one of the best yet, and if you asked me, Sid Silvers in it looks like the next outstanding comedian—for pictures and the radio . . . The literati will shudder at the Blue Pencil's "Ashcan" department in which "purple passages" from famous writers are given a ride. Poor O. Henry is one of the candidates this time . . . Red McKenzie called. Said thanks for talking to Billy Rose about him . . . I hope he lands there . . . Even if they can only find room for him to coo his tunes over the mike—he can still "Friends" all evening for me—Soooh nice.

Mrs. Wm. Demarest phoned . . . Because the papers months ago quoted Tom Mix's daughter, Ruth, as announcing her engagement to her husband . . . The Demarests parted 18 months ago and Mrs. Demarest wants it known that after giving him 20 years, she isn't going to step aside now . . . Speaking of silly billing, the Eton Boys Quartet has five members . . . X. Cugat just called. He offered Byron's swelegant nifty on friends: "Friendship is love — without wings" . . . LaGuardia just found out that the city was paying the gas bill for the officers' mess at the swank 7th Regiment Armory, so after this they'll have to pay the bill themselves.

Jack Denny and W. Osborne are tiffing . . . The Jewish Theatrical Guild's Testimonial Dinner is April 8 at the Astor—to George M. Cohan and Sam H. Harris . . . Here's something you'll like . . . It might stop those Hollywood exaggerators from carelessly using the word "terrific" . . . Webster defines terrific as something terrible, horrible, dreadful . . . The next time your critics say you are notorious—take a bow . . . Webster's synonyms for the word include: "Distinguished, remarkable, conspicuous, noted, celebrated, famous and renowned"! ! ! . . . Therefore, thank them.

Next door to a theater there's a slot machine. You insert a nickel and a penny, and you get back the penny in oblong form—stamped with a picture of Roosevelt . . . Isn't that against the law? . . . Florence Richardson is directing the crew at the King's Terrace, a diverting spot . . . A new radio show sounds good. "Stories That Should Be Told" it is titled . . . The program is on Fridays at 10:30 p. m. com'g April 6 . . . Yvonne Shelton, the former Follies girl, missed her boat in Hong Kong and her baggage, credit checks, etc., were on board. She is miserable because the American Consul there wasn't interested . . . What are consuls for, anyhow? . . . A hotel, however, let her sleep there, for the time being.

That new show due at the Casino Theatre—is being booked by George Woods, but only the chorus 'eeties are rehearsing, the principals are having too much fun in Florida . . . Say, with all these places called Casino—what's gonna happen? . . . I'm mixed up already! . . . Sam Whitmire, the crack correspondent in N. Y. for the Washington Herald, looks so much like what John D. Rockefeller, Sr., must have looked 40 years ago. . . . I like Sam; he's always so pleasant. . . He told me that you'd get a kick out of the plain country people, mountain folk, who gather at his house here often. And they refer to you as the man who talks like lightning. . . Sam says many of them are using the slang!. . . Can't you imagine it? "We war cummin' raound th' maountain, we war cummin' raound the maountain—and went phffft!"

Get a load of the Trantor Brothers at the Algonquin, okay . . . May Irwin's stationery (for 30 years) contains this beautiful thought: "Help thy brother's boat across, And lo! Thine own shall reach the shore". . . And she practices it, too!. . . Now, about that movie star who had that actor fired for not using a broad "a" in pronouncing "Milan," etc. She was totally wrong on the way it should be said. The old Italian way was Meelah-no, I know. . . But that's going a long way back for an appearance of culture. . . Milon is the preferred English usage, and has been since Shakespeare's day. . . I hear from a Florida pal that the producer of one hit will sue a pair for mismanagement and accounting of the funds. . . I feel terrible about Lilyan Tashman . . . In her latest picture she dies from a heart attack. . . And most of the critics panned her the day she passed on!

I hear that James Cagney has been here a week incognito—registered under a different name at the Warwick . . . I hear he's taken another runout from the studios—the same reason . . . Evan Chiassarini, owner of Le Perrequet, is the only restaurateur with three university degrees, one of them a Ph. D. . . . Wm. K. Wells says that Dean Inge once said that originality is undetected plagiarism . . . Chas. G. Shaw will be here about 5, don't forget that man at 2 . . . Jake Factor, who was snatched by the Touhy gang, is incog here and closing a movie deal about his "snatch" adventures. He will star in it! . . . Nothing else exciting.

Tonsils Cut On Flip of Coin

By JIMMY STARR

HOLLYWOOD, March 26.—Hello! Intrigued by a speedy recovery from his recent appendicitis operation, Norman Foster, urged by a pretty nurse, decided to lose his tonsils. Not wishing to be alone during the ordeal, he flipped a coin with Director Edwin H. Knopf, who, if he lost, promised to go along for the same operation. Knopf lost! Both Eddie and Norman are doing nicely, thanks.

A would-be gay movie chap about town ribbed a waiter in a popular hash house to such an extent that the tray-carrier picked up a GORGEOUS frosted cake and PUSHED it in the guy's face, saying, "All right, you want cake, eh! Well, here's cake—and I quit, I wasn't fired!"

Wanderings around Hollywood . . . The Jack Oakie-Marty Martyn "slander" lawsuit will probably end up by both POINTING old jokes at each other! . . . Peggy Morrow is about to be RENOvated from Jack Chadburn . . . Lowell Sherman spent WEEKS AND WEEKS on the desert to regain his voice, but now chirps in a LOWER whisper . . . Mala, the hero of "Eskimo," has a chance for the lead in Arthur Hornblow's first supervised movie, "In Pursuit of Happiness" . . . Ida Lupino has a DUCKY stunt of inviting folks up to her swimming pool—and then pushing them in! . . . The Cocoanut Grove had one of its BRIGHTEST evenings when Ted Fio-Rito and his orchestra returned. Ben Bernie made it perfect when he paid Ted a GLOWING tribute, while the smart dance team of Veloz and Yolanda clicked with rounds of applause. Unusual sight: Mack Gordon with his napkin tucked under his massive chin. Archie Gottler and ex-wife, Peggy, Dorothy Lee waiting alone—for Bert Wheeler to show up . . . Shades of cinema yesterday — Johnny Harron and Henry B. Walthall are featured in "Murder in the Museum," in which Mel Shyer makes his debut as a megaphonist for Monogram . . . Nils Asther is a-headin' for London . . . Reason: business and a sight-seeing tour . . . Dorothy Burgess will forget her meanie traits (only on the screen, of course) and go "straight" for "Gentleman of Affairs," the Paul Lukas film for Universal.

The sonny boy of a certain theater operator had his nose remodeled so his pretty girl friend would stop squawking, then forget to pay the doctor. Now he's due for a flock of UNPLEASANT publicity . . . It's an annulment for Doris Nicholas, the young playwright . . . Jack Maer, local, has turned scenarist and is AMAZING a couple of film factories with his yarns . . . It's a bouncing baby boy for the Frank Capras . . . The Warner publicity department gave Joe E. Brown a Chinese luncheon, and made the comic, who is vacationing in the Orient, eat with CHOPSTICKS! Joe fooled 'em when he maneuvered unusually well. 'Sfunny, but Joe, a loyal Democrat, is sailing on the President Hoover and returning on the President Coolidge . . . Sam White's signed with RKO to direct a series of shorts . . . M. H. Saw Rod Larocque bouncing down the blvd., looking better than ever. Odd that he doesn't return to the movies. Modern Hospital Set Used In 'Men in White'

Inspiration for the sterile whiteness and gleaming modern medical devices of the huge hospital setting for the motion picture, "Men In White," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, was supplied by Unit 3 of the Los Angeles County Hospital, which was opened late in December, about the time production on the new film began.

Said to be one of the most modern in this country, humorous details of the medical unit were copied outright by Merrill Pye, M-G-M art director for the lavish setting, so vast it filled a sound stage.

The operating suite, dramatic in its macabre somberness, resulted directly from Pye's observations at the new medical unit and the technical requirements of the play. Like the original, it is complete with students' amphitheater and latest type surgical equipment.

The great clock-combinations suspended above broad corridors were also copied. Set in a rectangular block of chromium are a large illuminated clock, three vari-colored lights and a glass square in which electrically lighted numerals appear.

Instead of the noisier nurse-paging system, each doctor has a number which flashes in the glass square when he is wanted. The color of the flashing light denotes the urgency of the call. The great bank of elevators are also noiseless.

The nurses' booth, in a central position on the main floor, is an exact duplicate of that in Unit 3. With switchboard communicating system, hospital supplies and other innovations, it ranks among the most advanced extant.

There are no angles or corners to become dust-laden. Everything is smoothly rounded, from angles of the walls to spherical light domes.

Pye and Director Richard Boleslavsky spent two days as guests of Supt. M. R. Martin, studying design, equipment and working procedure of the new medical unit.

A note of cheerfulness, recently adopted psychological factor in caring for the sick, is apparent in the setting. While white is used largely for cleanliness, bright colors are employed wherever possible, particularly in patients' rooms.

Clark Gable in the role of a young interne, and Myrna Loy as a society girl head a cast that includes Otto Kruger, Elizabeth Allan, Jean Hersholt, C. Henry Gordon, Russell Hardie, Wallace Ford, Henry B. Walthall, Russell Hopton and Ruth Channing.

Madcap

Claudette Colbert plays a madcap heiress who runs away in "It Happened One Night," coming to Stanley screen Friday with Clark Gable in male lead.

Mt. Rushmore Contest Joined by 2,000 Women

County Auxiliary Of Foreign War Vets Enrolls

Upholding their devotion to American ideals, more than 2,000 Western Pennsylvania women today joined the growing ranks of millions of citizens seeking to express their country's history in 600 words for the Mount Rushmore National Memorial inscription.

The latest organization to announce active participation in the nation-wide competition is the Allegheny County Auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. Thirty-seven auxiliaries compose the group. The action is in support of the auxiliary's national officers who already indorsed the competition and urged all groups to active participation.

APPOINTS AIDE

The county president, Mrs. Genevieve R. Schaaf, named Mrs. Amelia Kane as chairman of the special committee which will handle the auxiliary members' text entries. All members of the V. F. W. Auxiliary will submit their 600-word texts direct to Mrs. Kane at 232 Sycamore street, Pittsburgh. A special committee will be announced later to judge the auxiliary's entries and submit the best selection to the Pittsburgh memorial committee in care of the Sun-Telegraph. Mrs. Kane is secretary of the county auxiliary.

Support by other groups was developing rapidly today with organizations preparing to announce their special committees. Already there are the Allegheny County Federation of Women's Clubs with more than 100 affiliated groups, the United Daughters of the Confederacy, patriotic chapters and civic groups taking active part. These include the tri-state district councils of approximately 50,000 Boy Scouts who join with the Boy Scouts of America throughout the country in active participation.

Important news for boys and girls throughout the district will be announced tomorrow in the Sun-Telegraph, which with associated Hearst newspapers, is conducting the historical quest for a history to live in the South Dakota mountainside for a million years. Too, a series of special articles will begin that will aid all entrants—every man, woman and child—in studying the nine episodes of history that must be contained in the text.

INDORSES CONTEST

Approval of this unusual opportunity for the citizens of America to assist in the establishing of a monument to the nation's progress continues to be given by national leaders. Arthur M. McCrillis, of Washington, president general of the National Society, Sons of the American Revolution, during a visit here said:

"We are distinctly in favor of anything that will teach history to the youth of this country. There is not enough taught in our schools about national heroes. This will certainly foster interest in the historical background of the United States. In preparing the text for the competition, the children and the adults, too, will have to give some intense study to our history and the four national heroes — Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt. It will be beneficial.

"In later ages, there will be pilgrimages to the monument; children will be inspired by these stirring accounts of our history. To all peoples of the world who are seeking freedom, it will be an inspiring message if properly prepared."

MRS. AMELIA KANE

Mrs. Kane, chairman of the Mt. Rushmore committee for the county V. F. W. auxiliary.

Howard Hears At $64 Cost

Leslie Howard stepped up to a microphone in Hollywood recently and spoke directly to the audience gathered for the Actors' Benefit in the Empire Theater, London. His voice went through clearly as he said:

"Hello home! I wish I were permitted to say goodnight to Leslie Ruth and Ronald, who should be sleeping in Surrey Hills."

Within an hour after the broadcast, London was calling Howard. His two eager children told him they had heard his voice, also had received pictures of his swimming pool, new horse and the house. It was a swell horse, they said, but did not compare to their donkey, Tony. Moreover, the swimming pool looked quite small compared to the creek running back of their home. The youngsters added they would like to call him often and for him to deduct the cost from their allowance.

All In A Day

By MARK HELLINGER

Mother Love.

NOTHING mattered but the baby. Laura told herself that when things seemed the hardest. During the weary miles of job-hunting, when the soles of her shoes were so thin that her feet felt like lumps of burning fire, she told herself that it didn't matter as long as the baby was warm and well-fed.

She didn't like to remember that if she didn't get a job soon there wouldn't be enough money to keep him warm and fed. Mrs. Flaherty, who lived in the flat downstairs, was kind. She took care of Sonny, along with her own brood, during the day. But Laura couldn't stall off the landlady much longer. Alone, she could have managed somehow. Now there was the baby to think of. All day long, Laura thought of little else. She worried about him, and hurried home as fast as she could to be with him.

At the Charity Hospital, they had told Laura that she was foolish to try to keep the baby. There was no one to care for him but her. The man—Laura hated even to think of him. Yet she had never been sorry. Sonny had only to smile once, gurgle into her face, cuddle against her arm, and she knew that it had been worth while.

It hadn't been easy. Jobs were practically non-existent. Laura never considered the sacrifices, the shame, the home and friends she had given up for Sonny's sake. It was enough just to have him. She couldn't even visualize what life would be like without him now.

But when she returned home one afternoon from her useless round of searching, Mrs. Flaherty's wide face was troubled.

"They was here," she informed Laura, "them women from the society. They was sayin' the baby ain't gettin' the proper nourishment or care. They said unless you got a job and could take care of him right by the end of the week, they're comin' to take Sonny and put him somewhere. I told 'em a thing or two, but they're comin' back Saturday anyway."

Laura stood very still with terror clutching at her heart. Take Sonny! They couldn't do that. He was hers. She picked him up and held him tightly against her.

"They can't have him!" she whispered. "Don't worry, Mrs. Flaherty. I'll get something before then. I've got to!"

In the morning, she started out again, desperate with fear. There were only five days left before the end of the week. Five days before the women from the Children's Society came to take Sonny because she couldn't care for him. Today she had to get something.

There was but one little ray of hope throughout the entire day. From an agency that supplied models, she was sent far downtown to an artist's studio. Laura had once had a bit of theatrical experience. She had posed once or twice before. Surely, she thought, as the subway fare took another nickel from her precious small hoard, she'd get this job.

The untidy young man in the artist's smock was kind, if a little absentminded. He examined the card she handed him, and made notes on the back of it.

"Your height?" he asked. "Weight? You're not married, Miss—let me see—Miss Jones? And I can get in touch with you by telephone?"

Laura told him her height and weight.

"I'm not married," she went on. "The family downstairs has a phone. You can reach me there."

The man stared thoughtfully at the card.

"I thought I would need someone this morning," he explained. "But I'm not quite ready. In a day or two perhaps. I'll send for you if I decide."

Laura had heard that so many times. She sighed hopelessly, walked wearily to the door. Another wild goose chase, another nickel spent uselessly. Only four more days in which to get a job.

The days passed, one after another, in exactly the same manner. There were vague promises, curt rebuffs. And, as the days passed, Laura grew more panic-stricken at the possibility of losing Sonny. At night, she held him close to her and prayed that something would happen so that she would not have to give him up.

But the last day arrived, the day before the women were coming to investigate again. Still Laura had no job, nowhere to go, and the little hoard of money was smaller than ever. Sitting at her window while Sonny slept, she remembered suddenly the young artist who had promised to call her. Encouraged by a faint new hope, she snatched a coin from her purse, and with a word to Mrs. Flaherty, she raced to the subway.

Perhaps if she explained to him, he would find some way to use her. Her hands trembled as she rang the bell of his studio. When he came to the door, she was shaking so that she could hardly speak.

"It's about that job," she stammered eagerly, "I thought perhaps—"

"I'm very sorry, Miss Jones." His voice was regretful. "This was something very special. I had to get someone else for it. It was a certain type of magazine cover, and I had to have exactly the right model."

Laura looked past him into the big studio where a young woman on a raised platform was kneeling beside a cradle.

"You wouldn't have done," the man explained kindly. "You see, you wouldn't have fitted into the spirit of the picture—which I am calling 'Mother love.'"

MUSIC

"Let's Build a Town"

Kingsley House

In answer to a call from Kingsley House, I heard an amazing performance of Paul Hindemith's children's play with music yesterday afternoon. He calls the play "Let's Build a House."

Mr. Lissfelt

Some years ago I watched Hindemith direct publicly one of his most outlandish modern works at a festival in Baden-Baden. He insolently sat on the platform while the audience threw benches and chairs in protest against what they thought to be rather bad music. He is a viola virtuoso and so generally a sophisticated person musically that it was hard to reconcile the same man with the maker of the music which I heard yesterday. Yet his idiom was all in that play which he helped make in the school room under the criticism and suggestions of children. And what did amaze me was the fact that these little singers and players from the Larimer Avenue Settlement House did obviously understand and sing quite naturally those very intervals and tunes which well trained listeners, musicians, even composers of another school are apt to frown at and cry down.

I believe I am not taking this music too seriously, because I believe that children often find the truth before we adults actually hear everything in the new music.

The stage set, made of packing boxes and steps, with conventionalized background of a modern skyscraper city was quite effective. Against this scenery the children played in the most plastic poses as rhythmic as Hindemith's dance tunes. Prototypes of leading town personalities whom children might remember and notice were all there; the conductor, the cop, the milkman, the mysteriously lady, and the keeper of the corner candy store. Hindemith's names were exchanged for Larimer Avenue friends and altogether the spirit of the play was charming.

But the important thing to remember is that these children, singers and players, gave this new music as if they understood its secret meanings, and they must have.

Two Caprices (for violin alone) .. Paganini

Nocturne ..... Chopin-Milstein
Perpetuum mobile ..... Novacek

Nathan Milstein, one of the town's favorite violinists, returned to the Young Men's and Women's Hebrew Association last night to close its successful course of concerts. He surely found one of his most enthusiastic audiences, and little wonder.

Superbly equipped with technique and poise, with an everdeveloping depth of musical feeling and abandon for the music of the moment Milstein gave more than satisfaction indeed. I had formerly felt that he must always remain the classicist, but after his free playing of the Mendelssohn Concerto last night, in comparison with the Bach unaccompanied sonata in G Minor, he must be entering new paths, and it will be interesting to watch the progress of so fine an artist.

His program was wisely and thoughtfully made and as encores he played Debussy's "Minstrels," Rimsky-Korsakoff's ever-present "Bumblebee," and the ballet scene from Gluck's "Orpheus." Emanuel Bey was as always an excellent accompanist.

HAITI'S CHIEF HAILED IN U. S.

NEW YORK, March 26.—(AP.)—To the booming of cannon and with much official fanfare, President Stenio Vincent of Haiti came to the United States today to pay a neighborly visit to President Roosevelt.

President Vincent arrived on the liner Haiti, and the waterfront went high hat for the occasion.

As the ship passed Governor's Island, a 21-gun salute was accorded President Vincent.

Standing with him, top hats in their hands, were representatives of the United States and Haitian governments.

BEAUTIES VIE FOR STARDOM

HOLLYWOOD, March 26.—(AP.)—The physical characteristics of the 38 nominees for the 1934 Wampas baby stars, 13 of whom will be selected, give a glimmering idea of what it takes to make a film star.

Three-fourths of the young beauties, nominated by Hollywood publicity writers, are blondes—light, dark and platinum—with three redheads and a smattering of brunettes.

They average 19 years in age. The youngest is Claire Meyers, Los Angeles, 16, and the eldest, Miriam Jordon, London, and Muriel Kirkland, both 25.

Average height is 5 feet 3¾ inches. The shortest are Dorothy Short, Philadelphia, and Dorothy Dix, Hollywood, each 5 feet 1 inch. The tallest is Hazel Hayes, graduate of the University of Kansas, 5 feet 7 inches.

In weight, the potential screen stars range from 97 to 126 pounds, with an average of 111 Ann Hovey, at 97, is the featherweight.

LAFFOON FLAYS PAPER AS 'FOE'

FRANKFORT, Ky., March 26.—(AP.)—Gov. Ruby Laffoon last night assailed the Louisville Courier-Journal, terming it "public enemy No. 1" and the "Dillinger of the press." His speech was the first of a planned series on "Accomplishments of the Recent General Assembly," and indirectly he referred to the Armentrout episode.

Vance Armentrout, acting editor of the Courier-Journal, was fined $25 by the House of Representatives after first being jailed a brief time because he refused to reveal to the House lobby investigating committee the name of the writer of a letter to the newspaper's "Point-of-View" column.

The reference to the Armentrout case came when Gov. Laffoon said he shared "the belief of thousands that a number of the articles appearing in its so-called "Point-of-View" column are written in the office of this paper and that many of the signers of them are fictitious and non-existent."

He charged that the policy of the paper, which is published by Robert Worth Bingham, United States Ambassador to England, "is now largely dominated and controlled through its counting room and by an unhappy, dissatisfied and worn-out politician."

'Seth Parker' Is a Real Vessel

By AIRCASTER

From the number of people who have asked me recently whether "The Cruise of the Seth Parker" is real, or just another myth, there seems to be quite some doubt about it. And I can assure you there's no reason for skepticism.

The Seth Parker is very real—as fine a five masted schooner as ever schooned the waves. ("Schoon" being a Scotch word for "skip").

The broadcasts, except the one from the old Fort in St. Petersburg, Fla., have actually originated on board the vessel in the various ports of call, and not from Radio City, as some listeners have suspected.

Phil has frequently left the schooner between broadcasts to return to New York, to attend to business details involved in his long voyage, which will include the principal ports of the world and many out-of-the-way places.

But when he has gone on the air, it has been from the schooner.

He isn't fooling you, and don't you let anyone else.

A sort of sequel to the famous "Moonshine and Honeysuckle," one of the air's immortal serials, is set to begin at 8 p. m. via WJZ, April 5.

It is authored, as was "Moonshine," by Lulu Vollmer, and will be called "Grit and Gravy."

* * *

Gene and Glenn, who start a five-a-week series at NBC, April 2, are deserting Cleveland for New York, and are there today.

* * *

Clem McCarthy will rejoin the NBC sport commentators' forces, and will do the Kentucky Derby.

* * *

A famous Chicago brewery starts a series via WJAS at 10 o'clock Friday night, April 13, probably with the Henry Busse Orchestra

* * *

Jane Froman, its fairest singer, may break out in a subsequent series, playing a harp because the program men have just discovered she can.

* * *

Imagine the embarrassment of Lee Sims and Ilomay Bailey (if you choose to believe the story), in their car at the Canadian border, when they identified themselves to customs officials, only to have the radio in their auto break out with a program featuring Sims and Bailey.

It was an electrical transcription, but the customs lads looked doubtful.

Globe Trotter

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Louis W. Mallasee, the 85-year-old Civil War veteran who broadcast Saturday, loses the distinction of being the sole surviving member of the General Garfield Post, G. A. R., but is overjoyed to have heard about Fred P. Broman, an old friend and comrade, who had been reported to have joined the bivouas in the sky.

Mr. Broman's granddaughter called to say that granddad will be 92 in September, is hale and hearty, and lives in New Castle.

What a reunion that will be when those comrades-in-arms get together. These two old soldiers are the only surviving members of a post originally numbering 360.

Friday was the sixty-fourth birthday of Christ Schade, Glendale. For 30 years he has been the traffic officer outside the Glendale Public School.

He has seen many of the youngsters that he once guided across the street grow up to occupy important places in the community.

Today, as ever, the Glendale school children are his friends. They, too, hope that Officer Schade will see them grow up into fine men and women.

* * *

Mrs. M. J. Hussey, Sheraden, sent in a recipe which was printed in the paper as a Prudence Penny prize winner.

Mrs. Hussey's friend, from whom she hasn't heard in 25 years, saw the name and the address in the paper and wrote a letter to Mrs. Hussey.

Now both are delighted and they will soon meet again.

'Y' TO MARK HOLY WEEK

Odell, of the Sewickley Presbyterian Church; the Rev. Jarvis M. Cotton, of the Waverly Presbyterian Church, and the Rev. S. S. Lappin, of the Central Christian Church.

A 45-minute program of music by the CWA symphony orchestra will precede each service. Special music will be provided Wednesday by the Carnegie Steel Company chorus.

MENU FOR EASTER BREAKFAST

Crepe Suzette and Bacon Are Suggested

Easter, like Christmas, is one of the few days of the year when the whole family gets together, so why not make the most of the day? Every other day of the year breakfast is usually a snatch meal, everyone eating in a rush and maybe not even bothering with more than a glass of orange juice.

Get them all together Sunday morning with a delectable breakfast that will really not be very much work for you. Fix their favorite dishes or if you like, Prudence Penny will help you. Her suggestion for Easter breakfast is:

Orange Section in Grapefruit Juice
Mint Leaf Garnish
Crepe Suzette
Crisp Canadian Bacon
Coffee Cake Easter Bunnies
Coffee

Your recipes may be tomorrow's winners, getting for you either the $5 prize or one of ten $1 prizes. Send them in to Prudence Penny, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. On no condition does she return any recipes.

Five Dollar Prize Winner

MISS JEAN YOUNG,
Route 2, Box 101, Turtle Creek.
CHERRY AND ORANGE MARMALADE

Allow three large oranges to two quarts of cherries. Peel the oranges, rejecting the white, bitter skin and seeds. Cut the thin yellow skin into very narrow strips and the pulp into bits. Cover the skin with boiling water and leave over night. In the morning pit the cherries and put over the fire to cook with the orange skins, the water which covered them and the pulp of the oranges. Simmer all together gently till very tender, which will require about half an hour. Then measure and allow an equal quantity of sugar. Cook slowly until thick.

Ten $1 Prize Winners

Marwood, Care Concordia Home.
ROAST SQUAB

Pluck, wash, drain, rub each one inside with a little salt, and place in a row in a roasting pan, with a very thin slice of fat salt pork, about one inch square on each bird; sprinkle a very little pepper over them. Place the pan in the oven; put a piece of butter and a little hot water into it. Baste frequently. Use only water enough to cover well the bottom of the pan, and by tipping it a little, there will be enough for basting.

When done, if there is not a tablespoon of liquor for each bird, add a little water. Place on a hot platter, pour liquor over them, and garnish with water cress.

HIT THAT COLD A KNOCKOUT BLOW!

Don't Invite Serious Complications with Makeshift Remedies!

A cold is something to be dealt with promptly and decisively. You never can tell where it will end. Many a "slight cold" has been the start of a serious illness. Get after a cold quickly and get after it in the right way. A cold, being an internal infection, requires internal treatment. A cold also calls for a COLD remedy and not a "cure-all."

The wise thing to take is Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine for several reasons. Instead of a "cure all," it is expressly a cold remedy. It is also an internal treatment which a cold, an internal infection, requires. And it is complete in effect. It does the four things necessary. First, it opens the bowels. Second, it combats the cold germ in the system and reduces the fever. Third, it relieves the headache and grippy feeling. Fourth, it tones the entire system and helps fortify against further attack. Anything less than that is not complete treatment.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine contains nothing harmful and is absolutely safe to take. For more than forty years it has been the standard cold and grippe tablet of the world, the formula always keeping pace with Modern Medicine. Every druggist sells Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine, 30c and 50c. Good druggists won't offer a substitute for the sake of an extra profit.

When a cold attacks, don't waste time with makeshift methods, but go right to your druggist for Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. Always ask for it by the full name and look for the letters L B Q stamped on every tablet.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL
And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

Patricia Pitt's Comment on Society Happenings

In Mayfair

—With—

Patricia Pitt

The formal and gala social affairs of other days have given way to small, informal group entertainments, and even pre-nuptial festivities for today's brides-elect are small, with the guest lists confined to only the very inner circle of friends of the bride-to-be and her fiance.

Any number of such parties have been given honoring attractive Ruth Willock, daughter of the late Frank Scott Willocks, of Sewickley, whose marriage to H. Pearce Wright, son of the J. Merrill Wrights, of Beechwood boulevard, will take place April 7, in the Willock home.

And of course, there will be still more parties before the wedding. J. Merrill Wright, Jr., is giving a dinner Thursday, and Virginia Drake will be hostess at another dinner Friday night.

Pair to Be Honored On Day of Wedding

The William A. Gordons III will honor Ruth and her fiance with a luncheon the day of the wedding. Mrs. Gordon and Virginia will both be attendants at the wedding as well as Virginia Willock, Ruth's sister.

* * *

Mrs. Macbeth Boggess, of Bryn Athyn, Pa., announces the marriage of her daughter, Katherine, and Dr. John A. Doering, son of Dr. and Mrs. Charles E. Doering, also of Bryn Athyn, which took place Saturday in Bryn Athyn.

The bride will be remembered as the granddaughter of the late George Alexander Macbeths, of Pittsburgh. Dr. Doering and his bride will be at home after April 15 in Middletown, N. Y.

* * *

Home for Easter from the Dobbs Ferry School tomorrow will flock a number of the most attractive of society's school set. Among them will be Betty Coolidge, Constance Hillman, Elizabeth Denny, Nancy Williams, daughter of the Peter Williamses, of Linden avenue; Ann Berger, daughter of the G. R. B. Bergers, of Fifth avenue, and Barbara Taylor, daughter of the Matthew Taylors. Home from the Walker School will come Betty Woods and Mary Blair, daughter of the William R. Blairs.

Architects' Soiree To Be Held Five Nights

The members of the Architectural Club, presenting their Soiree Charette on April 6 and 7, in the club, sponsored by the Junior League, have named three other evenings as well for the affair. Wednesday night, April 12, will be the architects' night; Friday, April 13, lucky or unlucky, will be sponsored by the Club of Little Gardens and the Little Garden Club, and the next night will be invitation night.

Anna B. Brant Is Bride of W. J. Rome

Miss Anna Barbara Brant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Brant, of Perrysville avenue, became the bride of Walter James Rome, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Rome, of Carnegie, Saturday noon in the Brant home.

Officiating was the Rev. Thomas Newcomb, pastor of the Eighth United Presbyterian Church. The bride wore a suit of navy blue crepe with a dust pink blouse and blue hat. Her sister, Mrs. James E. Vaux, was her matron of honor, and C. Stanton Belfour was the best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Rome left for the East, and after May 1 will be at home on Woodmont street, Squirrel Hill.

The bride is a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh and a member of Delta Delta Delta. The bridegroom is also a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh, is assistant dean of men there, and is a member of Delta Sigma Phi.

East Liverpool Girl to Marry M. D. Ress

Anouncement is made of the marriage of Miss Loretta D. Turk, daughter of Mrs. Sara Turk, of East Liverpool, O., and Morris D. Ress, so.. of Mrs. Louis Ress, of Shady avenue, which took place March 18 in the Beth Shalom Synagogue, with the Rev. Goodman A. Rose officiating.

The bridal attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Carl M. Turk, Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Cooper, Michael E Turk and Samuel Ress.

Verona Juniors to Hold Dance on April 19

The Verona Juniors have selected Thursday, April 19, as the date for a dance in the Longue Vue Country Club.

BOB ROBINSON

HELEN ROBINSON

Miss Robinson and her brother, daughter and son of Mr. and Mrs. O. D. Robinson of "Robinwood," Coraopolis, at Miami Beach, where they have been wintering with their parents. They're to return to their Pittsburgh home in time for the Easter season.

Safety Luncheon To Be Held Wednesday

The Congress of Clubs and the Chamber of Commerce are sponsoring a luncheon to be given in the Chamber of Commerce dining room, Wednesday, in celebration of Pittsburgh's winning the National Traffic Safety Contest award, second place, for 1933.

A fitting testimonial will be extended to all safety agencies whose co-operative work made this record possible, important among which are the Better Traffic Committee, the Western Pennsylvania Safety Council, the Bureau of Traffic Planning, the Traffic Police Division, the schools and junior safety council patrols and motor clubs.

The program includes talks by John S. Fisher, president of the Chamber of Commerce; Mrs. Oliver J. Haller, president of the Congress of Clubs, and Marcus A. Dow, past president of the National Safety Council, who will present the award, and Mayor William N. McNair or president of Council, Robert Garland, who will accept it. Other speakers will be Frank L. Duggan, chairman of the Better Traffic Committee, and William B. Rodgers, president of the Western Pennsylvania Safety Council.

It is planned to broadcast part of the program over WCAE just before the national broadcast hook-up from 2 to 2:30.

Reservations for luncheon may be made singly or in groups through the Western Pennsylvania Safety Council office.

Wednesday night there will be a gymnastic exhibition, to be given by the girls, of course, at the school.

THROUGH THE SPYGLASS

Viewing the New

You little shoppers who want to learn the names of the shops whose items are listed in this column day by day . . . call GRANT 6500 . . . and ASK FOR THE SPYGLASS. Or send in a stamped self-addressed envelope for your reply. THE SPYGLASS is always on the alert, peering out new "finds" . . . and you will be answered promptly!

* * *

The house-cleaners are out in full blast . . . and lest we fall down on the job, we hasten to cast an eye about us for household helps. To find that...

The stores are full of them. Big ones . . . Little ones . . great . . . and small! The first thing we literally fell over, being a large stack of the new wall paper cleaner which at 30c the quart can, is putting the old fashioned kinds' noses out of joint! This is supposed to be "crumb-less" (note we say "supposed" to be, since we've yet to find the cleaner which is utterly so!) . . . and it does two average size rooms completely.

* * *

But if you dislike puddling 'round with your fists in it . . . then you'd better get this new business on the end of a stick. A sort of sponge clamped with metal clamps on the end of the broom-handle-like pole . . . making the cleaning of your walls and ceiling a matter of a few easy swipes! $1.50 for the "sponge" . . . 35c for the "handle."

* * *

Dusting up, too, becomes a simpler job than it has been in the past. No more oiling of dust cloths! No more scrubbing and rubbing of them afterwards! The new already-oiled-paper we have found brings the chore of dusting up into the arts! This is 50c the 100 feet . . . comes in a handy roll from which you can tear off the sizes you want . . and is easily stuck away in the cupboard when not in use. Soft, porous, pliable, and treated with oil . . . these "dust cloths" make the housewife's daily dozen simple.

* * *

New cleaner, disinfectant, germicide! Made by the same company as the well-known brass polish that bears the nickname of the sun (figure this out!) Only 15c the can of 16 ounces . . . and excellent for scratching 'round these days with the papers full of current ailments and how cleanliness is the best guard against them. This deodorizes also . . . excellent for all sorts of household cleansing purposes.

* * *

And as you scuttle along with an armful of cleaners and such ...be sure that your buckets are as efficiently ready to take care of suds and soapiness as they should be. One of the stores has twin pails...a pair of buckets joined in wedlock by means of a strong handle. They're galvanized...nice and light...strong and sturdy...and but 79c the pair!

* * *

Now...pardon us if our thoughts continue along these buckety lines only to end in the garbage pail...but we must "buck up" and face facts! One of which is that this time of year half the population of town seems to be in need of a new garbage pail. And we have it for you. A neat, unobtrusive lidded one...galvanized... of 14-quart capacity...and costing a mere two bits (25c).

Yours for many vigorous scrubbings and scourings!...yours for bigger and better house cleanings!

Secret Agent X-9 Clue Contest

Clue No. 1

When Secret Agent X-9 arrived in the magnificently appointed apartment where Lloyd Jameson, nationally famous corporation lawyer, had lived alone for five years, he found it crowded with high-ranking officials of the local police detective bureau.

Sprawled on the genuine Bokhara rug in the sitting room was the body of the famous attorney. Shot through the right temple, he had died almost instantly. The revolver with one chamber discharged was still clutched in his right hand.

Inspector Henderson took the detective aside. "It looks like suicide—or it may have been done by Jameson's sweetheart, Laura Romaine," he said. "We know Jameson was in financial trouble because we called his partner Arthur Fowler, who told us he had discovered that Jameson withdrew all the money they had in a joint bank account, without letting Fowler know. And we think it might have been the girl because we have reason to know that they had a serious quarrel. She's a woman of the world, with a questionable past. And he evidently had someone here this evening."

Secret Agent X-9 surveyed the scene on the floor. The body of the dead man lay alongside a low tea-table that has been upset by the fall. The things that had been on the table— two cups and saucers, dishes, a jam pot, spoons and a couple of half-eaten biscuits—were scattered on the floor. A cigar butt also lay on the floor and had burned a hole in the rug. "There ought to be an ash-tray among that stuff, but there isn't," said the secret agent. "Don't see any," answered the inspector.

An open door of the sitting room showed a small butler's pantry, and Secret Agent X-9 went in and looked around. On the wall there was a little door for waste to be dropped down the incinerator, and on the floor directly under it lay a shattered fragment of jade with traces of tobacco ash on it.

He returned to the sitting room. "It wasn't suicide, Inspector."

JUNIOR PATROL

Carnegie Library has some new books, fellows!

They number about 400, and they are known as the Church Cromwell Collection. Col. Samuel Harden Church, Carnegie Institute president, gathered the books so that he could read as much material as he could about Oliver Cromwell, the Great English Puritan, who governed England for several years, the only time England has not had a king.

Junior

Mr. Church used much of the knowledge he got from these books in writing a new and excellent book—"Oliver Cromwell, a History." We hope that all Junior Patrol members will read it some day.

But what Mr. Church has done with books shows you how important books can be. Books store up knowledge and ideas for all. Don't miss getting your share, fellows.

Mr. Church says that he wrote his book about Cromwell because he wanted to describe Cromwell's true character, and to tell the real truth about his life. Some books are what we call "partisan" when they talk about Cromwell. That means that they are prejudiced and biased against him. They begin by trying to show that he was not a good man and not a great ruler.

Although there is still some argument about Cromwell's rightness all the time, there is no doubt he was a great and sincere man. After Col. Church wrote his book, a heroic statue of Cromwell, the first in England, was erected in the yard of Westminster palace.

It's spring now, fellows. We almost forgot to notice when March 21 came around, although it was a fine day. There will be a few more cold days yet, though, before hot summer comes around.

JUNIOR PATROL PLEDGE

I promise to help children less fortunate than I am.
I promise to do my best to make my parents proud of me.
I promise to watch carefully when crossing streets and to aid other children in keeping out of danger.
I promise to study hard and do errands willingly.

Date of Birth ..... Address .....
School .....

Address this pledge to the JUNIOR PATROL, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa. Upon its recipt you will be registered as a member of the JUNIOR PATROL and will be forwarded a membership card and an official emblem.

MAYOR M'NAIR ORDERS CITY WORKERS TO REGISTER

POLITICS

Margiotti Puts Self in Race For Governor

Charles J. Margiotti, backed by many of the same Republican leaders who had intended to support Senator Frank J. Harris had the latter's health not forced him to abandon a campaign, today filed petitions in Harrisburg to put his name on the primary ballot as a candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination.

Mr. Shields

Margiotti's decision followed a conference with friends which started yesterday afternoon and lasted until midnight. Senator James J. Davis, who has been insisting that a "liberal" candidate for Governor should enter the field, was one of the conferees, as was James H. Duff, Carnegie attorney. Meeting with them were Republicans from practially every county in Western Pennsylvania

Messages were received from other sections of the state urging Margiotti to run, and it was after considering these that the Pittsburgh attorney determined to file.

At the moment he cannot be considered as a "Davis candidate." The Sentaor let it be known that Margiotti should make a campaign based on an appeal to principles of social justice and a progressive platform. Should Margiotti go through with his platform it is assumed by his friends that the Senator will be in his corner, and stump the state for him.

* * *

Friends of Margiotti To Visit Philadelphia

Friends of Margiotti will be represented in the political conferences which will begin tomorrow in Harrisburg and Philadelphia, whereby the party heads will try to work out a compromise between the dozen or so candidates who have filed.

Col. Samuel D. Foster, Capt. Robert S. Cain and Col. Robert G. Woodside, Allegheny County public officials, will meet in Harrisburg tomorrow with other men interested in the candidacy of Gen. Edward C. Shannon. Unless they receive some assurance that Shannon will have organization support they probably will continue to Philadelphia.

State Chairman Edward Martin's determination to file has angered the Shannon group, though it is assumed Martin has no actual intention of running. First reports are that his entry is part of a threat to force the retirement of Shannon in return for Martin getting out, the proposal being that both shall support some other candidate designated by the organization.

Organization favor is wavering between Judges Marion D. Patterson, of Blair County, and Robert Lamberton, of Philadelphia. Attorney General William A. Schnader is expecting some organization assistance, as well as help from Gov. Pinchot. The same expectation animates former Congressman Thomas W. Phillips of Butler.

* * *

Herron May Be West's Bid For Recognition

Entrance of former Mayor John S. Herron, of Pittsburgh, in the lieutenant governor fight was with the approval of regular organization leaders here. In some quarters the pushing of Herron is understood to be based on a belief that an eastern candidate for Governor will be slated by the organization. Under those circumstances western regulars will demand representation through the placing of Herron. However, Senator Harry B. Scott, of Contre County, is the first choice of the state committee for lieutenant governor.

The chaotic governorship fight was given a new and dislocating slant today when Edward J. Hunter, member of the Workmen's Compensation Board, and close friend of Pinchot, filed as a candidate for Governor. This presents a deep split in the Pinchot ranks. P. S. Stahlnecker, member of the Public Service Commission, and former secretary to the Governor, is behind Schnader, whom Hunter violently opposes. There is little thought Hunter actually will run.

Charles Alvin Jones, Pittsburgh attorney, roiled the Democratic waters with announcement that he is a candidate for the gubernatorial nominaion. Jones opposes the tactics used by backers of George H. Earle, of Philadelphia, and Judge Charles D. Copeland, of Westmoreland County, in arranging slates behind their candidacies for the governorship.

Earle was picked by the Democratic state committee, directed by Joseph F. Guffey. Judge Copeland was selected by a small group of Democrats. Jones has consistently asserted that the methods pursued were contrary to the principle of the open primary. Whether he actually will remain in the field will be determined by reaction to the filing of his petitions today.

Both parties are in a state of turmoil as the last day for filing ends. There will be a dozen candidates for Governor and as many for Lieutenant Governor in the Republican fold. There will be at least six candidates for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, and enough for Lieutenant Governor to cause trouble.

War Among Democrats In Allegheny County

Here in Allegheny County there is widespread strife. L. V. Barach, western manager for Judge E. C. Bonniwell, Democratic gubernatorial candidate, today took out petitions as a candidate for county chairman. He will oppose David L. Lawrence, incumbent, Earle backer, and Malcolm McDonald, one of the Copeland supporters.

The next week will be full of feverish trading and manipulating. Candidates have until next Monday to withdraw their petitions, and many will do so.

FLIER INJURED IN CRASH

William Kunkelman, 30, of 1025 South avenue, Wilkinsburg, was recovering today in the Homestead Hospital from injuries sustained when a landing gear of the airplane he was flying "pancaked" as he came into Bettis Field yesterday. Several hundred Sunday spectators witnessed the cash.

Kunkelman was flying a monoplane owned by H. H. Fritz, of 427 South Trenton avenue, Wilkinsburg, and had taken off the field a few minutes before the crash occurred.

Airport officials said that Kunkelman came into the airport fast, and as the wheels struck the soft mud they struck, smashing the landing gear.

He was strapped in the plane and was not trown out, but when the crowd reached him he crawled out bleeding from lacerations about the face and complaining of his arm hurting him.

BOROUGH SEEKS PAYROLL LOAN

A special meeting of West Homestead Council will be held tonight to determine if the signature of the Burgess of the borough is required to borrow $10,000 so that current expenses, including a monthly payroll of $2,000, can be paid. As it stands today, unless a loan is made 17 borough employes face a second payday with no funds in sight.

Majority Councilmen say the borough's semi-monthly payroll of $1,000, due March 16, was unpaid because neither a two-third majority vote approving a loan of $10,000 from the Monongahela Trust Company, Homestead, nor a signature of the Burgess could be procured. It was the first time in the history of the borough that there was a shortage of funds for payment of salaries.

Bugs Perform Feats Rivaling Skill Of Surgeons

Humming bird breast and Brazilian porcupine steak are just two of the rare items on meat menus at Carnegie Museum.

The scientists feed the beetles because they are interested in the bones the beetles pick.

When a skeleton is wanted, the body of the bird or animal is placed in a specially heated "bughouse," located near the museum. The beetle families go to work and pick the bones as clean as a whistle.

This leaves a perfect skeleton. As Kenneth Doutt, mammalogy laboratory assistant, points out, the beetles can do work better than the most skillful surgeon. They are especially valuable, he says, for picking tiny creatures like humming birds.

They like warm weather best.

ARREST YOUTHS IN HOLDUP

Millvale police were questioning two suspects today in connection with alleged holdup of the Ramblers' Club of Millvale yesterday and robbing 12 youthful members of $30 while they were playing cards.

Entering the clubhouse, the armed bandits broke up a card game, in which the 12 members were participating, ordering the players to throw their money on the table, seizing the "pot" they fled in an automobile headed towards East Liberty. Police Chief Philip Mitchell, of Millvale, secured the license number of the bandit car. The bandits ranged from 15 to 20 years of age.

A few hours afterwards East End police arrested the suspects, Hartley Johnston, 17, of 418 North Graham street, and Emil Hurnensky, 17, of 418 Wicklow street, after a radio cruiser traced them to their homes after ownership of the car, in which the youths were alleged to have escaped, was established, police reported.

West View Man Dies At Wheel of Auto

Yesterday Holt complained of not feeling well, and was treated by a physician for indigestion, police learned. Later he felt better and members of his family decided to take a ride. The Coroner's office ordered a carbon monoxide test taken, although a doctor had reported death due to heart ailment.

ARMED BANDITS STAGE STORE HOLDUP

Scores Watch Thieves Break Fur Store Windows

Two Negro robbers held up Jacob Freedman in his haberdashery at 1325 Fifth avenue at 9:15 a. m. today and escaped with $35.

The pair entered the store while Freedman was alone . One of the robbers pointed a gun at Freedman, the other took his wallet containing $7. Then they locked him in a rear room of the store.

When Freedman succeeded in breaking out 15 minutes later, he found the cash register had been looted of $28 and that the holdup men had fled.

FUR THIEVES ESCAPE

For the third time this year thieves threw bricks through windows of Jerome Wolk & Brother fur store, 709 Penn avenue, and escaped in an automobile with merchandise of undetermined value.

The robbery occurred last night. As several score persons waited for street cars at Seventh and Penn avenue, three men alighted from the automobile, tossed bricks through two windows valued at $100 and $50, and hurriedly seized furs on display.

As they returned to their car, they prevented several witnesses from securing the license number by throwing up a smoke screen from the automobile. Police, called to the scene, found a $150 scarf piece the men dropped in their flight through a nearby alley.

Jerome Wolk, head of the firm, said furs and neckpieces stolen in two previous cases were valued at several thousand dollars.

CHURCH SAFE ROBBED

While the pastor and congregation of St. Ann's Roman Catholic Hungarian Church, 4735 Chatsworth avenue, Hazelwood, watched a play in the basement, thieves broke into the rectory of the church, knocked the combination from a safe and fled with $18.85 and valuable papers.

Father Nicholas Komlossy, pastor, returned to his offices in the rear of the church at 11 p. m. to find them in confusion. The thieves entered through a cellar window, jimmied a door and ransacked the office. Yesterday's church collection was not in the safe, the pastor said.

Two bandits who held up Paul Wilcox, 2440 Fifth avenue, at Fifth avenue and Washington street early yesterday, secured only 2 cents for their trouble, he reported to police.

CRACKSMEN BALKED

Thieves knocked a combination off a safe in Reymer's tea room, 239 Fifth avenue, early yesterday, but fled before they could open the inner door. A check was being made to determine if they secured other loot. Entrance was gained by a fire escape and second floor window.

Morris Haston, 26 Trent street, a peddler, reported to police that his entire stock of notions, valued at about $5, was stolen by a thief who used a ladder to enter the second floor of his home last night.

F. C. Sheppard, 1200 Arkansas avenue, Dormont, parked his car at Phineas street and Guckert way, North Side, late yesterday and returned several hours later to find it in a nearby alley with a $27 radio missing.

Imported, Domestic Brands Listed For Feast

By IRVING NEWMAN

The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania is taking an interest this year in the Jewish Feast of Passover; its Liquor Control Board is supplying both domestic and imported kosher wines for use in the "Pesach" which is celebrated continuously for seven days, starting March 30.

In addition, Pittsburgh meat packers, food manufacturers and Jewish housewives are busily preparing for the holiday.

This starts with the "Seder Service" conducted by most Jews on the eve of the first day; it consists of ceremonial prayers and a special dinner in which all members of the family have a particular part to play.

KOSHER WINES LISTED

During the feast, only unleavened food may be eaten. The morning before the seder, all the leaven existing in the household is gathered and burned. Food products must be manufactured under strict supervision and marked approved by an official of the orthodox rabbinate.

The State Liquor Control Board has listed five imported kosher wines—Rishon Port, Sherry, Tokay, Malaga, and Haut Sauterne, at $2.50 a bottle.

On the domestic list is included Eagle (California) Port, Sherry, Tokay, Muscatel, Sauterne, and Burgundy at one dollar a bottle, and Rishon "Jash" California Brandy, at $2.50 a bottle.

These prices are no higher, and in many cases are less than regular imported and domestic wines of comparable quality on the new price list issued this week.

PRIVATE SALES BANNED

Local Liquor Board officials announced that the imported Sherry, Tokay and Malaga are now on sale at liquor stores, and the other types will be available shortly. This wine bears the kosher stamp, and enclosed in each case is a certificate bearing the signature and seal of A. I. Kook, chief rabbi of Eretz-Israel, Jerusalem.

With the control of the wines in the hands of the state, the Liquor Control Board announced today that sale of sacramental wines by rabbis, clergymen or priests to members of their congregations was prohibited.

At the same time it was pointed out they may purchase tax-free sacramental wines from importers and distribute it to their congregations, which can create a fund in the church treasuries for the purpose.

DISOWNS PLAN TO PROHIBIT POLITICS

Registrations Under New Law Opens Thursday

As Pittsburghers' first opportunity to register under the new permanent registration law, Thursday, nears, Mayor McNair today disowned any plan to remove city employes from politics.

Instead, he prepared an order requiring all city payrollers to register "as a duty."

It was reported he would insist that all municipal employes send him their registration numbers to prove they had enrolled on the voting lists.

EXPLAINS MOVE

The Mayor explained:

"I want to notify all members of the payroll that this talk of being in politics is not authorized by me. I want them to he in politcs, but I don't want any orders issued.

"They may register as Republicans, Democrats, Socialists or anything they want. There are no restrictions at all.

"I want to see every city emp loye exercise the franchise. It is their duty to take part in political affairs."

This pronouncement by the Mayor was viewed by observers as "setting the payrollers free" unless later developments indicate some other motive.

FEAR EVIDENCED

There had been much consternation among Republicans on the payroll, who were afraid any move to force them to register might be an attempt to coerce them into registering as Democrats under threat of losing their jogs with the Democratic administration.

While Thursday is the first registration day under the new law other registration days will be held on April 21 and May 2, before the primary May 15. Under the new law, every voter must be registered before he may participate in the primary.

Headquarters of the new registration commission are to be opened in the new County Office Building on Mandy, April 2, instead of today as previously reported.

BOYS CHARGED WITH THEFTS

Three youths were held in South Side Police Station today in connection with the theft of three automobiles and plumbing equipment valued at $150.

Frank Danko, 19, of 208 Haysglen avenue; John Tomko, 21, of 200 East Fourteenth avenue Homestead, and John Harakala, 18, of 6 Blackmore street, were arrested last night and early today by Homestead and South Side police and charged with larceny after recovery of the cars police reported.

The trio was surprised by police as they sat in an alleged stolen car in Hays late yesterday. Danko was arrested, but his companions escaped.

Tomko was picked up in his home several hours later and Harakala was arrested in Hays early today after he was alleged to have stolen another car. Police said theft of a third car was involved in the same case.

Cannon Ball Theft Laid to Frat Stunt

Police today were still looking for two cannon balls taken from the grounds of Soldiers' and Sailors' Hall several nights ago. The balls, each weighing 60 pounds were made for use during the Civil War.

CO-ED SMOKING HELD SOCIAL ART

Duquesne Dean Says It's Improper On Campus

Smoking by coeds on campus is not a moral problem; it is a social problem, according to Maria Gertrude Blanchard, dean of women at Duquesne University, where smoking by girl students is not sanctioned. She said:

"The policy concerning smoking on the campus by girls has never been defined by the administration. The problem has never been discussed. I suppose we will come to it sometime, since other co-educational schools in Pittsburgh now sanction smoking rooms for women.

"Personally, I feel that smoking is a social art, the same as drinking tea or coffee and that it should be done only at the proper time and place, in appropriate surroundings.

"Should the administration ever permit women to smoke on the campus, it should provide for the smoking to be done in a fire-proof building, with definite provisions for the proper accoutrements and supervision."

Smoking is a matter of good of bad taste, Dean Blanchard continued. She said:

"I belong to the old school and although I don't want to be a Carrie Nation, I wouldn't approve of girls smoking in public. I don't think a lady will smoke in a hostess' presence without permission, any more than a gentleman will.

"There is no sin or crime attached to it, but smoking is just like jazz dancing; it requires the proper setting and consideration for the presence of others."

European Nations Can All Agree, But Not With Each Other

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Europe in 1934. Troubles with its peace treaties.

The whole thing over there is an adagio dance. They only get together to throw each other around.

France, Italy and England can agree. But not with each other.

Russia, Germany, Austria and Poland all want tanks, bombers and poison gas. That's progress.

The way they feel about each other indicates the Alps Mountain range ain't high enough for a spite fence.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SANTA MONICA, Cal., March 26
To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Been reading all the Sunday articles by world-known writers and they all talk war. Well, if there is any excuse for anybody fighting at this time it's beyond me. The consensus of opinion is that "So and so has to fight sooner or later." Well, I believe if I have to fight a man "sooner or later," I would fight him later — the later the better. 23,200 ON CWA ROLLS TO BE RETAINED

Termination of the Civil Works program here this Thursday will bring no immediate changes in the relief work program in the county, according to James L. Stuart, local administrator of the Civil Works Administration.

Stuart, who is to continue in his present capacity when the CWA is supplanted by the work division of the Recovery Administration, said the 23,200 persons now employed by the CWA will be retained on the payroll when the new program is inaugurated next Monday.

Projects now under way also will be resumed after the two-day "holiday," and will be continued until completion unless canceled by state officials of the new relief work division.

NEEDY TO BE RETAINED

Since CWA workers who are not sufficiently needy are to be gradually eliminated from the ranks of the new divisions, George P. Mills, head of the Emergency Relief Board here, has applied to Stuart for a corps of 280 investigators to check the economic status of CWA employes.

According to George McClelland, state CWA deputy, those not in need will be discharged, and substitutes will be chosen from the relief rolls. McClelland said the total number of workers will probably be maintained at 23,000.

Stuart said he expects to be called to Harrisburg this week, along with administrators throughout the state, for a conference with Eric H. Biddle, state CWA head, on future policies to be followed under the new set-

PROTEST TO ROOSEVELT

A meeting of the "Association of Civil Works Employes" is to be held in the Downtown Y. M. C. A. at 8 p. m. tomorrow. Organizers of the union called on Stuart, leaving a copy of the resolution to be sent to President Roosevelt protesting discontinuance of the work program. A petition, to be appended to the resolution, is being circulated among CWA workers here.

According to the organizers, the union aims at forming locals of 50 members each, who will elect delegates to represent the local in the executive body.

NEW YORK, March 26.—(AP.)—Tenants of a house just off Park avenue, which has been condemned by Langdon W. Post, Tenement House Commissioner, as "a fire trap," fought eviction today by inviting the Commissioner in to tea.

The Commissioner was unable to accept the invitation, but promised to give the house another inspection. The tenants contend their house "is a nice building, perfectly safe."

POLICE PROBE FIVE MYSTERY DEATHS HERE

Deaths of six men, five of which were of mysterious circumstances, were reported to the morgue over the week-end. The sixth died from a heart attack while visiting relatives.

The body of a man tentatively identified as Frederick Dearbaum, 55, a paperhanger of Lakewood, O., was found last night by Radio Scout Car Patrolmen Charles Williams and Joseph Bohn in a vacant office building at 27 Barbeau street.

Police found the body while investigating an open door leading to the building. They reported they found a letter in his pocket addressed to the victim at his Ohio home.

WITNESSES SOUGHT

The body of a man found unconscious Saturday night in the hallway of the McGeagh Building lay in the morgue today while police are searching for witnesses of his fatal injury.

Tentatively identified as William Frella, 55, from papers in his pockets, he was found unconscious and taken to the Allegheny General Hospital, where he died of a fractured skull without making a statement, police said.

Believed to have been struck by a hit-and-run driver, an unidentified Negro was found in Bigelow boulevard, under the Seventeenth Street Incline, last night. A passing motorist notified police, who found him with a crushed chest. He died before arrival at Passavant Hospital.

STRICKEN ON VISIT

places. Ambitions of Senator Harry B. Scott, high in the councils of the organization, to become lieutenant governor would be shattered should Lamberton be selected, as their counties are so close together.

Presentation of the name of former Mayor John S. Herron, of Pittsburgh, as a candidate for lieutenant governor led to the belief that the organization might eventually decide to back an eastern man for the top place. In that event Pittsburgh regular Republicans, responsible for putting Herron forward, would insist that second place go to Allegheny County.

Sewickley Attorney Enters Democratic Race

The already complicated Democratic gubernatorial situation was given a new twist with the declaration of Charles Alvin Jones, Sewickley attorney, that he would become a candidate for the nomination. Jones said he was displeased with the tactics adopted in the slating of both George H. Earle, of Philadelphia, and Judge Charles D. Copeland, of Westmoreland County, as candidates.

Earle was selected by the Democratic State Committee, directed by Joseph F. Guffey, himself a candidate for the Senate.

Copeland was picked by a small group of Democrats, including men with whom Jones had been associated in politics. Jones was put on the Copeland executive committee but resigned, saying he had not been consulted.

There was some discussion this afternoon among Democrats that Jones might eventually become the compromise candidate of all the Democratic elements opposed to the Guffey leadership in Pennsylvania.

L. V. Barach, leader in this section for Judge E. C. Bonniwell, of Philadelphia, a third candidate for Governor, today took out petitions to become a candidate for chairman of the Allegheny County Democrats. He will oppose the incumbent, David L. Lawrence, Earle backer, and Malcolm McDonald, affiliated with the Copeland group.

Today is the last day for filing for state positions. Next Monday is the last day for withdrawal, and the carnage in seven days among patriots who fail to get a nod from groups to which they looked for support will be terrible.

VOLPE 'WITNESS' DOUBTED BY POLICE

Homicide Squad Lieut. Frank Ferris, in charge of the investigation of the Volpe slaying, today cast doubt on the story of a 22-year-old Soho youth that he had witnessed the murder of the three Volpe brothers.

The youth, Carmen Raimand, of 1905 Forbes street, had named "Big Mike" Spinelli as one of three men who participated in the triple murder, according to police.

Ferris declared there were many discrepancies in Raimand's story. The detective showed Raimand a photograph of Spinelli today, but Raimand did not recognize the picture, Ferris said.

Raimand said that "Prince Johnny" Volpe was wearing a dark suit when he was slain, but he had on a light suit at that time, according to Ferris.

ARRESTED ON 'JOB'

Raimand and three companions were arrested when they were found looting the wholesale grocery of Joseph Certa, 1713 Penn avenue, early yesterday, police said.

Raimand, when taken to the police station, according to Lieut. William Lavery, claimed he witnessed the Volpe affair and saw "Prince Johnny" fall mortally wounded in a gutter outside a coffee shop at 704 Wylie avenue July 29, 1932. James and Arthur Volpe were slain in the same affair.

He said he lived over the coffee shop conducted by John Bazanno, who was later murdered in Brooklyn. At the time of the triple-killing, he was quoted by Lavery as saying he was standing in a doorway across the street.

CONFIRMS STORY

Turned over to Homicide Detectives Frank Morgan and Thomas Mulvehill, Raimand denied his previous statement and claimed he made it because he had hoped for immunity and he knew that Spinelli would not return from Italy, where he successfully fought extradition proceedings. After questioning, however, Morgan and Mulvehill said he confirmed his original story.

Arrested with Raimand were Joseph Cuda, 20, 927 Bedford avenue; Joseph Saldutte, 23, of 21 Walsh road, and Tony Miele, 19, of 539 McDonald street, according to police.

In addition to Raimand, several other reputed eye-witnesses in the Volpe case are said to be under police guard. One is a blonde woman.

JUDGE DREW'S SISTER LOSES CITY JOB

Mrs. Helen B. Steele, sister of Justice James B. Drew of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court, was fired as stenographer and clerk for the Civil Service Commission today despite the intercession of Mayor McNair.

A member of the commission said Mrs. Steele, although listed as a stenographer and clerk, could not operate a typewriter or take dictation.

Mayor McNair went to see the Civil Service Commission, holding hearings today. Later he said:

The commission appointed Gertrude L. Conner as Mrs. Steele's successor, effective at once. Mrs. Steele was in the exempt class of employes and civil service regulations governing dismissal were not applicable to her case.

Meanwhile, City Solicitor Cornelius D. Scully, representing Mayor McNair, requested the Civil Service Commission to rule the jobs of city paymester and chief paymaster's clerk exempt from civil service regulations as the administration jockeyed for patronage.

Scully said the present holders of the position of Louis Glesenkamp and Harry Sikov, were not capable of fulfilling their additional duties under the new banking code.

Miss Julia Doyle, chairman of the commission, refused to admit testimony involving the competency of the two men, however, and said the only question involved in the hearing was whether or not the jobs come under civil service rules.

Attorneys A. M. Oliver and Meyer S. Sikov, representing the officeholders, filed an exception to the proposal, denying that a change of classification of the positions would benefit the city.

They said the proposal was prompted by personal and selfish political motives. According to a current rumor, Daniel Geary, South Side accountant, is being considered by the administration for the paymaster's job.

Holy Week Sermonette

Dr. Ralph B. Urmy, pastor of the Bellevue Methodist Episcopal Church, California avenue, Bellevue, gives the first of the Holy Week sermonettes today under the auspices of the Pittsburgh Council of Churches.

Text: "Judas, betrayest thou the Son of Man with a kiss?"

The act of Judas long ago reached the bad eminence of the classic act of treachery. Traitors, we think, can never be worse than he. To be a Judas is to be the most damnable of disloyal mortals.

Perhaps that feeling arises not only because of the character of Him who was betrayed and because of the 30 pieces of silver for which the deed was done, but also because the traitor used a kiss to do so despicable a thing.

But Judas is not alone in this. He has much company. His "Hail, Master" and the imprint of his lips are the stock-in-trade of those who put profession above deed. Such Christians are they of whom Jesus asked the searching question, "Why call ye Me Lord, Lord, and do not the things which I say?" A pretense of devotion is repugnant to every honest soul. Jesus has nothing but scorn for it.

On the ground of truth alone it is better never to be a disciple of the Christ than, being one, to make a mockery of that discipleship by perverting an expression of love to the ends of selfishness and dishonor.

Firemen Dine While Blaze Rages Nearby

Fire laddies of New Kensington who were celebrating the fortieth birthday of their chief, Edward Clawson, in the Elks' Home, early today, were uninterrupted when fire caused $1,000 damage to the White Tower sandwich shop, Fifth avenue. Other firemen fought the fire.

The blaze, which spread through the air ventilator and burned under the roof of the one-story tile building, was caused by grease burning in a frying pan. Chief Clawson was presented with several gifts.

ONE of the mysteries of life is how much care a man will take of thoroughbred animals—noting when they are "off"...and toning them back to the "pink of condition" to increase their daily usefulness—yet will shamefully neglect his own run-down condition.

Certainly, there is a pardonable pride in an animal's healthy appearance...but human beings are more important than animals. Yet some people just hope when "run-down" that they will "come around."

It is just good "horse-sense" to reflect and reason that your so-called "tired feeling" may come from a lowered red-blood-cell count and the hemo-glo-bin in these cells.

There is a remedy specially designed to bring back strength to weakened blood...and no one can be strong, healthy, happy, and full of vitality when in a run-down condition.

If you suspect an organic disease consult your physician...if you feel weak...lack a keen appetite...if your skin is pale and off-color...try S.S.S. as a part of your regular daily diet. Take it just before meals. Unless your case is exceptional, you should soon notice a pick-up in your appetite . . . your color and skin should improve with increased strength and energy.

S.S.S. is not just a so-called tonic but a tonic specially designed to stimulate gastric secretions, and also having the mineral elements so very, very necessary in rebuilding the oxygen-carrying hemo-glo-bin of the blood to enable you to "carry on" without exhaustion as you should naturally.

S.S.S. value has been proven by generations of use, as well as by modern scientific appraisal. It is truly a blood and body tonic. You will find it at all drug stores in two convenient sizes...the larger size is more economical. © The S.S.S. Co.

Glances Into the Realms of Domesticity and Romance

By MARION BRUNOT

Girl, Confidante of Many Men, Stranger to Love

The WORLD is made up of GOOD and EVIL. So says a girl reader of mine.

And moreover, she adds, we must choose our FRIENDS from among such.

She has done considerable picking and choosing. For the door of her home is wide open to her chums, and she has many of them. But the trouble is the boys treat her as a confidante rather than as a best girl. They tell her all their trials and tribulations in connection with OTHER GIRLS. And all the while she is as a STRANGER LOOKING IN ON LOVE.

And she is beginning to wonder where it will lead her.

Dear Miss Brunot:

I am another one of your 20-year-old girls who can't find out what is wrong with themselves. I hope you will be able to give me some advice.

The world, as we all know it, is made up both of good and evil, and I have friends in both classes. I like good, clean, wholesome fun. And do not go in for the worldly things and neither do my closest friends.

Our home is open to all my associates and a number of young people are boys who have steady girls elsewhere, and they ask advice of me. Not once do they ask for a date.

I feel free to talk with them, and they seem to enjoy my presence. For they visit me often.

I am very jolly with both young and old. It is my nature to look upon the bright side of most everything. And I am always ready to encourage others.

I am asked to parties, but I never feel free to ask a boy friend to a party, as many girls do. I live in a nice home, but I do not expect the young man of today to spend much of his earnings upon me.

Young people look upon me as a person who understands what I am doing. But there, they are mistaken. I am groping just as they are.

I am not trying in any way to praise myself. I am only speaking out loud to you, and anxious for help. ALLSPICE.

CONFIDANTE NEEDED

I must say before I begin to talk plainly to you, that I think you are a very fine girl. In between the lines of your letter I read the BIG HEART and the KINDLY DISPOSITION of the philosopher. And these are always valuable to humanity.

People cannot get along without a confidante. Men cannot love from day to day, and not find it necessary to seek out the understanding companionship of a good woman. That is if they are the right sort of men.

You are young, only 20 years of age, and you have a mind if you develop it. For you have a certain reasoning faculty. Thus you have many years ahead of attraction, providing you do not let yourself stand still. Women of today find many useful things to do. The business and the professional world, as well as the individual home, await the young girl who can use her brain as well as her feminine charm.

PAID COMPLIMENTS

The boys who visit and are welcome to your home are giving you something, and it is very valuable. They are telling you of their heart, their ambitions. They are paying you a compliment more far reaching than they are paying the girls whom they consider their real sweethearts. Some of them will not marry these girls, anyway. Differences of ideals will come in between, and they will drift apart. But you will be remembered, as a good, wholesome influence. As a cheery and wise heart.

Of course we do not want to be ALL MEMORY. That is not a full bucket of life for any woman. But just because you have not met a genuine boy friend as yet, is no reason that he may not be just around the corner for you. You are attractive. You have a home-making heart, you are full of pep and fun. And the day will come when you will find the real man and he will appreciate you.

However, in the meanwhile, I cannot see why you do not do what the other girls do, and ask some one of these boys, the one you admire the most even if you are not really in love with him, to some of these parties. I am sure he will be only too glad to accept. You may have a quality in you which does not make you as easily approached as the less thoughtful girls. And if such is the case, you will find it expedient to do a little part of the asking.

Thank you, Allspice, for writing me such a nice philosophical letter.

Watch Trifles, They May Influence Your Life, Says Fay King

OH WHAT'S THE USE?
IN LITTLE THINGS WE OFTEN DESPAIR
THIS IS A GREAT BLOW TO US BUT WE CAN BE BRAVE AND SEE IT THROUGH!
IN A CRISIS WE DISCOVER WHAT FORTITUDE WE HAVE
I SPOKE TOO HASTILY AND HARSHLY!
FAY KING

By FAY KING

In times of crisis few of us fail to rally the proper courage needed.

Indeed, we are surprised at the fortitude which sustains us through sorrow or trouble.

But in small ways and little matters the majority of us fail deplorably.

Yet just as the mightiest structure can be raised or demolished bit by bit so can our actions in trifles, be they constructive or destructive, build up or break down our characters and happiness.

If we could be as dependable, considerate and thoughtful in little things as we are in greater, all misunderstandings could be avoided.

The suppression of a harsh word and the expression of a happy one can make all the difference in the world.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

The Boy Friend's Parents

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please tell me what would be the proper thing to say to my young man friend's parents when I am introduced? He is a "steady," and just as soon as things pick up we intend to be married. S.

Say something like this, in your most gracious manner: "How do you do, Mrs. Allen. It is such a special pleasure to meet you. I've heard such delightful things about you from George that I've been looking forward very much to this meeting," or "How do you do, Mr. Allen. I'm so happy to know you at last. George is very proud of his father, and I am very proud to meet you."

Addressing Married Woman

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it ever good form for a married woman whose husband is living, to be addressed as "Mrs. Mary Smith?" A says either way is correct and B says only "Mrs. John Smith" is correct. B.

B is correct. An envelope addressed to a married woman (or to a widow) should be addressed with the formal name: Mrs. John Smith. It is not good form to use the first name in the formal name.

Who Should Give Showers?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it proper for the sister of the bride-to-be to give a shower in her honor if she (the sister) is to be the maid of honor at the wedding? If it is not proper, what other affair could she give? S.

It's usually taken for granted that the close relatives of the bride-to-be or of the bridegroom-to-be do not give the showers for the bride-to-be. It's apparent that this sponsoring of showers by such close relatives gives too much impression that the party is a "promotion." However, this is for the hostess to decide for herself. In better taste is a luncheon or tea planned for the bride-to-be. Or, if the men are to be invited too, the party may be a dinner or a supper.

Rising to the Occasion

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—Please tell me if a girl, aged 20 years, should rise when being introduced to a woman (married) who is about 30 years old? The gathering was informal.

2—Should a girl remain seated when being introduced to another girl? When a young man is introduced to her? H.

1—Yes, it is mannerly for the girl of 20 to rise when she is introduced to a married woman of about 35.

2—The girl needn't rise when she is introduced to another girl. And she does not rise when a man is introduced to her, unless she wishes to pay special respect to an elderly or very distinguished gentleman.

Household Hints

If you want to bake apples in a way that will make men enthuse over them, peel, core and place apples in a fireproof dish with enough water to cover the bottom of dish, then allowing one tablespoon of Demerara sugar and half teaspoon of butter to every apple, or half apple if very large, mix to a paste, and spread mixture over the apples. Cover and bake in a moderate oven till fully half done, then baste them with the liquid, and leave cover off and continue baking till ready.

Scorch marks on white silk may be removed by covering them with a little peroxide of hydrogen, then pressing with a warm iron.

PALATABLE SPRING FEVER DOSES

By PRUNELLA WOOD

FLOWERY DRESSES make the spring potent indoors before the gardens get around to it, and women never fail to capitalize this opportunity. There is apparently as much satisfaction in fingering a crepe bestrewn with roses and what-not as there is in reading seed catalogues, come the first friendly zephyr. Brides will have flowery trousseaux this spring, for Easter ends Lent on April 1, the top date for spring fever.

* * *

THERE IS no getting around it that the redingote sketched below is far from floral—but there are those that prefer conventional wiggles on their prints to anything more romantic, and it's spring that calls up their enthusiasm.

But the other two models shown are practically fragrant with posies, one levelled at the very formal occasion, such as a wedding or a debutante's first tea, and the other perfectly timed to wear beneath a tailored afternoon coat of cloth or fur for any casual outing.

(Copyright, 1934, King Features Synd., Inc.)

Black and white, that magpie spring favorite, makes the dress and coat revers of this moss crepe and basket woolen redingote costume. The frock has an interesting diagonal neckline, very effective with the wide revers of contrasting line on the coat.

Any bridesmaid could like this brown chiffon formal afternoon frock, which is printed with violets and roses. Its jacket is very high in front, and long sleeved; it fastens at the nape of the neck and the waistline only. The two big chrysanthemums on the shoulder are beige and green, to pick up the leaf tones of the flowered print.

Given in Marriage

A Sequel to Heart Of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge's Father Finds a Message From the Grave

I hardly dared to breathe as my father looked down into the cavity in my mother's japanned box, the existence of which I never had suspected.

It was no such elaborate arrangement as the secret compartment in the lock-box bequeathed to Marion Morton by her grandmother, and which we now knew contained so important and dangerous a secret, to be disclosed upon Marion's eighteenth birthday. It was simply a small recess beneath the padded lining, appeared to adhere to the bottom of the box. But, to my father, this cavity with its contents was evidently of supreme importance, and I saw his face brighten unbelievably as he took an old-fashioned tiny jewel box from it.

"Surely she wouldn't keep the empty box!" I heard him murmur. And then, as he opened the box and took out a sapphire ring in an old-style, but exquisite setting of tiny diamonds, I saw his face break up into waves of emotion: and with something very like a sob he brought the ring to his lips, bending his head so low that I could not see his face.

I lay motionless, silent, wishing myself anywhere but where I was.

But when he lifted his face to mine, wet with tears so rarely shed by a man of his caliber, I realized that those memories had not been all tragic—that from somewhere in that long distant past he had received comfort and healing.

GUARDED SECRET

"Forgive me, darling," he began, but I interrupted him.

"Forgive you?" I repeated. "It is I who should crave forgiveness for remaining here while you examined this box."

"Who else should share this sacred hour with me?" he queried tenderly.

"Did she never tell you about this?" he asked after a long minute.

"Never," I replied. "I did not even know until this minute that there was a cavity in the box."

"You didn't?"

There was such surprise in his tone that I was emboldened to voice a thought which had come insistently to me during the last few seconds.

"No; and father—"

I hesitated, and he looked at me sharply.

"Tell me," he said quickly.

"She told me so much else. We had no secrets from each other. And you know she told me, almost with her dying breath, that I was to hold no bitterness against you—"

"I know, the blessed saint!" he said unsteadily.

"What I am wondering," I went on, "is if she did not leave the ring in this cavity as a message to you."

"What makes you think that?" he asked hoarsely.

QUEER REQUEST

"I have been working it out in my mind," I began slowly, "since I saw this cavity, the existence of which I had never suspected, although I have handled the box frequently, both before mother went away, and afterward. She knew how I prized the box, and that I never would part with it; and—" it was my turn to stare at him—"I remember now a queer request once she made of me."

"What was it?" The words were but a strained whisper.

"She made me promise that I would write out instructions that the box should be burned at my death. Don't you see? She never meant anyone else but you to see this ring? She knew that if you found me, we would be very close, and that some time I would show you this box. It is a message to you!"

With the ring clasped in his hands as if it were a sacred religious relic and he a devotee, he gazed at me wonderingly, then a look of happy belief settled in his eyes.

"I feel that you are right," he said. "It is a message—of forgiveness—from her."

But I was not yet satisfied. My feminine intuition told me that a woman would not be content to leave only the ring without a written word. I sat up among my pillows and stretched out my hand to him.

"May I see the box a second?" I asked.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

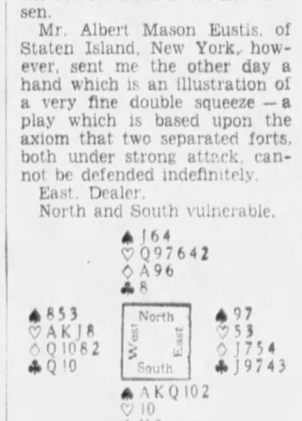
A Nice Double Squeeze

Examples of perfect squeezes at the Bridge table are not extremely common. Frequently a defending player will believe that he is forced to forego protection in some suit, when, had he watched the fall of the cards with greater care, he would have found that the squeeze with which he was threatened was mental only, or what the experts call a "pseudo-squeeze," which is just another way of saying that the correct discard was not chosen.

Mr. Albert Mason Eustis, of Staten Island, New York, however, sent me the other day a hand which is an illustration of a very fine double squeeze—a play which is based upon the axiom that two separated forts, both under strong attack, cannot be defended indefinitely.

East, Dealer.

North and South vulnerable.



The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	2 ♠	Pass	3 ♡
Pass	4 ♣	Pass	4 ♠
Pass	4 NT	Pass	5 ◇
Pass	6 ♠	Pass	Pass
Pass

Mr. Eustis in his bidding displayed a cheery optimism which only ultimate success could justify. The Opening bid of two was shaded, but Mr. Eustis explains that he was behind on the score. The bid of four no-trump was also, to say the least, liberal, and the bid of six spades, when partner had shown a preference only, was not overly conservative. On the other hand, North could have been a little more courageous in his bidding, but perhaps with such an aggressive partner he had reason to feel that discretion was the better part of valor.

The heart King was opened and when the Ten fell from the closed hand West shifted to a trump lead, which Mr. Eustis won in his own hand. He then led the Ace and King of clubs, discarding a heart from Dummy on the second round, and followed with a third club, which he trumped. As the cards lie West's play here was immaterial. Mr. Eustis returned to his own hand with the diamond King, ruffed another club in Dummy and again entered his own hand by ruffing a heart. He then led trumps. The situation prior to the lead of the last trump was:

When Mr. Eustis led the spade Ten West was forced to play the diamond Ten. The heart Queen was discarded from Dummy. East then was squeezed. He was forced to retain the club Knave, as he knew that Mr. Eustis still held a club. The discard of a diamond permitted the winning of the last two tricks with the Ace and nine of diamonds.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Concentrate on Cure for Neuritis

In changeable weather sufferers from neuritis bitterly complain. Sudden drops in temperature, exposure to cold, dampness and drafts and other weather changes, increase the discomfort or actual pain of this annoying affliction.

Dr. Copeland

The victim resorts to many remedies, making every effort to control the pain. But in truth he rarely endeavors to do those things that overcome the underlying disorder.

Many of my readers will be annoyed at this statement. But for all that it is true. Too much attention is given to the relief of neuritis and too little to its cure.

Neuritis, as its name implies, is really an inflammation of a nerve. It is usually the result of some chronic constitutional disturbance. In many instances, it can be traced to diseased and infected tonsils, nasal sinuses, teeth or other organs.

Bear in mind, that points of infection within the body often lead to distant pain and discomfort. By this, I mean, that an infected tooth may be the real source of pain in a shoulder, arm or leg. The poisons absorbed by the system can set up an irritation anywhere in the body. This is often the case in neuritis.

As a rule, one nerve is involved, but in many cases, several nerves may be inflamed. It may be a nerve located in the neck, face, shoulders, arms, hands or legs. The pain is usually worse at night. This leads to restless or disturbed sleep.

Of course not every case of neuritis is due to a localized point of infection. It is frequently encountered among lead workers, painters and in other occupations where workers are exposed to certain chemicals. Continued exposure to lead causes lead poisoning which in a sense is a form of neuritis. I am glad to say that the laws now protect these workers by demanding adequate supervision, installation of proper ventilators, wearing of aprons, gloves, glasses and other measures to guard against irritating fumes and chemicals.

Neuritis may be met in the course of a severe constitutional infection. It is occasionally encountered after diphtheria, typhoid fever, pneumonia, rheumatism, tuberculosis or influenza. It is a common complication of those who suffer from chronic alcoholism.

My advice to every sufferer from neuritis is to consult with a physician. He will make every effort to determine the underlying cause of the trouble. It may be necessary to resort to X-ray and various laboratory tests which may be recommended by your doctor.

BUCCO MANAGER PLEASED WITH FORM OF PITCHERS

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Home Park Terry's Hope.
Watkins Fits Into Plan.
Fall of Golf's Emperor.
Growth of Church Nine.
Hockey Amateurs Rising.
Cloud on Billiard Title.

Bill Terry appears to be centering his pennant-repeating hopes largely on the 77 home games the Giants will play at the Polo Grounds and the number of times they can pop that lively ball into the close right field stand, which is only 257 feet from the plate along the foul line. That would seem to be the big idea behind the trade of outfielders, in which he has obtained George Watkins from the Cardinals in exchange for George Davis. There is no doubt that the swap helps the Giants. Its' a safe guess they had to give up some cash on the side. Davis looked great while with the Phils in 1932, his first season in the majors, but as a Giant last year he slumped to a batting average of only .258. The Cards probably would have refused to consider such a deal if Watkins had not been a holdout.

George Watkins

Watkins is a fine ball player under any conditions, better all around than Davis, and will be of especial value to the Giants, in view of that short right field, because he is a left-hand hitter, whereas Davis swings from the right side. Terry evidently aims to make the starboard stand count for as much as possible, in connection with the livelier ball, as his entire outfield is now made up of left-hand hitters, so that, counting himself, four of the seven regulars hit from that side of the plate. Seemingly, Bill is making his team fit the Polo Grounds with the idea of trying to win the pennant at home.

EVEN JONES CAN'T NEGLECT GAME AND WIN

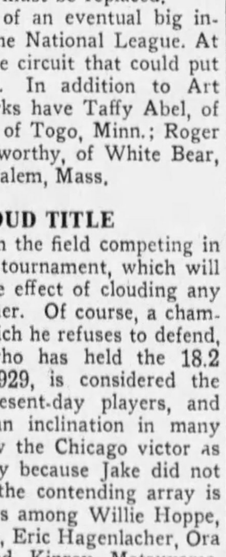
Measured by average golf standards, Bobby Jones wasn't what you might call a complete bust in the Atlanta Open, which ended yesterday in a victory for Horton Smith, with a score of 284. Even back in thirteenth place, it would have been not at all to the discredit of the average major golfer to get a tie with such men as Densmore Shute, British Open champion, and Walter Hagen, and to make a score of only six above fours for 72 holes.

But for Jones, of course, it was a tremendous drop. It was his worst defeat since his first open tournament in 1920. The 12 pros topping him exceeded the combined total of players who had finished ahead of him in open competition previously over a stretch of 10 years. A great tumble for a superstar who had dominated his field by a wider margin than any other champion in sports. It proved that even a former emperor like Jones can't neglect his game and continue to win.

It was an absence of four years from competition that made Bobby a trailer in the sport he used to rule. He lost his putting touch, his competitive edge. No doubt, if he desired to try, he could come back in time to be a worthy foeman for any of them. In fact, he was improving noticeably as the tournament progressed, taking only 62 putts on the last 36 holes against 74 on the first 36, and playing the final 15 holes yesterday in three under par. But for the present he has dropped to the level of being just another golf player and has demonstrated there are no exceptions to the rule that a workman can't stay away from his trade without getting rusty.

CHURCH NINE NOW NATIONAL INSTITUTION

The frequent appearance of the House of David baseball team in exhibition games with major clubs in the South draws attention to the remarkable growth of that organization. From a church nine it has become a national institution, a caravan touring the country, carrying its own advance man, bill posters and lighting equipment for night games, and having many of the properties of a circus. The enterprise has become so successful that there are two teams on tour, one working east and the other west of Chicago. Last year the western club played to 200,000 paid admissions, while the eastern troupe more than doubled that figure, surpassing half a dozen major league teams in attendance in a schedule of 160 games.



Grover Alexander

Originally made up of bearded and long-haired residents of the House of David colony at Benton Harbor, Mich., the teams no longer are under such restrictions. Grover Alexander toured with the western team last season, which was his third year with the club, while the eastern tourists featured a girl pitcher, Jackie Mitchell. This year Babe Didrikson is to be a new attraction. Alexander was the highest-salaried player in 1933, having received $3,000 for the season. In 1931 and 1932 he drew $5,500, more than he could have made in organized ball.

AMATEUR ICERS HEADED FOR BIG LEAGUE

The great advance made by amateur hockey players in this country and Canada soon may land some of them in the major league. Eddie Gerard, manager of the Montreal Maroons, is one big leaguer who believes a considerable number of simon-pures will be signed for big-time tryouts even before another season arrives. Gerard says the amateurs, now playing pro rules, are coming ahead fast, and that many of the National League veterans, nearing the shadows, must be replaced.

The situation offers the promise of an eventual big increase in American representation in the National League. At present, Chicago is the only club in the circuit that could put an all-United States team on the ice. In addition to Art Coulter, of Pittsburgh, the Black Hawks have Taffy Abel, of Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.; Doc Romnes, of Togo, Minn.; Roger Jenkins, of Appleby, Wis.; Roy Goldsworthy, of White Bear, Minn., and Louis Napoleon Trudel, of Salem, Mass.

ABSENCE OF SCHAEFER TO CLOUD TITLE

The absence of Jake Schaefer from the field competing in the international 18.2 balkline billiard tournament, which will open tonight in Chicago, may have the effect of clouding any championship claims made by the winner. Of course, a champion cannot continue to hold a title which he refuses to defend, but Schaefer, who has held the 18.2 honors since 1929, is considered the class of the present-day players, and there may be an inclination in many quarters to view the Chicago victor as having won only because Jake did not play. At that, the contending array is a notable one, as among Willie Hoppe, Welker Cochran, Eric Hagenlacher, Ora Morningstar and Kinrey Matsuyama, all except Matsuyama are former 18.2 champions. Morningstar's championship reign was brief. He won the title in 1909 and lost it to Hoppe a few months later in a match that was played in this city, at Old City Hall.

Jake Schaefer

Remaining out of competition, Schaefer will allow others to shoot at the records he established. Jake holds all of the existing world marks at 18.2. They include high run of 432, made against Edouard Horemans in 1925; high single average of 400, scored against Hagenlacher the same year, and high grand average of 93¾ for 1,500 points of match play, made against Horemans.

PIRATES TAKE SECOND FRAY FROM SOX

By CHARLES J. DOYLE
Staff Correspondent.

LOS ANGELES, March 26.—The Pirate pitching staff, admittedly a source of deep concern to Manager George Gibson and his aides, reflected such a strong tone of optimism today that the collective morale of the team was higher than it has been for a long time.

Victors in four of the six bruises with the major league foes at Wrigley Field here, the big Pirate cast enjoyed a complete day of rest.

The break in the rigorous training was appfeciated by the somewhat weary athletes. As Honus Wagner remarked:

"The gang has indulged in more than forty workouts and therefore will benefit by a day of relaxation."

BUCS BEAT CHISOX

The Pittsburghers defeated the White Sox, 8 to 5, yesterday to make it two in a row over the American Leaguers. An even split in four games with the Cubs makes the Pittsburgh accomplishments to date stand out as highly successful.

But it was the form shown by the pitchers in the past few days that is pleasing to Gibby. Consider, for example, the case of the veteran Heinie Meine, who made his first start of the season yesterday. Gibson told Meine and Red Lucas to use their own methods in reaching pitching shape and both have acted accordingly. Meine came to Gibby a few days ago and said he would like to start yesterday. His request was granted. Lucas has asked Gibby to let him start some day this week. The sorrel top showed some fast stuff in a couple of recent batting drills.

Meine was impressive as he held the Sox to two runs in four innings, Hal Smith relieving the St. Louis Dutchman also was in rare form, but his support cracked in the sixth when the enemy scored two runs.

P. WANER HITS HOMER

Paul Waner's homer in the ninth was the opening gong of a three-run drive that sewed up the game. Lyons, Heving, Pomorski and Gallivan pitched for the White Sox.

Gibson, Wagner and Otis Crandall make no secret over the pleasure they have felt in watching the pitchers in the past few days. The trio feel that the Pirates will have five or six pitchers qualified to be classed as starting hurlers in French, Lucas, Smith, Swift, Meine and Birkofer.

The Pirates will leave for Riverside tomorrow morning. At the training site of the Hollywood club they will take on the Stars, slated for tomorrow and Wednesday. Returning to Los Angeles Wednesday night the Buccos will prepare to mix with the Cubs in four more games.

Chillysauce

Manager George Gibson went too far on the sunshine baths and as a result he is wearing dark glasses and nursing a thumping head. Gibby has been out of battle togs for several days. The Pirate boss went hatless for two weeks in the sweltering sun with the idea of acquiring a tan. His eyes have given him a lot of trouble.

All Simmons has long been a close approach to the perfect baseball player, in this writer's opinion, and Al is a pleasant chap who carries his honors well. Simmons says he is in better physical trim now than he has been for several years. There isn't much chance that the former Mackian star will break into a world series this year . . . the White Sox slab staff is a bit bushy.

Jimmy Dykes seems to be the scrappiest member of the White Sox band. Jimmy is 36, but like Rabbit Maranville, he seems to improve with age. Dykes and Cy Pfirman passed some bitter words, the infielder jumping on the National League umpire early in yesterday's game. There is no fooling in these fights. Each league is out to show up the rival circuit.

Three sailors approached the Pirates' club house door, one carrying a jug of liquor. Their spokesman said:

The laugh was on Gus who is noted for his sobriety.

Nick Etten, Davenport flash, is being groomed to play first base, but the 18-year-old outfielder probably will play the bag for Little Rock, of the Southern Association. Nick appears to be headed for

LOCALS DEFEAT FOE TWICE IN TWO YEARS

By JULIUS LEVIN

Pounding at the door that leads to the state scholastic basketball throne for the second time in two years, South High School, champion of the City League and District VIII representative in the P. I. A. A. eliminations for the crown relinquished by Lower Merion, 1933 titleholder, hopes to succeed where it failed last season by taking the western regional laurels tomorrow night, when it engages New Kensington High School, W. P. I. A. L. kingpin and District VII entry in the state playoffs, in the Pitt Stadium pavilion.

The process of elimination having reduced the field of 12 district champions to four survivors, two in Western Pennsylvania and two in Eastern Pennsylvania, the finalists for the state title game, to be played in Pittsburgh next Saturday night, will be determined tomorrow night, when the regional finals are staged in the two brackets.

FINALS TOMORROW

While South and New Kensington battled in the Pitt Stadium pavilion for the western regional championship and the right to enter the final game, Reading High School, champion of District III, and Coal Township, standard-bearer in District IV, will be clashing at Lancaster for the eastern regional laurels and the right to engage the western finalist for the state toga.

Established as top-heavy favorites to enter the championship game before the state eliminations got under way, both South and New Kensington have borne out pre-tournament predictions by their sterling exhibitions in the P. I. A. A. playoffs.

South, undefeated in the City League for two successive years, has accounted for the demise of Somerset, champion of District V, and Huntingdon, titleholder in District VI, in the state eliminations so far, while New Kensington, having drawn a bye in the first round, disposed of Erie East, champion of District X, in a second-round duel. South defeated Somerset, 46-16, and Huntingdon, 34-10, while New Kensington vanquished Erie East, 42-27.

DOUBLE INCENTIVE

New Kensington will have a double incentive to lead it into battle with South High tomorrow night. For the past two years the hopes of the W. P. I. A. L. representative to ascend the state scholastic throne have been shattered by the City League contender. Two years ago, Fifth Avenue was chosen as the City League contestant and the Pittsburghers surprised the district basketball fans by sweeping aside Braddock High School after the latter team had gone through the W. P. I. A. L. eliminations to capture the crown. Last season, this same South quintet repeated the dose by disposing of Duquesne, W. P. I. A. L. titleholder, in the first inter-district game. New Kensington, as well as followers of the W. P. I. A. L., believe it is time to stop the City Leaguers.

When South takes the floor against New Kensington it will be striving for its eighth straight victory in the Pitt Stadium pavilion. Last season they defeated Perry in two playoff games for the city championship and added Duquesne and DuBois to their list of victims in inter-district duels.

INCREASE STREAK

This season they again swept aside Perry in both games of the City League playoff series and so far have added Somerset to their list of stadium victims. The game with Huntingdon was played in Altoona.

Both teams are well familiar with the Pitt court. South has played three of its games there this season, while New Kensington's passers appeared in five at the local floor. They vanquished Ford City, Uniontown, Scott, of North Braddock, and Ambridge on the Pitt court in winning the W. P. I. A. L. crown, and added Erie East in the P. I. A. A. eliminations.

Both coaches, Grover C. Washabaugh, of South, and Carl Glock, of New Kensington, have announced they will start their regular lineups. Eddie Milkovich and Joe Galiszewski will be at forwards, Eddie Spotovich at center, and Eddie Czlapinski and Charley Miskevics at guard for South. New Kensington will start Eddie Waugh and Harry Jeannette at forward, Charley Waugh at center, and Joe Ross and Andy Trzeciak at guard.

M'GUINNESS, KERN WIN

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

The crack P. A. A. pair, Bill Kern and Vin McGuinness, carried off top honors of the City Class B doubles handball championship tournament by downing Dave Olbum and Sam Gladstone, husky Y. M. H. A. duo, in torridly contested final fray before a large gallery at the Y. M. H. A. yesterday afternoon. The verdict read 21-19, 13-21, 21-19.

A rumor to the effect that Kern is to be deprived, on account of professionalism, of the Junior A. M. A., A. A. U. singles crown that he won a week ago yesterday thus far has failed to crystallize into an official decision, according to Tourney Chairman Art Scher today. Scher, who also handled the City Class B doubles event, declared that regardless of what action A. A. U. officers may take upon the subject of Kern's status as former Green Bay Packer football ace and present assistant grid mentor at Pitt, the popular bill need have no fear for his dual laurels, as the two-man conclave was run independently of the A. A. U.

W. H. Brown won the Pittsburgh Golf Club singles tennis title yesterday, defeating Howard J. Burgwin, 7-5, 9-7, in the final round of the annual title tourney. In the first round of the club's doubles championship, Harmar Denny and C. G. Coolidge defeated Blair Childs and Graham McCargo, 6-3, 6-1.

Play in the annual P. A. A. intra-mural squash racquets title tilting got under way the past week-end. Coach Harold Mortlock has split his field of nearly three-score entries into Classes A, B and C and to date has disposed of no less than 20 tussles. The summary:

CLASS A

First round—Dr. David L. O'Loughlin won from W. J. Clegg, by default; Dr. George Booth defeated Dr. M. A. Slocum, 15-13, 15-2, 8-15, 16-13; J. Rogers Flannery defeated John D. Beatty, 3-2; Paul Sullivan defeated H. W. Mitchell, 16-13, 15-11, 15-12.

CLASS B

First round—Lieut. Winslow won from Dr. Heald, by default; Dr. Ray Gillis defeated R. H. Alexander, 3-0; J. M. Graham defeated R. J. S. Pigott, 3-1; Thomas A. Thornton won from Dr. Dunmire, by default; J. H. Hillman III defeated J. E. Russell, 3-2; Doug Hannah defeated George Rice, 3-1; G. R. Geeseman defeated Jack Redmond, 3-2; Harbaugh Miller defeated Russ Cullen, 3-0; Dr. E. A. Conti defeated Charles Schildecker, 3-1; F. N. Gayton won from Dr. Williamson, by default; Sam B. Second round—W. C. King, Jr., defeated F. A. Hewitt, 3-2.

CLASS C

GRAPHIC GOLF

BACKSPIN

To apply spin it is essential that the clubhead hit the ball a descending blow. Not only does spin work as a braking influence when the ball comes to earth, but it also enables a straighter trajectory. In the ideal swing the clubhead comes onto the ball at right angles to the line of flight and hits the ball straight along this line. To facilitate the descending impact it is well to have the ball back a bit further toward the right foot than would be the case in the drive. A pictorial example is shown in the horseshoe above, the clubhead meeting the ball before the bottom of the arc is reached. Avoid both hurried hitting and pampering the stroke. Both will fail of their purpose. The natural swing from an upright stance crisply executed will work best. In the above illustration, Willie MacFarlane's swing for a shot of this nature is portrayed, which he accomplishes in his usual easy manner. If you have trouble with this shot you might follow Jock Hutchison's tip and try to drive the ball into the ground.

Central Baseball Loop Reorganizes

FORT WAYNE, Ind., March 26.—(AP.)—Representatives of several Indiana and Michigan cities have organized a Class B baseball circuit to be known as the Central League. A number of the cities had teams in the former Central League.

The circuit, definitely comprised of six clubs and open for two more cities until April 2 when forfeit fees will be posted, will be headed by E. W. Dickerson, of Grand Rapids, Mich.

Grand Rapids, Lansing, Muskegon and either Jackson or Kalamazoo in Michigan, and Fort Wayne and South Bend in Indiana are the present lineup. If both Kalamazoo and Jackson decide to enter, Flint or Bay City may be added to make an eight-club league.

The only sport in the world in which you go around in circles and still get somewhere is on in Pittsburgh. The city's first international six-day bike race got under way in Duquesne Garden last night, with a satisfactory inaugural turnout on hand to watch a field of 11 teams, 22 riders, pedaled away for the $5,000 in prize money and what ever less tangible laurels go with winning one of these week-long grinds.

At 2 p. m. today, after 14 hours of riding, the colorful team of Torchy Peden, titan-haired Canadian, and Jules Audy, his partner, and Otto Petri and Fred Zach, the German-Swiss combination, were tied for the lead with 235 miles, 9 laps, to their credit, each had 15 points on the ledger.

One lap in arrears was the world champion combine of Piet Van Kempen and Frank Bartell, boasting the highest point total, 35. Two laps to the bad came the Irish-Jewish duo of Lou Cohen and Lew Elder, with 14 points, and Marcell Boogmans and S. Van Slambrouck, with nine.

Reggie McNamara and Tony Beckman, the pair attracting the most attention, due to the veteran McNamara's fame, are tied with four other teams, four laps behind the leaders.

The race was almost an hour late in getting off to a start. Theodore Moritz, secretary to Mayor Wiliam S. McNair, fired the starting gun that sent the 11 teams off on the long grind. Early sprints thrilled the crowd, and Tony Beckman, McNamara's partner, brought the assemblage to its collective feet when he toppled from the track on the tough eastern turn. He escaped serious injury and was able to resume riding after McNamara spelled him for 15 minutes.

Van Kempen and Bartell, recognized as the present world champions, both exhibited splendid speed in the sprints, Van Kempen especially pushing his bike around the Garden's fine track in amazing fashion. The local track was pronounced well nigh perfect by the majority of the riders. Its 250-foot straightaways and well banked, 52-degree angle turns, permit real speed. It is estimated that the boys must do anywhere from 20 to 35 miles per hour even to stay on the boards at the turns, and in some of last night's sprints, the winners were hitting it at better than 60 miles per hour.

Sprints are scheduled daily at 3, 8 and 10 p. m., midnight and 2 a. m.

SPORT VIGNETTES

If all of the laps and miles covered by the six-day bikers in the Duquesne Garden race this week were to be laid end to end they would reach about 90 times across the country . . . Which wouldn't be a bad idea . . . The Ex-Dukes vs. Brooklyn Jewels basketball game on the Duquesne University floor Wednesday night gives promise of being one of the best battles of the season here . . . The Jewels, like the Ex-Dukes, are a former college team, having represented St. John's College, of Brooklyn . . . Ted Yarosz' fight with Ben Jeby at Duquesne Garden, Friday night of next week, will not be fought on the bicycle track, much as that might be a welcome innovation in the sport . . . Gus Hill, the veteran theatrical producer of New York, now 71, and a member of Joe Laurie, Jr.'s Memory Lane show at the Pitt Theater beginning this week-end, is an old sports figure as well . . . He was the man who first brought the late John L. Sullivan to the stage and was a friend of Jim Corbett, Bob Fitzsimmons and other old ring stars . . . For years, Hill has been an Indian club swinging enthusiast and at one time held the world championship . . . Even today he employs this form of exercise to keep himself fit . . . That masters' tournament at Augusta proved one thing at any rate, which is that Bobby Jones is only human, after all . . . Signs of better times: Local college basketball officials get a raise in pay for next season . . . Too bad about poor, old, decrepit Babe Ruth . . . All he can do in the training games this spring is hit home runs. —HARRY KECK.

The Fintex Trophy, emblematic of the scholastic basketball championship of the City League, was presented to South High School at an assembly held in the school auditorium this afternoon. The presentation was made by Dr. H. C. Carlson, coach of the University of Pittsburgh basketball team, and was received by Grover C. Washabaugh, coach of the South quintet. South has won the title the last two years.

Among the speakers were J. H. McLaughlin, principal at South High; C. Lawrence Walsh, supervisor of athletics in the department of hygiene; Coach Washabaugh, Coach Carlson, Melvin Morgan, of the Fintex Corporation, and Julius Levin, of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph sports department, who acted as master of ceremonies.

Eddie Spotovich, center, and Eddie Milkovich, guard, who were named by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph on the All-City League team, were presented gold medals.

ERIE BOWLERS FINISH IN PRIZE LIST

PEORIA, Ill., March 26.—While Pittsburgh's lone entrant in the team event of the American Bowling Congress tournament last night failed to finish in the money, a number of pinsters from the Steel City district showed prize-winning ability. The Lawlor team finished with a 2,657 and would have been in the cash list had it not been for a bad middle game of 834. N. Perry was the only man on the team who rolled a twin-century score.

Erie produced winners in both doubles and singles, C. Johnson and John Mohr showing the way with a 1,171. Joe Mohr and Earl Hewitt, the latter being last year's singles champion, had a 1,162. Hewitt posted 619 in the singles in his attempt to duplicate his 1933 feat. The 649 of C. Johnson was tops for Erie individuals.

From Akron, W. Deihm and G. Pallage scored 1,177 in the doubles, and H. Aston and J. Mackley featured with 649 each in the singles. The Pittsburgh scores:

SMITH GOLF VICTOR

JONES TRAILS IN AUGUSTA TOURNEY

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 26.—(AP.)—Now that it's all over and Bobby Jones, Jr., knows what it feels like to come back and take it squarely on his golfing chin, the explanation is quite clear today why the renowned Georgian trailed an even dozen professionals in competition for the first time in his career, finishing 10 strokes behind the winner, Horton Smith, in the $5,000 first annual Masters' invitation tournament.

Jones not only mislaid "Calamity Jane," the putter with which he stroked his way through the greatest golf championship winning streak of all time, but he lost his putting touch along with it.

JONES INCONSISTENT

There may have been some other contributory causes to the fact that he finished no better than a tie for thirteenth with 294 for 72 holes in the company, incidentally, of the past and present British Open champions, Walter Hagen and Denny Shute. But the outstanding fact remains he was soundly beaten because he lacked control and confidence around the greens.

Far from being discouraged, Jones fully intends to make this spring joust with his old rivals an annual event The Augusta national tournament, he said, will be made an annual fixture.

That's the full extent to which he intends ever to return to competition. Spiking the revival of reports that he might enter this year's National Open at Merion, Pa., Jones said emphatically:

"I'm through with all of that—for good. You can make it just as strong as you like that my answer is no."

SMITH'S WIN POPULAR

Smith's victory was as popular as anything could have been with the strongly partisan galleries, short of the hoped-for conquest by their idol, Jones. It was especially dramatic, for the young Missourian was the last to beat Jones in open competition. Smith won a sensational scoring battle from Jones exactly four years ago at Savannah.

Smith's winning 284 was worth $1,500, one of the biggest cash awards of the winter. Craig Wood, of Deal, N. J., finished a stroke behind Smith and collected $800.

Sam Parks, Jr., of the South Hills Country Club, Pittsburgh, finished with a total score of 313. He took a 79 yesterday.

OPEN DATES SET

NEW YORK, March 26.—(AP.)—Qualifying rounds for the national open golf championship will be held May 14 in 22 districts this year instead of the customary 21. The new course is the Oklahoma City Golf and Country Club.

One hundred and twelve places will be at stake in the sectional qualifying rounds, conducted on a 36-hole medal play basis. Automatically eligible for the championship proper, beginning June 7 at the Merion Cricket Club, Ardmore, Pa., are the 30 low scorers and ties in the 1933 championship as well as members of the Walker Cup team. These players, exempt from the district qualifying round, total 38, thus bringing the total field at Merion to 150.

The Pittsburgh qualifying test will be held at the Fox Chapel course May 14.

BOUT IS FATAL TO BOXER

ASHEVILLE, N. C., March 26.—(Universal-INS.)—His neck broken, Yates Stroupe, 21-year-old college student, is dead after being knocked unconscious in a local Y. M. C. A. boxing tournament Saturday. Edward Sweet, his opponent, was placed in custody by police pending an inquest.

It was not known whether the injury resulted from a blow or a fall. The bout in which Stroupe was fatally injured was the final one in a two-day boxing and wrestling program which had been in progress here.

By TOM BIRKS

Displaying the best form of the season, the Green and Gold-clad Heidelberg soccer tornado swept into the final round of the Western Pennsylvania senior competition at Greenlee Field yesterday afternoon, swamping Moon Run, 8 to 0, in a one-sided game. Heidelberg's opponent probably will be Gallatin, which played a scoreless tie with Curry in a second semi-final game.

The cup committee had ordered extra time to be played in the event of a tie. Curry, however, refused to play the extra time. In cases where the orders of the committee are not followed, the offending club usually is penalized.

Curry and Gallatin played the first game of yesterday's dual bill. Only two shots at goal were made, and while the defenses of both teams were perfect, the attacks were feeble.

The fans had to await the appearance of Heidelberg for the thrill of the day. They were not long in forthcoming. Three minutes after the start of action a smart movement on the part of the Heidelberg left wing found Johnny McCosky shooting from the corner flag. The ball was in the net over Ambrosie's shoulder. S. Urbanic flashed the ball into the net for the second goal. After 20 minutes, Ambrosie came out to clear and Mike Urbanic tallied the best goal of the season from 30 yards out.

Sally Van Jua tried to rally the Moon Run team in the second half, but there was no stopping the Heidelberg attack. S. Urbanic scored two goals, and Kuten, Dolinar and Johnny McCosky each added markers, with the Moon Run defense powerless to check the onslaught. The lineups:

Heidelberg—8.		Moon Run—0.
Aamous	G.	Ambrosie
Kuten	R. B.	Riddle

PAWTUCKET WINS

NEW YORK, March 26.—(AP.)—Scoring their second successive victory over the Brooklyn Hispano club, the Pawtucket Rangers yesterday won the Eastern finals and qualified to meet the Western champions in the national challenge cup soccer competition. The score was 4-2.

STIX TEAM COPS

ST. LOUIS, March 26.—(AP.)—A pair of goals in the first 23 minutes of play yesterday enabled the St. Louis Stix Baer and Fullers, national champions, to annex the Western soccer championship by defeating Chicago Wieboldts, 2 to 0. With the victory, the final in a three-game series, the Stix eleven captured the Western final for the third consecutive year.

Joliet Team Wins Catholic Floor Title

CHICAGO, March 26.—(AP.)—Baldy Carroll has done it again.

For the third time since he took over the coaching reins at Catholic High, Joliet, in 1927, his team won the national Catholic basketball championship last night, making a fast finish to defeat St. Mary's, of Stockton, Cal., 30 to 17 in the finals.

Carroll's boys, under the title of De La Salle, won the same championship in 1927 and '28 against a field open to the best Catholic high school teams in the nation.

TAMPA, Fla., March 26.—(AP.)—Some of the home town fans looked aghast when the Cincinnati Reds sent Red Lucas to the Pirates for Adam Comorosky and Tony Piet.

Now it is becoming more evident the trade was one of the best ever pulled off by Cincinnati.

Yesterday when the Reds trounced the Athletics, 5 to 1, Comorosky got three clean blows in four trips to the plate, and Piet scored two of the runs.

Baseball Briefs.

WINTER HAVEN, Fla.—Dick Bartell, star shortstop and captain of the Phillies, today was nursing a spike wound that will keep him out of the game at least two weeks. Dick was spiked when he tagged out Delancey, catcher for the St. Louis Cardinals, as the latter came sliding into second in an attempted steal play in yesterday's game. He suffered a diagonal cut of four inches across the right thigh, a wound that severed the muscles and required six stitches.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—The Braves and Red Sox meet today in what Bostonians consider the most interesting game of the training camp series. Manager Bill McKechnie is grooming two of his best moundsmen—Frankhouse and Brandt—for the battle. Bucky Harris has assigned Rube Walberg and John Welch to do the pitching for the Red Sox.

LOS ANGELES—The Chicago White Sox were scheduled for a rest today, but only because they had no practice field. Chicago's National League entrant, the Cubs, had the use of Wrigley Field for a game with the Los Angeles Angels.

LOS ANGELES.—With two games with the White Sox and four more with the Pittsburgh Pirates coming up, Manager Charley Grimm, of the Chicago Cubs, assigned more work for his pitchers. Yesterday Grimm was forced to call in a batting practice hurler and the youngster, Davenport, walked in the run that gave Sacramento a 5-to-4 victory.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla.—Having swept the New York Giants for three victories in a five-game series, the St. Louis Browns took on Buffalo at Fort Lauderdale. Tomorrow, however, the Browns have been excused from their daily workout.

BRADENTOWN, Fla.—The Cardinal camp today heard from Outfielder George Watkins on his trade to the Giants last week for Outfielder George Davis. He said:

"Personally, I think they got the best of the deal with the Cardinals."

MIAMI BEACH, Fla.—New York baseball teams have been seeking a star Jewish player for years, and the World Champion Giants think they've got one now. He's Phil Weintraub, 25-year-old youngster, who clouts the ball hard.

ORLANDO, Fla.—Treasurer Joe Gilleaudeau's latest scheme to pep up the Brooklyn Dodgers may run into money before the fall. He's promised every member of the team a hat every time they beat their hated rivals, the New York Giants.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—Babe Ruth continues to amaze the experts with his hitting exploits in the Grapefruit League. He has cracked out six home runs in seven games, driven in 16 runs and scored 10. He is batting at better than a .390 clip.

BILOXI, Miss.—Ossie Bluege has scooped up from the ground and snatched out from the air some new arguments to convince Joe Cronin why a veteran is better third base protection for the Nats. Young Cecil Travis, who was announced by Cronin as the Washington Senators' third baseman for the duration of the training season, watched yesterday from the bench while Bluege showed in agile fashion what years of experience have done for him.

BRADENTOWN, Fla.—Here for a game with the Cardinals, the Athletics are hearing reports that Manager Connie Mack has obtained Hank Erickson, heavy-hitting catcher of the American Association's Louisville club. Outfielder Rip Radcliffe and Infielder George Detore, late of the American Association, are rumored to be going to Louisville with some cash in exchange.

NEW ORLEANS.—Trade rumors were rife at the camp of the Cleveland Indians here today. It was learned that the management of the Indians is determined to rid the club of temperamental players, and reports were that Wesley Ferrell, ace holdout pitcher, soon will be trade for a good second baseman.

HOCKEY TITLE FIELD CUT

NEW YORK, March 26.—(AP.)—The field of National Hockey League contenders for the Stanley cup, emblem of the world professional hockey championship, was reduced by two teams today, and there was a strong possibility that a third, the one which was rated as the strongest of all, would be added to the sideline brigade tonight.

The New York Rangers, who won the trophy a year ago after finishing third in the league's American division, were forced to stand aside and see another third-place club, the Montreal Maroons, continue the struggle into the semi-finals.

BLACK HAWKS WIN

The Chicago Black Hawks meanwhile won the other semi-final berth, eliminating the crippled Montreal Canadiens. They will meet in a two-game, total-goal series Wednesday and Sunday.

The Detroit Red Wings, with a two-game advantage over Toronto's supposedly invincible Maple Leafs, returned home for the third clash tonight, determined to end the three-out-of-five series in short order and take the league title and a place in the Stanley Cup finals.

OLYMPICS AHEAD

DETROIT, March 26.—(AP.)—Catching the leg-weary Buffalo Bisons at their worst, the Detroit Olympics won their third victory of the International Hockey League playoffs, 5 to 1, last night, concluding their home stand in a burst of scoring.

Each scored once in the first period, but the Bison defense collapsed in the second heat, the Olympics sinking the puck three times. Buffalo never seriously threatened after the first period.

DETROIT SIX CHAMPS

NEW YORK, March 26.—(AP.)—Detroit, represented by the White Star A. C., won the national A. A. U. hockey championship yesterday, overwhelming the Metropolitan All-Stars, New York's entry, 5 to 1, in the final game before a crowd of 10,000 at Madison Square Garden.

The Detroiters are the first Western team to win the title in the three years the A. A. U. has conducted the tourney.

Detroit will play Canada's Allen Cup champions for the North American title in a two-game series at Montreal next month.

CAUTION STILL ADVISED FOR INVESTORS

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University.

NEW YORK, March 26.—The stock market closed Saturday at a sort of critical level, as seen from the trader's point of view. It obviously was under the influence of hope concerning the various uncertainties which have been depressing it. It has edged up to the level through which it broke last Monday. If this hope is justified, it must hold, or work higher.

But much of the uncertainty remains, and caution is still advisable. Important legislation and executive actions are pending, and a labor crisis still exists. So much depends upon arbitrary decisions at Washington that no one can predict with confidence.

Furthermore, the market averages have just closed the "gap" left last Monday, and are right up against the upper boundary of a sort of declining path which they have been following since the middle of February. The question is, is there enough confidence to push them through? This may be one of the times when one should await the market's own action.

NOT ALARMING

But I am inclined to the opinion that marketwise things are not as bad as they seem. It seems to me that the unfavorable aspects may have been discounted, and that the action of the market shows more hope than fear. It certainly shows no certainty of approaching ruin. And meanwhile, industrial activity has been creeping upward.

The decline in bond prices was checked during the past week, and the average turned up Saturday for the first time since March 14.

The stock market averages have held remarkably well in the face of extremely disturbing conditions. They have actually gained a little during the past five days, and Saturday closed only a fraction below the averages of a week ago and two weeks ago. That hardly suggests "distribution."

There has been no tendency to gather momentum on the down side. In fact, the activity has favored the up side, as is indicated by observing the direction taken by the most active issues from day to day. If one could have bought the 20 most active issues each day since the February peak, selling them each time at the close, one would now have a three-point average gain, though commissions and taxes would have eaten it up.

DOWNWARD PATHS BROKEN

Another point I note is that several leaders, such as DuPont and Steel, have filled the January 15 gap. Some, as American Can, have broken their recent downward paths.

So I see no reason for not holding one's reasonably priced stocks and continuing the policy of adding thereto on all recessions. Don't try for speculative "turns." Just try to save your principal in a period of currency depreciation.

It should be noted that, undesirable as it may be in several respects, the proposed stock exchange regulation will not hurt any stock which is conservatively appraised at its existing price. I think that it is only the overbulled and highly speculative issues which may suffer directly from the regulation now proposed.

There is no weak "public following" to be shaken out of the market. The bulk of the sounder, reasonably priced stocks are held outright, or well margined for the purpose of protecting capital against a shrinking dollar. And the dollar will continue to shrink.

Pressed Steel Car Sells Certificates

NEW YORK, March 26—(AP.)—Purchase by Kuhn, Loeb & Co. of receiver's certificates for $1,000,000 was announced by Walter A. Bonitz, receiver for the Pressed Steel Car Company, of Pittsburgh.

Bonitz said the company has about $5,000,000 in orders.

Lumber Bookings Exceed Average

NEW YORK, March 26.—Lumber mill bookings in the week ended March 17 were smaller than in the previous fortnight, but above the average for the first 10 weeks of 1934, says the National Lumber Manufacturers' Association. Production was the largest since August.

World Consumption Of U. S. Cotton Off

NEW YORK, March 26.—The New York Cotton Exchange Service estimates world consumption of American cotton in February at 1,101,000 bales against 1,187,000 in January and 1,110,000 in February, 1933.

PITTSBURGH BUYER'S GUIDE AND BUSINESS REVIEW

PRICES DELAY BUILDING GAINS

That causes other than an overbuilt condition are to a large extent responsible for the present stagnation in the residential construction industry throughout the country, that in a number of localities there are already definite evidences of an increased demand for housing facilities, and that a major obstacle to more rapid recovery is the failure of building costs to decline to a point where investment in residential building will yield a reasonable return is indicated by the results of a mail survey just completed by C. W. Young & Co., investment managers.

The survey was based on replies to a questionnaire received from representative bankers, real estate operators, building contractors and loan organizations located in 200 communities throughout the country, including rural sections as well as the larger business and industrial centers.

RENTS RISE

Twenty per cent of the replies reported a recent tendency for rents to rise. Another indication of potential increased demand for housing was seen in the frequent statement by correspondents that many families have been forced by economic pressure to "double up" in one-family houses or apartments.

Approximately 50 per cent of the replies indicate an overbuilt condition, this condition being most serious in the larger cities and grading steadily downward to the smaller communities where, in a number of instances, an actual shortage of adequate housing was reported. The sections reported most affected by an overbuilt condition are the north and middle Atlantic states, the Southern states and the Pacific Coast. A more nearly balanced condition exists in New England, the Middle Western states and the Rocky Mountain section.

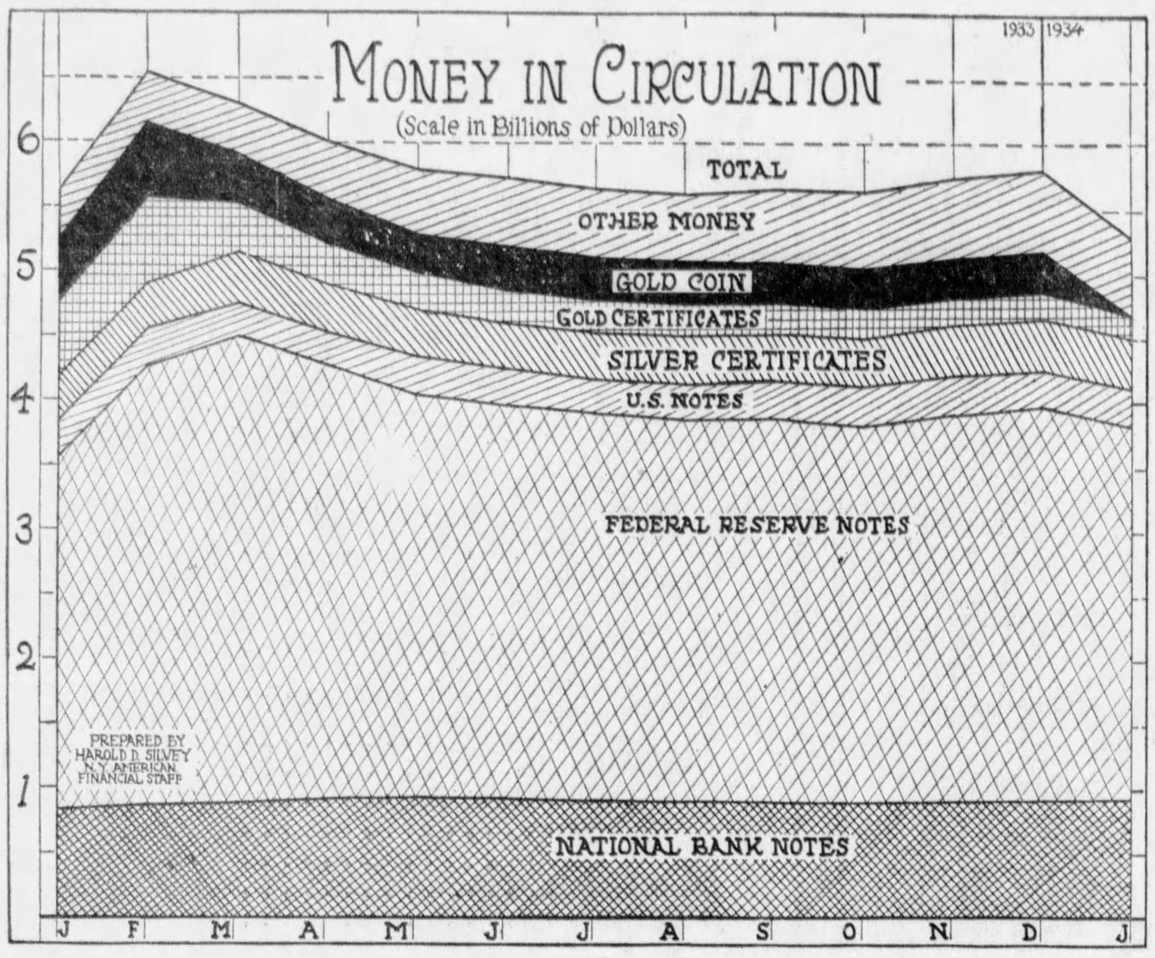
NO WAGE CUTS

One important obstacle in the way of increased residential building, reported by a number of correspondents in addition to their answers to the questions asked, is the stand taken by labor in the building trades against concessions in wage schedules, despite wide-spread unemployment. Since between 50 and 60 per cent of the cost of residential construction ordinarily goes to labor and prices of building materials are only a little under the 1929 highs, it is evident, according to an analysis of the replies, why the building of rental properties has lost attractiveness and why unprofitableness as an investment was the principal reason given for the stagnant state of residential construction.

In summarizing its findings the survey said:

"Viewed solely from an economic standpoint, permanent improvement in residential construction can be expected only when prospective home owners, builders and real estate operators have better assurance that residential building investments will be reasonably profitable. Progress toward this goal would be accelerated by a reduction in building costs, including both labor and materials and by a more general improvement in business which will increase purchasing power and enable many families, now necessarily living under undesirable conditions, to move into more satisfactory living quarters."

Federal Reserve Notes Constitute Bulk Of United States Money in Circulation



The most significant point in the accompanying chart is the total elimination of gold coin from the list at the end of January, 1934. The President's gold order outlawed all outstanding coinage of the yellow metal. This nation is now on a gold bullion standard; gold is transferrable only in bulk, and then only when permitted by the Secretary of the Treasury.

Gold, until April, 1933, was freely coined at the mint in denominations of $20, $10 and $5. Most currencies, until the abandonment of the gold standard last year, were redeemable in gold at their face value.

Gold certificates are warehouse receipts for gold coin or bullion deposited with the Treasury, issuable in denominations of $10 to $10,000, and, like gold, were full legal tender. They, too, are outlawed from public circulation.

National bank notes are the payable-on-demand promises of the issuing national banks. To issue notes a national bank must deposit with the Treasury bonds of the United States equal in value to the par value of the proposed note issue, and must also deposit with the Treasury a redemption fund equal to 5 per cent of its circulated notes. A national bank may issue notes up to a figure equal to the bank's paid-in capital. Notes may be issued in denominations from $5 to $1,000. While not legal tender, they are receivable at par in payment of taxes and all public debts except duties on imports, and they must be received at par by any national bank. Since they are obligations of the United States, they come under the head of guaranteed bank note issues.

Federal Reserve notes are issued by Federal Reserve banks and are obligations of the United States. They must be secured to 100 per cent of the par value of the notes issued, and a reserve of 40 per cent of the notes in actual circulation must be maintained by the issuing banks for redemption. They are issuable in denominations of $5 to $10,000, and are receivable at par by all national and member banks and for all taxes, customs and other public dues.

United States notes are formal paper notes of the government. They are redeemable in gold on demand at the Treasury and are now "lawful money" because they are a form of government credit money. They are full legal tender except in payments of interest on the public debt and import duties.

Silver certificates are much more widely circulated than silver dollars, which are large and cumbersome. Certificates are issuable in amounts up to $100, but about 90 per cent of them are in denominations of less than $10.

"Other money" is comprised of the following; (The grouping of these moneys here and in the chart is solely for convenience.)

Silver dollars, which have been coined in limited amounts. They are full legal tender in payment of debts except where otherwise expressly stated in the contract.

Federal Reserve Bank notes, which are issued by Reserve banks without any limitation. The notes were originally issued for the purpose of bringing about retirement of national bank notes, but they have never been widely distributed.

Treasury notes of 1890, which are paper obligations of the United States government and secured by 100 per cent of silver dollars held in the Treasury. Although full legal tender, they have been largely retired since their issuance.

Subsidiary coin, which consist of silver half dollars, quarter dollar and dimes. They are nine-tenths fine, but short in weight, and are redeemable in standard money in the sum of $20 or multiples thereof. They are legal tender up to only $10 in any one payment.

Minor coin, which consist of nickel five-cent pieces and copper cents. The five-cent piece contains 75 per cent copper and 25 per cent nickel. The one-cent piece is a bronze coin containing 95 per cent tin and zinc.

The "money in circulation" figures, as reported by the Federal Reserve, do not include the largest item of all; Check currency. Checks form the most important single means of payment used in the United States.

TRUST COMPANY SEES MORE ADVANCES

The most disquieting possibility in the outlook for the government's price-raising efforts is not that they will fail but that they will succeed too well, states the Guaranty Trust Company of New York in discussing what the New Deal has accomplished, in the current issue of The Guaranty Survey, its review of business and financial conditions in the United States and abroad, published today.

The Survey states that disappointment has been expressed in some quarters that the government's recovery program has not brought about a greater degree of business revival. Such an attitude should not be taken too hastily.

EXPECT TOO MUCH

Perhaps too much in the way of immediate results was expected in the beginning by a depression-weary nation, over-eager to accept any vague promise of swift recovery. The remarkable improvement that has taken place during the last year is a matter of record. The banking crisis has been surmounted; business activity has increased; prices have risen, and much-needed relief has been given to millions of citizens.

The outstanding recovery measure of the administration is the price-raising program, the survey says. Of the major monetary powers given the President by Congress last spring, two have already been used: dollar evaluation and purchase of government securities by the Federal Reserve banks. Thus far, neither has had any visible effect on the broader aspects of the credit situation. The funds placed in the market by the Federal Reserve banks have been used principally to swell the excess reserves of member banks, which now stand at an unprecedented total; but member banks have not made use of the additional funds to increase their loans. Such expansion as has taken place in earning assets has been in holdings of government securities.

PRICES TO RISE

It does not follow, however, according to the survey, that these monetary measures have had no effect on prices in general. That the price level has risen is beyond question, and there is reason to believe that the advance is due largely to the government's policy. The survey said:

"In fact, the most disquieting possibility in the outlook for the government's price-raising efforts is not that they will fail, but that they will succeed too well. The security purchases by the reserve banks and the additions to both real and nominal gold holdings resulting from devaluation have combined to produce a reserve base capable of supporting an enormously expanded superstructure of credit. And the borrowing program of the federal government has provided, and will continue to provide, an outlet for surplus funds that may make the creation of such a superstructure a relatively quick development. The situation is similar in many respects to that which arose during the World War, when bank reserves increased rapidly as a result of gold imports and of the growth of the federal reserve system, and when the use of the additional reserves was accelerated by the borrowing and spending of the federal government. The time may not be far distant when the most serious problem of the administration will not be to produce an advance in prices, but to hold the advance within bounds."

General Motors Holds Half Air Control

By GEORGE H. SNYDER
Business Editor.

GENERAL MOTORS CORPORATION has a substantial or controlling interest in over half the total assets invested in the aviation industry in the United States.

This was revealed today by Robert A. Burrows, statistician, of A. E. Masten & Co. Mr. Burrows has just published a chart tracing control of companies in the aviation industry. In recent years he has published similar charts on the public utility and railroad industries.

In discussing his chart Mr. Burrows said:

"Perhaps no subject has been more on the public mind nor more frequently on the public tongue than that of aviation. The administration's cancellation of air mail contracts with private companies has resulted in an attempt to segregate manufacturing from transportation activities and to force the break-down of the present complicated set up of aviation holding companies."

* * *

General Motors Has Big Stake

THE CHART REVEALS that General Motors has a big stake in both the manufacturing and transportation divisions through its 25 per cent interest in Bendix Aviation and 50 per cent control of General Aviation. General Motors and General Aviation jointly control North American Aviation Company through ownership of 51 per cent of the voting stock.

This company in turn controls Sperry Corporation through a voting trust agreement. It has a substantial interest in Curtiss-Wright Corporation, 51 per cent control of Western Air Express Company and a 26.7 per cent interest in Transcontinental Air Transport. These last two companies control Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc.

* * *

Holds Interest In Pan American

NORTH AMERICAN AVIATION, controlled by General Motors, also has a small interest in Pan American Airways Corporation.

The new aviation chart is one of the most comprehensive ever prepared on this industry. It shows all the top holding companies with percentage of control inter-relations, a listing of subsidiary companies, a five-year record of earnings and price ranges, itemization of capitalization, and the exchange where each stock is listed.

Paper Companies' Outlook Better

NEW YORK, March 2.—Paper companies generally have now reached a position which "assures a more rapid rate of expansion," says Dun & Bradstreet in a review of the industry. "The new year has started with production as well as prices far above the low levels prevailing early in 1933, and all branches are to be benefited further by the codes which promise elimination of the price-cutting mania which all but destroyed the industry a few years ago."

FARM INCOME UP IN 1933

WASHINGTON, March 26.—(AP.)—The Agricultural Adjustment Administration reported today that 1933 farm income was $1,158,000,000 higher than the previous year. This is an increase of 55 per cent.

Chester C. Davis, farm administrator, in a report to Secretary Wallace covering the period from last May to February, 1934, asserted that including rental and benefit payments, farm income last year reached $3,271,000,000. Greater improvement is due this year, he said.

"Part of this recovery was undoubtedly due to the adjustment program getting under way. With livestock and livestock products, the production of which for market covers a longer period, it is not possible to make adjustments so rapidly.

"It should be added that the full results of a number of important projects launched in 1933 have not yet been felt. It is expected they will become increasingly evident in 1934.'

Davis indicated about 40,000,000 acres eventually would be withdrawn from producton through the corn, wheat, cotton and tobacco reduction programs. Te added:

"The Agricultural Adjustment Administration has no thought of preparing for a permanent scarcity. The American population is still increasing, though at a declining rate. Agriculture's goal is . . . avoiding surplusses that destroy the buying power of farm commodities and wreck farmers' standards of living."

Soft Coal Output Tops 1929-30 Level

WASHINGTON, March 26.—(AP.)—Bituminous coal production, a barometer of industrial activity, has climbed above the 1929-30 levels for the first time since that winter.

The Bureau of Mines reported that output for the week ended March 17 was 8,550,000 tons as compared with 5,123,000 tons the corresponding week last year and approximately 8,500,000 tons the corresponding week of 1930.

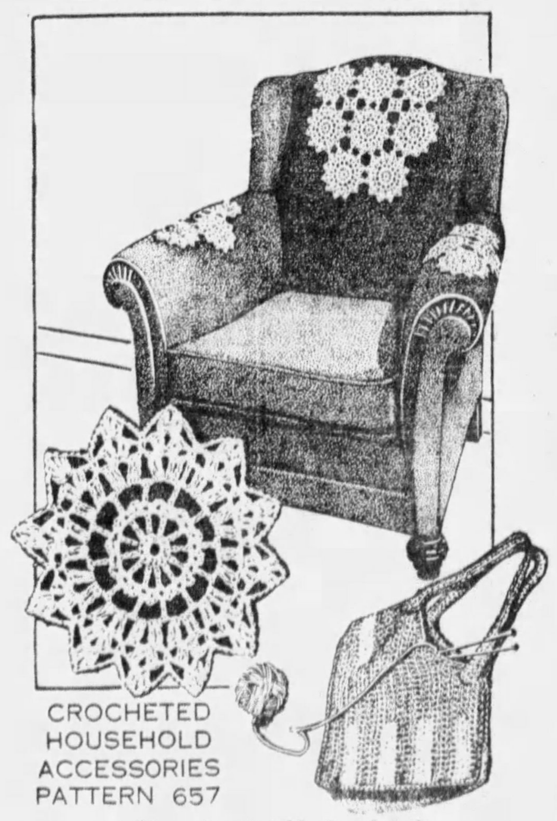
RUMOR DISCORD IN OIL CASE

WASHINGTON, March 26.—Oil Administrator Ickes advised against the action by the federal government in seeking indictments against two major oil companies, three independent companies and 41 individuals in California, according to reports here.

Oil officials are believed to be greatly disturbed over the failure of the California oil cartel to become effective. This situation has resulted in a price "war" in that region, which it is feared may extend to other parts of the country. Overproduction resulting from price cutting on the Pacific Coast would soon flood other areas with excess of oil, officials declared.

LAURA WHEELER DESIGNS



These Are Quickly Crocheted

With crochet so much in vogue, every needlewoman welcomes the opportunity of enhancing her home with some new form of it. Here is something different in a medallion crocheted of unbleached twine—a very quick form of work and most effective. The medallions joined are effective as a chair back set, a pillow top or the popular crocheted bedspread.

Since everyone is crocheting or knitting, the work-bag is coming decidedly to the fore. Here is a simple one of very heavy crochet twine in two colors (hooked rug wool or rags do as well).

Pattern 657 comes to you with complete detailed directions for making the medallion chair back set, suggestions for other uses of the medallion and directions for making the bag.

Send 10 cents for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

TRADING SLOWS AS STOCKS REACT

NEW YORK, March 26.—(AP.)—Declaration of an armistice in the automobile labor controversy gave most financial markets a cheerful tone today, but enthusiasm generally was notably restrained.

After a 15-minute buying rush in the first hour, which put the stock ticker tape a bit in arrears, nimble profit-takers proceeded to cash in, and inaugural gains of 1 to 2 or more points were soon halved. The activity dwindled rapidly on the moderate declines, however, and leading issues did not seem to be in any great supply.

Grains failed to reflect any particular happiness over the halting of the motor strike, and wheat eased. International dollar rates were virtually unchanged.

Motor shares, of course, were the most active, with Chrysler, General Motors, Nash, Hudson and Auburn geting up fractionally to around a point each. Metals were firm. The utilities were narrow.

Some of the low-priced chain store stocks were turned over in relatively large volume at losses of 6 and 7 points in the preferred issues of McLellan and McCrory. Common shares of these stores, both in receivership, were down about a point.

Financial observers were not too concerned over the seeming inability of the railway managements and union officials to reach a compromise on the wage argument. It was felt in most quarters that administrative forces probably would also be successful here in averting any serious trouble.

Commentators pointed out that various spasmodic disturbances and interruptions in the recovery movement were not altogether abnormal, although conceding there would be an inclination to exaggerate initial reactions. It was recalled, at the same time, that Washington still has plenty of ammunition it can use if there is any exceptional threat to business progress.

There was some worrying still being done regarding the proposed stock exchange control legislation, the possibility of amending the Securities Act of 1933 and the threat to profit margins of the campaign for shorter working hours and higher wages.

In some quarters it was felt that the economic upturn of the past several months, which was motivated partly by natural factors such as the restocking of depleted inventories and purchases by consumers to replace wornout goods, may recently have been influenced by other causes. If the general advance is now being sustained by the ordering of supplies in an effort to forestall higher costs, or to avoid shortages which may be brought about by strikes, various analysts believed that some recession at a later date would be a reasonable consequence.

Wholesale commodity prices last week, according to the index of the National Fertilizer Association, declined to 71.2 from 71.3 in the previous week.

HIGHER CABLES AID COTTON

NEW YORK, March 26.—(AP.)—Cotton futures opened very steady, 12 to 13 higher on better Liverpool cables and favorable labor developments. May 12:13; July 12.24; October 12.37; December 12.46; January 12.52; March 12.64.

Moderately active foreign and domestic trade buying combined with a little speculative demand through commission houses accounted for the opening advance. Selling credited to Bombay account appeared in the early trading and prices lost about 4 to 7 points of their gains.

Pressure of near month liquidation and selling by Liverpool in the more distant positions caused the market to lose about 7 to 9 points of its initial rallies later in the morning. May eased from 12.13 to 12.04 and October from 12.37 to 12.29 and at around midday prices were at or within a few points of these levels, leaving the general market about 4 to 7 points net higher. Tarding was on a limited basis, the demand coming from local and trade sources.

Recovery At Cross Roads

B. C. FORBES

RETAIL BUSINESS has exhibited vigor but sentiment in responsible circles has become wobbly.

Mr. Forbes

THIS FRESH outbreak of uncertainty is reflected by declining prices last week for stocks, for commodities and by sharp contraction in volume of dealings.

WHY THIS new hesitancy? Threatened large-scale labor trouble, from longshoremen on the Pacific coast to automotive workers and taxi drivers in the East and railway workers covering the whole continent in between, aroused misgivings that Washington might favor union leaders to an extent gravely disturbing to employers.

Where only the wage rate was involved, the nation looked on unexcitedly. But the auto dispute was generally interpreted as involving the vastly important question of an "open" versus "closed" America. Therefore, the day-to-day developments were followed with intense interest, and no little anxiety throughout the length and breadth of the continent. It was universally accepted that if the American Federation of Labor proved able as a consquence of backing by Washington, to dominate the heretofore unionized automotive industry, every industry and establishment in the land would be promptly under A. F. of L. subjection and dictation.

Motor manufacturers, who have always paid their workers higher than the general industrial average, voluntarily decided late in the week to reduce the work-week to 36 hours and to increase the hourly wage rate approximately 10 per cent.

Whether the American Federation will gain the whip hand, or not, has not been established at this writing. The expectation in financial and business circles is that it won't.

Should there be a drastically different upshot, the effect upon enterprise, upon securities, upon materials, upon the steel and rubber and other industries, upon improvement, upon trade, upon recovery as a whole, might be very marked.

THE COMING WEEK may reveal definitely whether unionized labor is to reach the status of a sort of super-government, able to absorb into its ranks enough millions of members to dictate to both political parties and to install administrations to its liking and more or less under its orders.

Until the labor outlook becomes distinctly clearer, no notable progress in the direction of business and employment expansion need be expected. Nor are security and commodity prices likely to improve.

WALL STREET is wholly dissatisfied with the so-called "revised" Fletcher-Rayburn bill aimed at curbing stock exchanges. This threatened legislation has caused the sharpest fall ever recorded between sales of New York Stock Exchange seats, has repressed trading so severely that many brokerage employes' jobs are threatened and has moved New York firms to plan establishing offices in Canada.

It may, or may not be significant that Toronto Stock Exchange seats have been rising as pronouncedly as New York seats have been tumbling, and that transactions on that Canadian exchange have on certain days greatly exceeded the total volume of our largest exchange.

Sentiment was not cheered last week by an authoritative declaration that our Treasury Department wants a stock regulation bill "with teeth in it."

Thus far, no definite proof has been forthcoming that the Securities Act will be materially modified.

SHOULD THE ATMOSPHERE clear quickly, recovery may suffer no grave setback. All reports agree that consumers are buying with new liberality—automobile orders are phenomenally heavy and retail trade is actually running ahead of two years ago.

Inevitably, however, if the apprehension now in evidence at the top should continue, it would spread down through the ranks.

BLUNTLY, President Roosevelt's recovery campaign is widely regarded as having reached something resembling cross-roads.

MR. ROOSEVELT has heretofore exhibited such resourcefulness in handling big problems that many are hopeful he will again prove equal to the occasion.

Chickie's Daughter

CHAPTER XXVII.

Vivian leaned against the tree and gazed into the star-strewn sky.

"I wonder if any of those planets are inhabited and if they regulate life better than we do here. Pippin, do you suppose our mothers ever really loved? Do you think they were alive in the way we're alive?"

Pippin answered softly: "They loved. They were alive. I'm sure of it."

"Then what in heaven's name do they let us flounder along the way we do? If they remember at all, they must know that a girl is awake at 20. I've been in love for a year. My mother guesses it. Why is she so bland about it? Why have parents made it practically impossible for us to marry until we're older? No man can support a wife before he's 30."

"You're not going to blame our parents for that? That's economics. It was true in their day, too."

"Why haven't they done anything about it? They must know it's a mad, impossible state of affairs. Consider the cruelty of it. Take a case like Elaine Arnold and Tom Belden. They've been mad for each other since Elaine was 16. Tom is almost finished college, and still Elaine's mother is fighting it."

"What has she against Tom?"

"Nothing but the fact he has no money and probably never will have any. She's the silver cord type of mother; wants to live her children's lives. She thinks Elaine should make a rich marriage."

Blamed Mother

Elaine was a friend of Vivian's. Their mothers had been friends. She was a tall, sallow girl with soft, straight brown hair, a willowy figure and sweet, earnest eyes. Vivian tried hard to have her bidden to the sorority.

When the bid was not forthcoming, Elaine was crushed and secretly blamed her mother for this social failure. The mother had ironed out Elaine's personality. She turned resolutely to Tom Belden. Only with him did she feel happy and at peace. They had been engaged three years, but Elaine's mother didn't know it.

Vivian said:

"I love to see the moon dipping down beyond the hills. I think the night has a soul. You can almost feel it touch you. I wish I could stand here forever just as I am and this moment would become the always."

Pippin thought:

"I wished the same thing the night he kissed me."

She said:

"We should be able to keep it beautiful like the dream."

"I think so, too."

"We stood on the hilltop in the middle of the glorious night and, oh, Kevin, how beautiful it was. Vivian has a mouth that a thousand men in the long gone centuries must have kissed. There's something ageless about her—the kind of person who was alive at the beginning of the world and will be alive at its end.

Friendship Grows

It was the right way; the piercing beautiful way; the divine madness. Vivian went about with her eyes glowing, a faint secret smile on her lips. Often Pippin saw her with Sherry, standing together—just talking, yet this subtle, excited communion going on between their eyes, their smiling lips, their clasped hands.

Their absorption in each other grew. Vivian made Phi Beta Kappa and everyone predicted a brilliant finish to her college course. But night after night she closed her books, borrowed Pippin's car and went driving down the highway with Sherry. They waved gaily, Pippin knew they scarcely saw her. Almost terrible to care like that. To be so lost; your whole being geared to another's mood, another's word, another's touch.

She said to Vivian:

"Remember the night you went into the dance hall? You wanted the whole of life. Weren't going to be shunted into that little narrow path."

Vivian's red, sweet mouth rippled. She said on a note of joy:

"This is the whole life! I'll never have a finer thing than this."

Mutinous Pippin thought: "I don't want to be so fiercely owned!" She turned with relief, with a light happy joy to Gregg. Casual—easy—free—That's the way a friendship should saunter in the young years!

One night Vivian sat in the dark brooding over her romance with Sherry. Finally by moonlight, she wrote a letter.

"Sherry—You mean more to me than anything else in the world. But we can't go on. It's been beautiful. A complete and perfect experience. I want it to end now, while it's still at the flashing crest. We've reached our highest moment. I want to keep it. I'm not going the way I've seen other people go. I love you. I'm going to keep love away from the hurting and suffering things. I'm not going to see you any more—ever."

She kept to this resolve. For weeks she didn't see Sherry. She said to Pippin:

"He has no money. I've got to get a job teaching. My mother has gone into debt to put me through. I've got to pay it off. It would be two years at the earliest before Sherry and I could marry. Continuing as we were could only end in anguish."

One twilight nearly a month later, Pippin saw Vivian and Sherry climbing the hills near the Portola road. They both looked white and excited. Sherry had hold of Vivian's hand. He seemed pulling her. They went rushing along together.

"I can't go on like this."

"I know. That's why we've got to end it."

Loses Resistance

"That's why we can't end it."

Vivian halted. She looked into Sherry's pale, excited face. His eyes stormed. His full sweet mouth was straight. Then his arms reached out. All her resistance melted. She closed her eyes, glad for his lips on her face.

At 10 o'clock she came into the room where Pippin sat at her books. Her eyes glowed; her red mouth had a warm, dreamy smile. She said absently:

"I was walking with Sherry. You passed us."

"We saw you. Is it all fixed up?"

Said Pippin, fascinated by the shine of Vivian's eyes and by her strange exaltation:

"You think now that two people in love, madly in love, can go on and on indefinitely?"

Vivian took off her hat and sat on the edge of Pippin's desk. She looked beyond the walls to sunsets blazing down on trees and a moon walking the water. Her voice came musing on a happy, distant note:

"Cowards are afraid to live. They see shadows everywhere. But we're young; we're busy; years fly so quickly. Too soon perhaps. That's all I fear—the years will be gone."

She sat down to her books and remained motionless, her eyes glued to the page. Pippin felt that she never saw a word.

"I used to think love was the most desired thing in the world," Pippin said to Gregg as they walked up from the library one evening and saw Vivian and Sherry dashing off in Pippin's little car. "I used to long for it and make poems about it and see myself floating to oblivion in some Dream-God's arms."

They reached their hill and sat against a tree.

"Now you've changed. You don't want love?"

A Life Affliction

"Now people in love make me think of seeds inside an apple—all closed up in themselves. Down there in the dark of their own egos. They can't climb to the rim and be part of the big, exciting, wonderful outside universe. . . .' Love shuts them in."

"But it's inevitable, isn't it, like the measles? You have to fall in love and get over it before you're immune."

"Get over it? Oh, yes, just decide now I'll take a little dose of this thing called love and be done with it; be free and untrammeled forever. If only we could! You have to be hard and ruthless to take an experience like love, use it, toss it away. You get over the measles. Love is a life affliction. It would be for my type. Once I fall in love, the door to all the gay, glamorous, thrilling things I've always wanted will be slammed in my face." She thought sharply: 'Like it is now in Vivian's."

Gregg's eyes narrowed; his square, fighting chin thrust a little forward. They sat a long while in silence, watching the crimson sky. Then Gregg said:

"Love needn't be a shackle. It need not chain you down . . . two people with the same interests would inspire each other; they would do finer work with the glow in it of their fused personalities. Like this play of ours. I'd never have finished it without you. It wouldn't have been half as good."

Pippin grinned and gave him a teasing nudge:

"We're not in love, darling. We weren't distracted longing for each other, and we weren't jealous of the play. The play was the thing. We, ourselves, were second. That makes a difference, I suppose."

A dark flush crept into Gregg's cheeks. He got up, pulled her to her feet, looked at her gold, wind-blown hair and into her eyes that were now soft and dark as violets. He said, drawing her close and kissing her:

"That's right. We're not in love."

Synopsis

Pippin, pretty daughter of Chickie, falls in love with Kevin McPike. Pippin and Kevin's sister, Kathie, are fast friends. Pippin is thrilled by the first real kiss she ever had—from Kevin. When Kevin goes to Europe to pursue his studies, Pippin meets Bill Lodge, a young ensign. He says he loves her, but Kevin is first in her thoughts. At a friend's home, Chickie meets Barry Dunne, the man who caused her so much sorrow. Chickie is afraid she will have to tell Pippin of her past. Pippin goes to a party with Bill, but after returning seems unhappy. She tells her father what she heard about her mother, and that she thought him responsible. David explains to her what really happened and Pippin is again happy. Chickie tells Pippin the real story of her life. Pippin goes on hikes with Gregg McClintock, senior at college. She then returns to college and has Vivian Drake as a room mate.

LOUISBURG SURRENDERS—FRENCH INDIAN WAR

English generalissimo Lord Loudon failed(1756-57)against the brilliant French commander Marquis Montcalm, governor of Quebec. When Pitt was reinstated as English Secretary of State (1757) later endowed with powers of "a minister of the realm," he recalled Loudon. Brave Gen. Amherst succeeded him. Amherst planned vigorous campaigns on four lines (Nova Scotia, Lake Champlain, Lake Ontario and Fort Duquesne); Heading his first enterprise (May 1758) assisted by Gen. Wolfe and Admiral Boscawen with a fleet, he besieged strongly fortified Louisburg on Cape Breton Island, Nova Scotia, which surrendered July 26 and was destroyed. The decline of the French power in America had started. (U. S. History)

KEPLER'S LAWS OF PLANETARY MOTION

Johann Kepler (1571-1630), a pupil and assistant of Tycho Brahe, in Prague, formulated 3 laws, the starting point of modern astronomy. 1, Orbit of every planet is an ellipse with the sun in one focus. 2, The radius vector of a planet sweeps over equal areas in equal times; hence velocity of planets varies—maximum at perihelion (radius vector shortest) minimum at aphelion (radius vector longest). 3, Cubes of main distances of planets from sun are proportional to squares of their sidereal periods (time needed to complete orbit of planet around sun with reference to the stars). E. g. (Earth distance)^3/(Neptune's distance)^3=(Earth period)^2/(Neptune's period)^2. Three quantities being known, the fourth can be computed. Expressing distances in astronomical units and periods in years: $1^3/30.07^3=1/x^2$ and x=164.8 years, the approximate sidereal period of Neptune.

VIRTUOUS LUCRETIA—LEGENDARY CAUSE OF RISE OF ROMAN REPUBLIC

Only legends cast light upon the regal period of Rome. Her seven kings were chosen from the populus (patricians or householders; the dependents, clients or plebs had no political existence). The last king, the Etruscan Tarquinius Superbus, was a tyrant. His son Sextus wagered with a friend, Collatinus, (both in a war camp) on the merits of their wives. Riding to Rome, they found Sextus' wife returning from a festival, Lucretia, Collatinus' at home, spinning. Next day Sextus attacked Lucretia, who committed suicide. This caused the Roman people to revolt. Tarquinius was deposed and expelled. The kingdom became a republic of patrician pattern. (509 B. C.)

History interprets this legend as the Romans (Latins) freeing themselves from the short lived Etruscan domination. (World History)

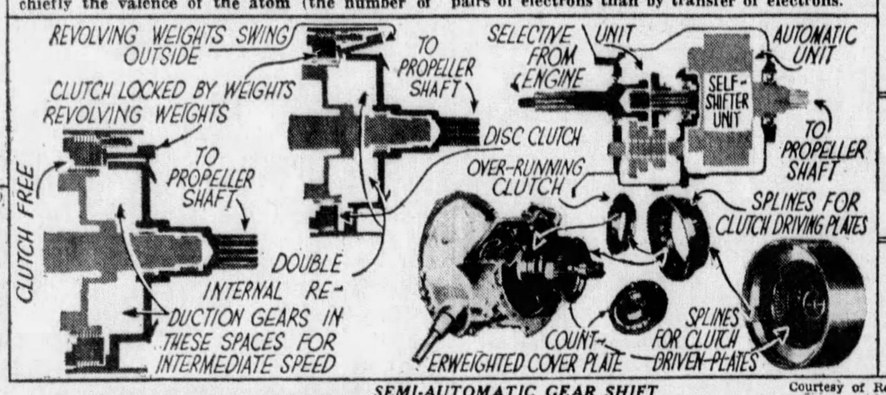
OUTERMOST SATELLITE ELECTRONS DETERMINE CHEMICAL BEHAVIOR OF ATOM

According to Bohr's theory of the dynamic atom, all protons and part of the electrons are locked in the nucleus, the remaining electrons (satellites), in number equal to the atomic number, revolve around the nucleus in different shells (levels). Chemical combination of atoms forming molecules is brought about by transfer (losing or gaining electrons) or by sharing pairs of electrons, in each case in the outermost shell; hence these determine the chemical behavior chiefly the valence of the atom (the number of hydrogen—or equivalent atoms it can hold) and are called valence electrons.

Above: Graphical representation of combination of sodium and chlorine, the former losing one electron to the latter by transfer, giving NaCl, a polar compound (Na became positively charged by losing one, and Cl negatively by gaining one electron). Combination of two fluorine atoms is brought about by sharing one pair of electrons, giving the fluorine molecule F2 (non polar). Combination is more common by sharing one or more pairs of electrons than by transfer of electrons.



SEMI-AUTOMATIC GEAR SHIFT

Courtesy of Reo Motor Car Co.

The semi-automatic gearshift consists of two shifting units, a selective and an automatic, called selfshifter (above). The selective unit has sliding gears, controlled by the selector (above right in four positions) operated by driver at will, obtaining the low, intermediate and reversed speeds.

The automatic unit has double internal reduction gears (for intermediate speed) and a multiple disc clutch operated by revolving weights. At predetermined speed (number of revolutions) of the disc clutch, the revolving weights are swung outward by centrifugal force, locking the clutch discs: the unit turns with the crankshaft in "direct" high speed (an overrunning clutch disengages automatically the intermediate speed). The automatic unit changes back and forth between intermediate and high speeds according to need. (Automobile)

STRUCTURE OF PLANT STEMS

Multiplication of cells from the growing point of the shoot (bud) upward brings about the plant stem. The stem, similar to the root, has three tissue systems: epidermis, cortex and stele. Above: Structure of the woody stem of a vine (modified after Ray).

The two primary functions of the stem are: to support and raise the leaves into position of vantage with respect to light; to act as medium of communication between roots and leaves. Through modification the stem may take over functions of other parts. (Gen. Science)

Strange Interlude

That Old One-Man Island

Just about this time spring starts sprinkling wanderlust on the office-bound citizen.

Each of us would like to leave it all and go somewhere on a desert island to catch up on our introspective referendum.

That always starts the gabberation, "If you were exiled to a desert island, what 10 books would you take along?"

They just got through with that interrogatory charade in the University of Chicago.

Many books were mentioned and few quoted.

Boiling the list down we find the 10 most popular were:

1. How to sell Waterfront Property.

2. Sancho Pancho and Don Cootie.

3. The Outline of Thumb Twiddling.

4. How to Make Waterwings From Coconut Shells.

5. Emily Post's Desert Island Etiquet. Should a Hermit Speak First?

6. No Monkey Is Ever Worried About the Fourth Hand at Contract Bridge.

7. Why Should a Giraffe Knock on the Front Door When He Is Looking in the Second-Story Window?

8. One exile selected the White House cook book. He likes puzzles.

9. Nobody wanted any treatise on the art of making soap.

10. All of them selected Robinson Crusoe. Not one of them will ever be on a desert island. They can get the same effect on the campus in July.

Still, the idea ain't bad. Graduation day is nearing. And, if you can't get a diploma you might as well take 10 books.

A Bottomless Pit

Congress Faces a Hard Problem in Trying to Make Marginal Trading Safe.

Instead of groping for a complicated mechanism of control, one simple legislative enactment is all that is needed.

The privilege of engaging in the business of lending funds should be reserved to the duly chartered banks.

Purchases should be made for cash through stock brokers, and, where borrowing is necessary, it should be arranged directly at the banks by customers.

Thus by a single stroke Congress can do away with most of the evils of the margin system.

The proposed change would separate the lending function from the broker's urge to promote activity and increase commissions.

The calling of a broker's loan by one bank merely leads to replacement of the credit at another. There is no change in the total amount of funds used in speculation.

Thus a dangerous credit merry-go-round is set up, and days of reckoning come too infrequently—and then too violently.

He is concerned only with the ability of the customer to put up initial margin, knowing or caring nothing about the additional reserve strength of the customer in case additional margin is necessary.

Of course, the competent banker makes mistakes too, but it is his custom to relate the loan to the total financial position and general reputation of the borrower.

As a matter of fact, the brokers themselves would be better off if the English method of operating through banking sources were followed instead of the system of inflexible margins proposed in Congress.

It would be a mistake to hamstring the banker with inflexible lending ratios. There must be leeway for banking discretion under rules promulgated by the Federal Reserve Board.

To stop the ruinous practice of overlending on inflated and manipulated stocks, Congress could very simply provide that the maximum loan value of any listed security would be 80 per cent of the book value, namely, the value stated on the books of the company by its responsible officers and directors.

By the same token, it would leave the legitimate machinery of the market place for securities unimpaired.

Reckoning Day Postponed

Council Has Shown Lack of Courage and Patriotism In Failing to Balance the Budget.

The city is expected to have $19,683,618 of income this year. And indications are that City Council will fix the budget this week at about $21,150,000, which is a reduction of $103,000 from the amount set by the old council but still involves a deficit of about $1,466,000.

It is proposed to meet the deficit by borrowing money through a bond issue. That is a cowardly and inefficient way of dealing with the situation. It merely postpones the day of reckoning.

If Council were actuated by courage and patriotism it would balance the budget now. There are many economies that could be effected without crippling the municipal service.

For example, the councilmen and the Mayor could accept themselves the 16⅔ per cent pay cut that has been imposed on other city employes. Councilman W. A. Magee has proposed such a sacrifice in the taxpayers' interest, and it reflects discredit on the majority of his colleagues that they have succeeded in killing the proposal.

Radio Preferences

The Clubwomen's Poll Is Interesting, But May Not Fairly Represent Public Opinion.

A poll of clubwomen in the Pittsburgh District, taken under the auspices of the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women, to ascertain their likes and dislikes in radio performances, has brought some interesting disclosures; but it is doubtful if it can be accepted as a representative cross-section of public opinion.

Six hundred and forty-seven of the women voted in favor of symphony concerts, for example, and none against them; while on the other hand hundreds of votes were cast against jazz and crooners, and none in favor of these kinds of music.

The fact remains that jazz bands and crooners are in many cases commercially successful, while symphony orchestras as a rule have a hard time avoiding deficits.

There is reason to believe, however, that symphony music is gaining in favor with the masses of the people and that in a few years that preferences now expressed by the clubwomen of Pittsburgh will also be those of the people in general.

As Old as You Feel

What's 74 Years?

Men often say that a woman won't tell her age because women are vain. But what do the men know about it?

The truth is that the age of a woman is a mystery because it has little to do with dates and calendars.

Mrs. Sarah Lavanburg Straus is going to Africa to hunt birds and beasts for the collection of Chicago's Field Museum of Natural History.

She's a young woman. Only a young woman would have the strength of will, the vigor of spirit and the courage to do something dangerous in the interest of science, to brave perils at which strong men flinch.

Mrs. Straus is young despite the fact that by the calendar she is 74 years old. She is just as young now as she was five years ago when she went hunting in Africa with a grandson.

Woman's youth or age is not a matter of birthdays. Nor is it measured by her complexion and figure. Let those women who knit their brows at the thought of passing time or at the changes announced by their mirrors think of Mrs. Straus in Africa.

Pouring It In

(Copyright, 1934.)

Are American schools and colleges intended to serve the uses of education or to serve the purposes of foreign interests?

Propagandists are using the school and college system daily to obtain young converts to their ideas and thereby shape the future of the Republic.

Communists organize "clubs" or "cells" among our youthful students to preach the overthrow of American institutions.

How long are the American people going to permit alien propagandists to use American schools and colleges in spreading their dangerous doctrines?

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, March 26.—Diary: It came on to pour at 5 a. m. and I drew a great chair to the window, watching. Then sleeping until 11 and up, reading a batch of epistolary zip from Vernon McKenzie, Clifton Webb, Westbrook Pegler and C. Fred Henking. And found a native statuette Meredith Nicholson sent from Paraguay.

So working, re-arranging biographical voloumes and with my wife to Ina Claire's to-do for Gladys Cooper and Weith Winter. A large flowering and great kidoodle. So walking down the avenue, browsing at Dutton's and Scribner's and wondering what happened to the window boxes at Helen Gould's.

Dinner with Will and Jessie Hays and the Karl Kitchens there and Rupert Hughes. And Will Rogers dropped in from one of his quick flying trips from California, as gleeful as ever I saw him. And I told him my old school fellow "Coin" Harvey's son, Tom, was in town and he lit a shuck for his hotel.

The New York literary agents—there are scads of them, Laura Wilk, George Bye, Dave Hampton, Verne Porter, Carl Brandt and so on—are a skilled group of peppers-up of the drooping literary spirits, the buffers between flint hearts of the editorial sanctum and the sensitive scribbler. Most every established writer has one, especially those far from literary marts. The agents' offices are in mid-town, some quite elaborate. They have ears to the rail and know the minute this or that magazine is ready for the South Sea tragedy or the Riviera romance. They are rewarded by a percentage of the payment check.

One of my occasional and interesting correspondents is a Catholic sister in Minnesota, encouraging mostly but gently taking to task when a dereliction demands. It's surprising how eagerly those leading cloistered lives look forward to zestful and wholesome radio programs—Edwin Hill is a high favorite among them, also Alexander Woollcott and Tony Wons. Especially, too, do they enjoy the music of the symphony and Paul Whiteman when they can dial them.

I breakfasted at Sherry's with a mightily depressed executive who returned from lolling in Florida sands and yachting in southern water many weeks to find that his business had prospered as never before over the same period. He felt he was worthless and should roll up like a puff ball and blow away. He did not appreciate the subtlest of compliments. C. M. Schwab, I believe, once said: "The greatest executive is one whose affairs flourish when he goes on a prolonged vacation."

So little seeps out of the stage world and Hollywood about long and successful marriage. There are many but most conspicuous, I believe, is that of George Arliss and his wife. They have been happily wed 30 years, a culmination of a school day romance. He has never trouped or made his many voyages to England without her. Only three times in their married state have they not dined together. All of Arliss' stage and screen contracts call for the appearance with him of Mrs. Arliss and if a part calls for a wife, she must play it, and no marriage must be portrayed between them not congenial. They are, incidentally, sun down walkers. Wherever they are they keep trysts with a sunset.

The most sustained cheering, plus seven curtain calls, heard in the theater this season was for "Dodsworth" and likely the most auspicious celebrity opening. It was a grand welcome for two players, too long absent—Walter Huston and Fay Bainter. Incidentally the producer, shy Max Gordon, attended a neighborhood movie the night of the premiere. O, yes, Walter Huston and Sinclair Lewis walk alike.

Bagatelles: Ed Howe often quotes a made-up Roman philosopher he calls Silenius . . . John Drinkwater is now living at Pepy's old village of Brampton . . . Winchell Smith, playwright, left a $6,000 annuity to the Lambs . . . John Cowper Powys waits three months before reading reviews of his books . . . Will Rogers has been air sick but once and that was while landing at Newark . . . Tullio Carminati has become the best dressed first nighter . . . He was once Duse's leading man.

I got to wondering during an insomnia stretch last night if the international bankers counted sheep trying to sleep these days. And maybe that was what was making me twitch. I was certainly one of their shorn flock. And can I bleat!

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

I Apologize

I'm going to apologize.

Apologies usually are grouchy, grudgy affairs. But this one is going to be eager and warm. For it's an apology to mothers! And who should be more willing to love and help a mother than I—who am one!

Mrs. Jim Adams started it—little Mrs. Adams who lives on the shabby side of town in a tumbledown cottage with a leaky roof, a splintery kitchen floor, a smoky stove, five "wild young Indians" of youngsters, two dogs, five white mice, and holy mackerel!—A PET GOAT! And if you don't know that that combination can raise 57 varieties of lively Hades for one tired worried little human, then you've never been a mother.

For, what with Jim being out of a job—the kids always coming down with measles or mumps or chicken pox—or getting into fights—or peeding a new pair of shoes before she's paid for the last ones—or starting a pollywog farm in her best pudding dish—life is certainly a "picklement" for Mrs. Jim.

Then, to top it all, along comes I—the big bully—"always picking on mothers." Or so she thinks! And do I feel like a heel? I DO!

So, before I try to explain a word, I'm going to say—"MY DEAR, I'M SORRY! NOT JUST A LITTLE SORRY—NOT JUST EMBARRASSED OR FUSSED—BUT SORRY WITH ALL MY HEART AND MIND—AND AN ACHING BACK, AND A SPLITTING HEADACHE, AND A COUPLE OF FALLEN ARCHES, ALL THROWN IN FOR GOOD MEASURE!"

It isn't nonsense, and every mother who's really working on her job will know what I mean by that. For that's what motherhood means. Not just "noble sacrifice" and "undying devotion," all of which looks so pretty in poetry. But sitting up all night with a crying baby, when you're not much older or wiser than a crying baby yourself; and plugging on all day, when you're so goggy that you don't know which way you're going—rassling with dirt, and noise, and bills, and burnt stews, and tears, and tantrums and, hardest of all, your own desire to go out and take a nice long jump in the bay.

How should I know all this? Because I've done all this, and the memory of it lies behind every word I write for other mothers. That's why I'm so truly sorry if my words have sounded sneering instead of understanding—if I've seemed to "pick on mothers."

I'm not picking on mothers, my dears. But, with all the pity, spunk and honest exasperation I can muster, I AM picking at the things that defeat and humiliate mothers—the things that waste their lives and break their hearts.

AND BECAUSE I DO LOVE AND UNDERSTAND MOTHERS, AND GENUINELY WANT TO HELP THEM, I'M TELLING THEM — STRAIGHT — THAT MOST OF THOSE THINGS LIE IN THE MOTHERS THEMSELVES.

Mothering has always been a cruelly hard job. The world makes a great fuss over the pain a mother endures in travail, but that's the least of her trouble. It's the long grill ahead that tests a mother; the monotonous, dulling years during which a weary woman so often sees her world—sometimes even her husband and children—slipping from her. And never was there greater danger of that than in these crowded, changing times.

All of these things I know, reading their tear-stained letters by the thousands. And what should I do about the desperate mothers who write those letters? Praise and pet them? Join in their self-pity?

It would be so easy and so popular to do that—BUT SO CRUEL! Would it help a bewildering, bungling workman to praise, pet and pity him? Would that save him from failure? Of course it would not. NOR WILL IT SAVE A MOTHER!

A mother must know her job, or she'll be penalized as surely as any other worker. She may not be turned out into the street, but she'll face a crueler fate—the indifference and disrespect of those she loves best—the bitter loneliness of a world in which she has lost her place.

Her family may love her, be grateful to her. The world may honor her. But these things are not enough. Mothers are people. They need more than love, gratitude and honor. They want to feel that pride of personal performance, that sense of power which comes to all successful workers. Lacking that, they grow bitterly resentful, not even knowing where they have failed.

So I try to tell them—try to tell you, Mrs. Jim. And if sometimes I seem harsh in the telling, it's only because my pity for your pain drives me too hard. Forgive me, my dear. And love me as much as you can. I'm rassling with some burnt stews myself!

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

'Marrying-Towns'

A girl's chances of marrying early and happily are more often a matter of locale than of her personal charms.

* * *

There are SOME girls, of course, who would fall in love and marry if you put them in solitary confinement. They would "see a ghost walking" and flirt with him. Or they would elope with the keeper.

* * *

But locale has almost as much to do with the average woman's fate as it has to do with the verdure and flora. Some cities in this broad Land are MARRYING-TOWNS—at any rate, much more marrying-towns than others.

For instance, while New York City is full of eligible men and the marriage license bureau is always busy, still New York is distinctly NOT a marrying-town. It is a distracting, fascinating night-life Town. And its men, while charming playmates, are not marriage-minded. They have to be blindfolded and BACKED to the altar—and they'll struggle against the ties-that-bind until their strength gives out.

* * *

Washington, D. C., the most beautiful city in the world, is, alas, not much of a marrying-town. This is because Washington is not a business town; and the moment a Washington man graduates from college, he makes tracks for some smokier but more commercial place and does not return unless he comes back to Congress, bringing the wife and kiddies along.

* * *

Chicago, on the other hand, IS a marrying-town—a good marrying-town! The men of Chicago are all marriage-minded — and Chicago is full of eligible MEN.

California, from north to south, is a marrying STATE! There is something about the moon or the roses or the ocean or the California sunshine which makes everybody want to marry everybody else. And, in spite of all the temperament in Hollywood, I have never met so many contentedly married couples anywhere else as I have met in California. Perhaps that's because the windows are always open and the divorce laws are always free.

* * *

Another good marrying state is Ohio—and all the husbands I have met in Ohio are prize husbands and good providers. Attractive, TOO! What's the fare to Ohio?

* * *

All southern towns, large and small, and all those in the Southwest are marrying-towns. The boys in Dixie are brought up with the idea that they will some day get married, just as they are brought up with the idea that they will some day wear long trousers or go to college or shave their chins. They never even THINK of dodging "fate!"

New England? Well, in New England, men are scarce. But, once you've got a New England husband, you've usually got him for LIFE. He is a one-way husband! As inflexible in his love as his grandfather's flintlock rifle.

* * *

The jazz decade and the depression and woman's freedom have done everything possible to spoil men for marriage. Still, intrinsically, every locality in this country has some of its original marrying atmosphere left. And it makes a lot of difference where a girl gets her start.

ISN'T IT SO?

Opportunity makes the man after the man has made the opportunity.

There is far more eloquence in silence than there is in some long-winded speeches.

Home Loan 'Pork' Barred

By James T. Williams, Jr.

Public office is a public trust —Grover Cleveland.

SENATOR NORRIS, of Nebraska, has just won another victory in Congress over pork-barrel politics. His amendment to the home loan bill has earned the endorsement of President Roosevelt. This means it will be accepted by the House, having already passed the Senate.

The Norris amendment bars political influence from all consideration in appointments to the Home Owners' Loan Corporation. It puts that service for the future under the merit system.

A similar provision was inserted, on motion of Senator Norris, in the Tennessee Valley Authority Act, which has worked well. It has enabled the administration to protect the service of that authority from political incompetents.

The Norris amendment to the home loan guarantee bill should work equally well. If enforced it will protect the service of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation from the greedy and meddlesome interference of pork-barrel politicians.

* * *

Democratic Party Is Warned

IN THE course of the debate upon this amendment, Senator Norris, than whom President Roosevelt has no more progressive supporter in either house, delivered this warning to the Democratic Party:

"Democrats, do your duty and you will stay in power; go crazy and get wild and drunken with power and do what you have condemned enemies for doing, and you will go out of power.

"The present administration came into power because of the very things Democrats have condemned but which they are now doing. Such conduct in the past had disgusted millions of progressive-minded men and women of the country, and they voted the Democratic ticket. They did it with some reluctance. They were more anxious to vote against the Republicans than they were to vote for the Democrats.

"They put the Democrats into office and into power. Many Democratic senators would not be here now looking into my face if it were not for those progressive Republicans who were thinking of the country, who were thinking of humanity when they cast their vote.

"The country knows that if this amendment should be defeated the Home Owners' Loan Corporation will become a political machine.

"When you are electing the cashier of your bank, a business institution, why do you not put up a sign and say, 'We do not want any Republicans in this bank?'

"When you are selecting a president of your local business corporation, why do you not say, 'You cannot have any Democrats in this organization. It is going to be Republican throughout?

"What kind of a business move would that be? What kind of a business man would stand for that?

"Those who want to keep the Home Owners' Loan Corporation out of politics, to have it operated on a basis of efficiency, ought to be for this amendment. Senators and representatives ought not simply to be errand boys getting offices for people. That is what many of us are."

Aeronautics Branch Not Protected

IF THE aeronautics branch of the Department of Commerce, which was organized and until last year administered on the basis of merit and efficiency, could have been protected by a Norris amendment its disruption by the maladministration of political incompetents could have been avoided.

It is because Secretary Roper has replaced expert, experienced and non-political officials with inexperienced and political appointees that the Airline Pilots' Association has protested to Congress against giving the Secretary of Commerce any authority to determine their rates of compensation.

Disguised as indefinite furloughs, indefensible removals, transfers and dismissals have been made, with the result that the personnel of the aeronautics branch is far less experienced and expert today than it was when Congress recessed last June.

What was set up as a technical and non-political federal agency to assist the Secretary of Commerce in the discharge of his responsibility under the law to regulate civil aeronautics in the public interest has, for the lack of a Norris amendment, become a political and publicity bureau for the promotion of political aviation and exploitation of flying politicians and their appointees.

An investigation by Congress of the administration of the aeronautics branch is essential if this federal agency is to be purged and restored to a non-political basis.

Human Side of the News

The Loss of Religious Faith, Attributed to Science, Is Blamed for Much Mental Suffering

By Edwin C. Hill

THE GREATEST enemy that human beings have is their own thoughts. So, at least, we are told by Dr. C. G. Jung, the famous psychologist. The most tremendous danger that man has to face, it is stated in the current issue of the Cosmopolitan Magazine, is the power of his ideas. Modern man is full of fear. Fear leads to panic. Out of panic comes war and anarchy. Medieval man lived in a safe world, or one that he believed to be safe. God looked out for everybody in it. He rewarded the good and punished the bad. There was the church where man could always get forgiveness and grace. His prayers were heard. He was spiritually taken care of.

Not so with the modern man. Science has told him that no one is taking care of him. And he is full of fear. Today, we have an intricate life, full of mechanical devices for living. A life crowded with motor cars and radios and motion pictures. But none of these things is a substitute for what we have lost. Religion gives a meaning to life. Today the world in which we live is a madhouse. All the energy which once found its expression in the painting of great religious pictures, the carving of great religious statues, the building of great cathedrals has gone flat. It is not lost, because there is a law that energy cannot be lost. A gloomy survey, but with much truth in it.

One may fairly assume that humanity is passing, at present, through a bad cycle which began with the bloodshed and violence of the Great War, and continued on through the financial breakdown of nations and the misery and pessimism induced by all that. But the cycle will pass, though it may take a decade longer to emerge from its shadow.

Louis McHenry Howe, secretary to the President, is one who sees happier times ahead. Col. Howe is by no means one of those perfectly impossible creatures, the professional optimist, than which there is nothing whicher, unless it is a professional Southerner. But he believes, with his chief, that a great deal can be accomplished by resolute men to make the people happier and safer.

* * *

Probably Reflects President's Views

WHAT he has to say in this new Cosmopolitan is particularly interesting and significant, because there can be no doubt that it reveals the mind of the President himself. It gives us an idea of what Mr. Roosevelt is planning for the future. The voice may be Louis Howe's, but the thought is Franklin D. Roosevelt's. Congress will start some form of employment insurance during this present session, and it will be in operation within two years. Looking ahead, Col. Howe sees further automatic and scientific regulation of business, insuring greater security in employment and shorter hours for the worker, and the establishment of a healthy economic life for the American people, assuring freedom from exploitation, fear and want.

Necessary steps in this direction include abolishing wasteful and ruinous business competition, safeguarding the people's money from the "wolves that prowl around the temple of high finance," assuring the farmer a fair price for his products, and providing better living conditions for everyone. City slums will be wiped out, says Col. Howe. City factory workers will be able to live in the country and raise their own vegetables. The individual will be protected from speculative sharks. There may not be so many rich men, but there will be far fewer poorer ones. Sounds like the vestibule of the millenium. Utopia itself. We can only wait and see. Nothing seems impossible in this strange, restless kaleidoscopic world.

Harlow Shapley's Theory of Universe

SCIENCE IS really a romantic quest, and a field of action crowded with adventurer and dreamers. They are everlastingly trying to get a peek behind the curtain, to find out what makes the universe tick, to discover the fountain of youth, to come upon the philosopher's stone. Especially do I like to hear these astronomers talk. They are so prodigal with figures, talking only in billions, contemptuous of anything much less than a thousand light years away from our insignificant speck in illimitable space.

One of our most brilliant stargazers is Dr. Harlow Shapley, who has imagination tucked away in his brain cells. He tells us now, that the universe is about five billion years old, and yet the individual stars which make up the universe are at least a thousand times older. In other words, the whole is much younger than the parts of which it composed. This means that the present universe is a machine, rebuilt five billion years ago from old spare parts of former universes—a new machine built from celestial junk. And we learn from Dr. Shapley also, that the extent of the universe, the operation of this gigantic machine, extends some ten million light years, and beyond that there is nothing—nothing but the awful void of infinity. Rather staggers the mind, doesn't it?

Two doctors, out in San Francisco, think that we have Ponce de Leon's fabled Fountain of Youth in our own bodies. Dr. Hackh and Wrestling present the theory that old age and senility are caused by the accumulation of too much "heavy water" in the body.

Heavy water, only recently discovered, is water which contains twice as much hydrogen as ordinary water. It stops the growth of plants. The theory is that too much of it slows up and ages the human body, while small doses speed up growth enormously. One would like to be hanging around a hundred years or so from now just to see how much more these scientific gentlemen know than they know now, how many of Nature's secrets they will have been able to wrest from her clenched and stubborn hand.
